Japanese American Korean War Veterans
Memorial Wall Dedication Ceremony
Japanese American Cultural & Community Center
Los Angeles, California

Dear Friends:

It is my pleasure to extend my warm greetings and congratulations on the dedication of the Japanese American Korean War Veterans memorial wall.

I commend the Japanese American Korean War Veterans organization for its diligent efforts to pay tribute to the 249 Americans of Japanese ancestry who made the ultimate sacrifice. This memorial wall is an appropriate way to commemorate those brave soldiers who put themselves in harm's way to preserve and defend our nation's principles of peace, freedom, and democracy. Their stories of extraordinary duty, honor, heroism, responsibility, and sacrifice will always live on.

We must look upon this memorial wall as a legacy of honor, pride and the promise of a better life for our children and the generations to follow. It is a celebration of the future that Japanese American Korean War veterans helped to create; a future filled with peace, equality and freedom.

I send you my best wishes for a most successful and memorable gathering.

Dear Friends:

I am honored to welcome all of you to the first Japanese American Korean War Veterans reunion. This occasion is especially poignant because it marks the official dedication of the Japanese American Korean War Memorial Monument.

I congratulate the JAKWV for the completion of this long overdue memorial wall. The Korean War can never truly become "forgotten" as long as organizations like JAKWV seek to preserve the memory of those who made the ultimate sacrifice for their country. This memorial will stand as a testament to their heroic accomplishments and is a fitting tribute to the memory of the many Japanese Americans who died during the War.

I salute the Japanese American Korean War Veterans commitment to its mission of highlighting the achievements and efforts of Japanese American veterans. I commend the JAKWV's accomplishments thus far, and am confident your work will lead to a greater appreciation of the role Japanese Americans played in the Korean War.

Again, please accept my best wishes to all of you during this special occasion.

Sincerely,

FOR THE FIRST REUNION OF
AND DEDICATION OF THE
JAPANESE AMERICAN KOREAN WAR MEMORIAL
JAPANESE AMERICAN CULTURAL AND COMMUNITY CENTER
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA
MAY 23-25, 1997

It is an honor to be given the opportunity to extend my warmest aloha to the Japanese-American men and women who served the United States with loyalty and dedication during the Korean War and to their families on the occasion of this first reunion sponsored by the Japanese American Korean War Veterans organization. In particular, I want to acknowledge the presence of Congressional Medal of Honor recipient Hershey Miyamura.

The focus of this first reunion is the dedication of the memorial wall honoring the 246 Japanese Americans who lost their lives in the service of our country during the Korean War. These young men of courage and principle represent a great loss to our nation and to the families who lost beloved sons, brothers, husbands, and fathers. None of us knows how much each would have accomplished given a longer life, but we know that their families have carried a wound that can never be fully healed. I salute all of you for ensuring that the sacrifices of our honored dead and their families will not be forgotten.

To all the veterans of the Korean War and to all who have risked their lives and health in the service of America in conflicts around the world, I offer my heartfelt gratitude and admiration. You will not be forgotten.

Very truly yours,

PATSY T. MINK
Member of Congress

GOVERNOR PETE WILSON

May 24, 1997

I am honored to join with everyone gathered today in Los Angeles on the occasion of today's dedication of the Japanese American Korean War Veterans Memorial Wall.

No one is more deserving of tribute than those brave men and women who answered our nation's call to duty, risked and sacrificed all and ensured the freedoms we claim as birthright. For their courage and commitment to duty, they have earned our lasting respect and heartfelt appreciation, and I commend the Japanese American Korean War Veterans for making this special project a reality.

To all Japanese-Americans who served in the Korean War, we are forever indebted, and we realize that without their courage and heroism, the world would not be a better place. California and indeed, the entire nation, are profoundly grateful for the sacrifices made by our veterans, and this memorial wall a well-deserved tribute to them.

Gayle joins me in wishing you the very best for an outstanding initiation ceremony and every future success.

Sincerely,

Korean War Veterans and Families:

I write to extend my endorsement and support for a Japanese American Korean War Veterans Memorial. I believe these patriots are owed and deserve this acknowledgment of their dedication and service to our country.

