OYSTER INDUSTRY IS SAFE—KINCAID

Although some labor substitutions must be made, oyster production in Washington will not be affected vitally by the evacuation of Japanese residents, Prof. Trevor Kincaid, head of the department of zoology at the University of Washington and biological adviser to the oyster industry, said today.

"Beginning with 1941, we have been completely independent of Japan in the culture of oyster seed," Kincaid said. "We produced all we needed last year and were able to export a considerable supply to Oregon.

"We found, upon examination and experimentation, that the success of oyster reproduction depended upon the time when we put out the cultch, or the material to which the spat is attached. We examined the plankton and determined accurately the proper time for laying down the cultch.

One Company Americanized

"In the Willapa Harbor area one company operated by Japanese has been Americanized. Another company employed only a few Japanese who can be replaced by white labor. Generally speaking, the production of large oysters will not be vitally affected, but some difficulty may be experienced in finding a substitute for Japanese labor in the production of the smaller, native oyster.

Many Japs Were 'Openers'

"In the Olympia area, many Japanese were employed in opening oysters. They developed a high degree of skill, as a casual inspection would prove. To see oyster openers at work, especially the Japanese women, would convince anybody that detaching the small, native oysters from their shells is an art. Without that skilled labor some difficulty may result."

In addition to his responsibility as biological adviser to the large oyster industry, Kincaid operates 50 acres of oyster ground as a private enterprise.

Warnings Increase Car Use-Stamp Sale

Clarence Haggen, Seattle division chief of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, said today warnings posted on vehicles of motorists who have failed to buy federal use stamps have resulted in a sharp increase of stamp purchases.

Haggen said agents will continue to give out warnings to violators. He explained that because less than 20 per cent of the motorists have failed to buy stamps, many of whom may not be using their cars, no "drives" will be conducted to force purchase of stamps.

ATLANTIC BATTLE HURTING DAIRIES

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—The battle of the Atlantic is promising to stir up trouble for the Agriculture Department in the nation's dairy barns. Unless that battle soon takes a turn for the better, the trouble may spread to the hog and cattle-feed markets.

The lend-lease need has developed as the department thought it would. In fact, Great Britain and Russia could use larger quantities than it would be possible for this country to produce. However, a tightening of the oceanic shipping situation, resulting from sinkings in the Atlantic and to diversion of boats to the Pacific for movement of war materials to the battlefronts, has curtailed food shipment overseas.

Buying Subsides

Consequently, purchases for lend-lease shipment have not been of sufficient volume to maintain prices of dairy products and raw milk at levels established when such buying got well under way last summer and fall.

With the big production season for milk just ahead, further price setbacks may be inevitable, dairy officials said, unless the shipping situation improves or the government buys in much greater volume and stores the surplus for possible future shipment.

Protests against recent declines in prices of milk paid by manufacturers of dairy products are beginning to pour in on the department from dairymen, who complain that, because of advances in feed prices and labor costs, there is less to be made from dairying than a year ago.

Larger Output Sought

These protests warn that further milk-price setbacks may interfere materially with efforts of the department to obtain this year an 8 per cent increase over last year's record output of milk.

Pork products could later find themselves in pretty much the same situation. A material increase in hog marketings and slaughter is expected during the next eight months. Hog production is being expanded in expectation of a large overseas outlet. Should that market fail to reach the proportions anticipated by the department in setting its hog-production goals, price declines could be expected.

Seattle to Get W. P. B. Office

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—The War Production Board is establishing 13 regional offices at key points in the nation to speed up field work and save business men from making trips to Washington.

Agencies at Seattle, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Kansas City, Dallas, Denver and San Francisco will supervise 120 existing field offices.

J. S. Knowlson, director of industry operations, said that "our plan is to place as much authority as possible for War Production Board operations in these new regional officers." Determination of policies, however, will continue to rest with the organization here.

CAR LOADINGS

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—The Association of American Railroads reports that 796,64 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 2,716 cars, or 0.3 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an inc case of 26,656 cars, or 3.5 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase o: 176,265 cars, or 28.4 per cent, compared with 1940.

The report classified the loadings, compared with last week and the corresponding week a year ago, as follows:

	This Week	Last Week	Year Ago