I have been honored to be listed as an Honorary Co-Chairperson for this important memorial which will serve as a needed tribute for the sacrifices made by these veterans that traveled to a foreign land to defend democracy and American interests.

The best way to honor the memories of these soldiers is to share the story of the war and their bravery. This memorial would provide that recognition and opportunity for educating future generations about this page of America's history.

Thank you for allowing me to be involved in this worthy endeavor.

Sincerely,

Dear Japanese American Korean War Veterans :

It is a great honor to extend my congratulations to the Japanese American Korean War Veterans organization, on behalf of the Korean Consulate General in Los Angeles on the occasion of opening a memorial wall honoring 249 brave Japanese Americans who sacrificed their lives in the Korean War.

This memorial is meaningful insofar as it recognizes the noble sacrifices of the Japanese Americans in the Korean War unfolding to many Koreans for the first time that Japanese Americans selflessly fought for the freedom of Korea. To the rest of the world, the Korean War has been called the "Forgotten War" but we Koreans have never forgotten the terror instilled, the suffering endured, and the help rendered to us.

Although the war cost the lives of more than 5 million people and completely devastated Korea, Korea has made great achievements both in democracy and economy. Without the sacrifice from our allies, including the 249 deceased Japanese Americans, it is truly hard to imagine developed Korea of today.

Taking this opportunity, I would like to express my utmost thanks to Mr. Robert M. Wada, President of the Japanese American Korean War Veterans organization and all of its members for their dedication in serving in the name of freedom and democracy world wide.

Sincerely,

Dear Robert:

Thank you for including me in this most special event -- the first Japanese American Korean War Veterans Reunion and Memorial Wall Dedication Ceremony.

As a veteran of the Navy, I share your enthusiasm and intense patriotism to the United States of America and I am pleased that you have chosen to honor the men and women of Japanese ancestry who gave their lives or are still listed as missing in the Korean War with the creation of a memorial wall.

It is especially fitting that you would take this opportunity to honor Hershey Miyamura. Being the only living Japanese American Medal of Honor recipient, Mr. Miyamura is a symbol of courage and sacrifice on behalf of our great Country.

Julie and I send our best wishes for a very memorable evening.

Dear Friends:

Congratulations on the completion of the Japanese American Korean War Veterans memorial! As a veteran of the Korean War, I would like to extend my gratitude to all those who have contributed their time, effort and resources to making this memorial a reality

This important project will go a long way toward ensuring that the sacrifices of those who gave their lives in the service of this great Nation are remembered and honored. The example of the 246 Japanese Americans who lost their lives in Korea stands as a testament to our community's devotion to this country and to the cause of freedom. Your dedication to building this memorial is a fitting tribute to their sacrifice and their heroism.

Dear Veterans, Non-veterans, Families and Friends,

It is indeed an honor and a great privilege on behalf of the Japanese American Korean War Veterans and the Memorial Committee to welcome everyone to our first ever Japanese American Korean War Veterans Memorial Weekender.

In just nine short months, we have attained our initial goal of $150,000 to assure us of the construction of our proposed memorial wall honoring over 247 Japanese Americans who gave their lives in the service of their country in Korea during the war from 1950 to 1953.

The fund raising is not over for us, as we must still fund other tributes and memorials in other areas of the United States. Additional funds are needed to finance a replica half scale memorial wall that will be displayed at museums, historical societies and other educational locations throughout the country. Plans include the display of the replica with a CD-Rom computered kiosk containing personal histories and stories of the Japanese American participation in the Korean War.

We thank everyone who has shown an interest in our organization and especially thank each of the donors who have made this memorial wall a reality.

To forget those who never returned from the war in Korea would be a dishonor, but to remember them through this memorial wall will be everlasting.

With our deepest gratitude,

Greetings to you all. As Chair of our Japanese American Korean War Veterans' 1997 Memorial Day Weekend, I want to thank all of you for attending our functions. I also want to thank all of the many committees and their chairs and the many volunteers for their tremendous effort, initiative and cooperation in making this weekend what it became. The committee members were so enthusiastic that they would immediately volunteer and no task was insurmountable. If something wasn't done or something was slipping through the cracks, they would volunteer to help. If they didn't know, you just needed to point them in the right direction. It was unbelievable. I cannot tell you how much pleasure it has been for me. The culmination of all of our effort is this great day. Finally, after nearly forty-four years since the end of the Korean War, we are able to memorialize those Japanese Americans who gave the ultimate sacrifice for their country. Our dream has been fulfilled by all of you.

It is important to know that the Japanese American KIA's and MIA's died at a rate of 3.2 times greater than the rate of the general populace of the United States. Our community again gave our elite, young men to our country at a rate higher than the rest of America. Some of these men were even incarcerated behind barbed wire fences, with armed guards, during World War II, in what was then called, euphemistically, Relocation Camps, solely because of their ancestry. No one can ever question our loyalty again..

Unknown to most, even to those who fought in the Korean War, this war changed the course of history. The Soviet Union, with its ally Peoples Republic of China, was implementing its grand plan of testing the resolve of the United States to defend its allies. What better way than to use the North Koreans to test this resolve by having them invade South Korea, which they knew was so ill prepared to defend itself. Had the United States not gone to South Korea to stop the onslaught, next would have been Japan, then Taiwan, Philippines, Southeast Asia and on to other countries.

The debt that we owe to the men on our Memorial and to the other American soldiers who died in the Korean War is immense. Because of their sacrifice, we were able to live the kind of life that we did. Every remaining day of our life is a gift that we received. Thank you, guys.

Gratefully,
Minoru Tonai

THE JAPANESE AMERICAN KOREAN WAR VETERANS STORY

by President Robert M. Wada

For years I dreamt about bringing the Japanese American Korean War veterans together and perhaps someday build a memorial to honor those who gave their lives in Korea during the war. Apparently Min Tonai had a similar dream. One day in November of 1995, he called me to ignite the spark. I didn't know who he was at the time so when I asked him how we would get permission to place the memorial on the grounds of the JACCC, he emphatically assured me there would be no problem for the site. I thought to myself, "Who the heck is this overconfident guy anyway?"

Our purpose in such a venture was quite simple, deemed to be very necessary, and long overdue. Over the past years, the Korean War was being forgotten by our nation and even by our Japanese American community. It had been overshadowed by the exploits of the 100th/442nd/MIS and the Vietnam War.

Believe me, I am the first to agree, they certainly had their heroes, but we too had ours in Korea. There were individual heroics by men such as Congressional Medal of Honor recipient Hiroshi "Hershey" Miyamura; Distinguished Service Cross recipients Edward M. Ishibashi, Robert S. Kobashigawa, Fumio Moriyama, Wataru Nakamura, and Ichiro R. Miyasaki, who were all killed in action; Retired Colonel Dusty Toshio Aoyagi who was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross as an enlisted man or the untold story of Noboru Nakamura who saw a grenade coming towards him and his friend John Iwamoto. Nakamura is purported to have caught the grenade in his chest, taking the full blast and saving the life of Iwamoto. An untold story which should have surely been Medal of Honor material.

There were probably many other DSC's as well as other decorations for heroism awarded to Americans of Japanese ancestry during the Korean War. For example, Colonel John Juji Hada who received the highest decoration of the Republic of Korea, and it was personally presented to him by South Korea's President Syngman Rhee.

In Hada's recent letter referring to those who died in the war, he is quoted as saying, "We do not know the dignity of their birth, but we do know the glory of their death. They died unquestioning, uncomplaining, with faith in their hearts and on their lips, the hope that we would go on to victory."

If heroism is measured by the sacrifice of life, then our true heroes of the Korean War are those who have their names etched on this dream come true Japanese American Korean War Memorial Wall which we are dedicating today.

Someone once said, "War is hell." The men listed on our new Memorial Wall never had the chance to make the comparison between war and hell. They did, however, see the war and paid the supreme price.

We must always remember that they all died so young and so far away from their homes and their loved ones. In death, they were alone without being comforted by their mother, their father, their wife, or without being able to say goodbye for the last time to their relatives and friends. In the minds and hearts of their families, relatives, and friends are the etched pictures of only young boys. Those memories will always remain that of a very young boy, never ever a memory of him growing old.

By dying they never had the opportunity to return home to enjoy the thrill of parenthood or to ever hear the word "grandpa." They never had the chance to grow old with us and suffer arthritis pains, sore backs, greying hair, losing their hearing, and all those good things that come with growing old.

It should give all of us here today, a reason to appreciate what we have and give our thanks to each of those who are listed on our Memorial Wall for their supreme sacrifice.

What hands of fate guide our destiny and the future of our lives? We all live with different religions, faiths, and beliefs. We go about our daily lives sharing our happy moments, experiencing sad moments and trusting our lives to the powers that may be. For many of those who served during the Korean War era, they willingly offered their lives for our country and for people of another country they never knew. But whether by fate, the hand of God or for whatever reason, many never had to go to Korea; others did go, but were part of the vital support troops and yet many others fought or died without hesitating to show their courage, honor, and pride as an American of Japanese ancestry. For these reasons, we have to consider all those who served during this era, regardless of where they served, as Korean War veterans.

Many of the men whose names are engraved on the Memorial Wall were killed in the very early days of the war. Some died just days after arriving and yet others died just days before they were to return home.

I read a letter from one of the men who died in which he writes home and tells his family not to send him anything because he is scheduled for rotation home very soon. Can you imagine the devastating feeling the family experienced when first they received that happy letter and shortly thereafter receive a telegram from the President of the United States informing the family, we regret to inform you but your son, husband, or brother is not returning home after all.

JAKWV Memorial Committee

I believe it is for those reasons that I have worked so hard to make my dream become a reality. It has taken a lot of time, effort, and hard work on the part of everyone on the Memorial Committee and the Regional Coordinators. It is truly a gratifying feeling for them and for myself to finally have our dream come true. To accomplish it in such a short period of time was even more astounding, and it is something everyone here today can be very proud of.

The Memorial Committee hopes with this Memorial Wall that no one will ever forget there was a Korean War. We don't want anyone to ever forget the sacrifice and the price paid by those whose names are etched on our memorial and the heartache and the loneliness suffered by their families. For those of Japanese ancestry without Japanese surnames who may not be listed, we also pay special tribute to them and equally dedicate this memorial in their honor.

The 246 names on this Memorial Wall will not only be a constant reminder for our future generations of the price that was paid by all Americans of Japanese Ancestry, but deep down in my heart it will be a special memorial and an everlasting tribute to all of the 33,629 Americans who died for the defense and the freedom of South Korea.

Exclusive Fraternity of Honor
THE CHOSIN FEW
NOVEMBER -- 1950 -- DECEMBER

Whatever we were in that frozen long-ago and whatever we are now, we are bound as one for life in an exclusive fraternity of honor. The only way into our ranks is to have paid the dues of duty, sacrifice and valor by being there. The cost of joining, in short, is beyond all earthly wealth.

March 1, 1997

EXCERPTS TAKEN FROM THE KEYNOTE ADDRESS BY PRESIDENT ROBERT M. WADA AT THE 47TH ANNUAL NISEI VFW REUNION
HOSTED BY THE SAN FERNANDO VALLEY NISEI VFW POST 4140
ON FEBRUARY 15, 1997

San Fernando Valley Nisei VFW Post 4140*

When I first began organizing this incredible group, at about the 3rd or 4th meeting, I opened with the statement, "Before I begin this meeting, I just want you all to know, I'm the first to admit that the Marines did not win the war in Korea by themselves." I got them so mad, look at what this incredible group did. With the help of our Fund Raising Committee and the Regional Coordinators, we have reached our initial goal of $150,000 for the memorial in just 9 short months. I've had great support, but in return, a lot of name calling and cat calls!!! We still have a ways to go for other planned tributes and memorials, so we are still continuing with our fund raising.

But on the more serious side, there has always been something very unique happening with the Americans of Japanese ancestry during each of our generations.

For the first generation Issei, it was their foresight and just plain guts to come to a strange new country called America, start a new life, a family, and ultimately take their place in the history of our nation.

Then in the next generation, Pearl Harbor and the beginning of WWII. The second generation older Nisei had to prove the loyalty of the Japanese Americans through their heroic efforts with the 100th/442nd and the MIS in Europe and the South Pacific. They did this even while their families were interned and deprived of their constitutional rights as American citizens.

After the WWII Nisei, came the generation of the too young for WWII Niseis and Sanseis who got their opportunity to answer the call to arms and again prove the loyalty and the bravery of the Americans of Japanese ancestry; only this time in the Korean War or known at that time as a "Police Action."

A full generation later, the Sanseis and perhaps Yonseis got their chance to show our community and our nation that they too were as loyal and as brave as their predecessors. Their opportunity came by way of the very costly and extremely controversial Vietnam War. If there were any Sansei draft dodgers who skipped to Canada during that period, I sure didn't hear about them.

Now generations later, we see the Japanese Americans serving in Panama, Grenada, Desert Storm, and other areas of conflict. We are extremely proud of all Japanese Americans who served in our armed forces in war and during peacetime. But most important of all, we must always remember and pay special tribute to those who gave their lives to help us prove to our nation that we belong and that we have earned the right to live freely as Americans.

The term "Forgotten War" has a special ugly connotation for myself and for many Japanese American Korean War era veterans. We should not allow anyone to ever forget the war or forget those who died. It is our obligation to perpetuate their memory. I lost my home town Mexican-American friend, Bob Madrid, who I had known since kindergarten and it was I who asked him to join the Marines with me. Just a few hours before his death, God gave us a miraculous opportunity to visit for the last time. God brought us together to give Madrid his last touch of home. Bob's death has left an indelible ache in my heart for him and for all the young men who made the supreme sacrifice in Korea or in any war for that matter.

47th Annual Nisei VFW Reunion*

We must remember that they all died so young and so far away from their homes and their loved ones. In death, they were alone without being comforted by their mother, their father, or without being able to say goodbye for the last time to their relatives and friends. They never had the opportunity to experience the enjoyment of parenthood or ever hearing the word "Grandpa." Without question, we, the survivors, are the lucky ones and we owe it to our KIA's and MIA's that they are never ever forgotten.

It is hard to visualize the older men and women around us today who served their country as very young men and women. It is hard to visualize them under strenuous training conditions and, in many cases, combat conditions with their now ever-so-common bad backs, arthritic conditions, being frail in stature, and pot bellies. We must always remember that those who died so young shall forever remain as young men; never having the chance to have a bad back or grow old with us.

I became involved in the JAKWV organization because we Japanese American Korean War era veterans all served together but under very different circumstances than our World War II predecessors. Our families were not living in internment camps and we, therefore, had nothing to prove and no obligation to serve whatsoever unless, of course, we were drafted. When the Korean War started, many of us still went ahead and volunteered to serve our country for our own various personal reasons.

Throughout the years, the Korean War veterans and the Japanese Americans who served all over the world have generally been ignored by the public, the press, and even the Japanese American community. We were forgotten partly because of the continuing publicity surrounding the heroic stories and unique history of the 100th Bn., the 442nd RCT and M.I.S. during WWI, I and the many stories from the very controversial Vietnam War.

But to the Korean War veteran, the war was just as real and as deadly as World War II and Vietnam, and it is time to recognize the war and pay an everlasting tribute to those who gave their lives. We must fulfill our obligation to them and to their surviving families.

The Nisei of WWII served with the pride and honor instilled in their minds and hearts by their Issei parents. With the same pride and honor, the Korean War era Japanese Americans also proved themselves, but did it under different circumstances. They did it on an individual basis in separate integrated units of the Army, Navy, and the Air Force. Yes, even the Marines. Taking nothing away from the 100th, 442nd, or the M.I.S., the Japanese Americans of the Korean War still proved that the Japanese Americans were loyal and were still good brave soldiers. They did it without the confidence of belonging to a segregated unit where bravery and confidence of support from your comrades was prompted by the parental guidance of not bringing shame in front of your brothers, cousins, or friends.

The Korean War veterans were also faced with their own unique situation and adverse condition of "looking like the enemy." There are many stories that can be told by Korean War veterans who faced serious life threatening situations such as the well known and documented story of the experience of Roy Shiraga.

History will never know what an all Japanese American unit would have or could have done in Korea. There were individual heroics by men such as Congressional Medal of Honor recipient Hiroshi "Hershey" Miyamura; Distinguished Service Cross recipients Edward M. Ishibashi, Robert S. Kobashigawa, Fumio Moriyama, Wataru Nakamura, and Ichiro Miyasaki, who were all killed in action; Retired Colonel Dusty Toshio Aoyagi who was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross as an enlisted man, or the untold story of Noboru Nakamura who saw a grenade coming towards him and his friend John Iwamoto. Nakamura is purported to have caught the grenade in his chest, taking the full blast and saving the life of Iwamoto. An untold story which should have been Medal of Honor material.

There were probably many other DSC's as well as many other decorations for heroism awarded to Americans of Japanese ancestry during the Korean War; for example, Colonel John Juji Hada who received the highest decoration of the Republic of Korea presented personally by President Syngman Rhee.

In Hada's recent letter referring to those who died in the war, he is quoted as saying, "We do not know the dignity of their birth, but we do know the glory of their death. They died unquestioning, uncomplaining, with faith in their hearts and on their lips, the hope that we would go on to victory."

Again, the Korean War was unique for the Japanese Americans. Not like WWII when the Navy, the Air Force, and especially the Marines were very restrictive when it came to accepting enlistments from the Nisei. In the Korean War, the Japanese American community was well represented by servicemen like Lt. Commander Harvey Kitaoka who as a naval aviator flew 81 missions from the Carrier Princeton over North Korea and the Yalu River. The Air Force had its fighter pilot, Ray Ito, who flew missions over Korea and ironically survived combat missions but was killed in an air accident in Korea. There were many other Air Force personnel, officers, and pilots. And we must not forget the many former members of the 100th/442nd/MIS who remained in the service and served in Korea. Louis Hirata, who was killed early in the Korean War, was a former member of the 442nd. Medal of Honor recipient Hershey Miyamura served with the 442nd before going to Korea. Many of these Japanese American career soldiers went on to attain the ranks of Lt. Colonel and Colonel.

The MIS story didn't end with WWII either. When the Korean War began, hundreds of Japanese Americans in the MIS were sent to Korea as interpreters. Just look at our rosters and backgrounds of many of the Korean War veterans. They were some of the first troops into the war. Many were trapped at the Port of Pusan, which was our last piece of real estate held in the early part of the war. Many of the Japanese Americans in the MIS were taken prisoner by the North Koreans.

The stories of individual heroism and sacrifices by the Japanese American Korean War veterans proves their loyalty and perhaps as a cohesive unit they too could have made the Japanese American community very proud of those who served in the Korean War.

The Japanese American Korean War Veterans organization is not a matter of heroics or personal glorification. It is a matter of preserving the history and background of all Japanese Americans who served and to perpetuate the memory of those who never returned to live a full life, raise a family, and leave treasured memories for their children and grandchildren.

We must never forget those who made the supreme sacrifice, regardless of which war or conflict. All those young men who died shared the same fate. They lost their lives at such a young age and the memories of them held by their families and friends will always remain as young boys. Never the memory of a husband, father, or grandpa.

The Japanese American Korean War Veterans organization recognizes a Korean War veteran as a person who offered his life for his country and served all over the world. He willingly served wherever his Commander in Chief, the President of the United States, needed his presence.

Again, we thank the San Fernando Post for giving us this tremendous honor and opportunity to remind everyone...yes, there was a Korean War. The Japanese American community can be proud of those who served during the Korean War, and the 246 who died shall be remembered forever on our new Japanese American Korean War Memorial Wall.

THE NISEI LEGEND OF THE KOREAN WAR

HIROSHI "HERSHEY" MIYAMURA

CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR

Every war has its heroes and the Korean War was no exception. The most famous Japanese American of the Korean War, Hiroshi "Hershey" Miyamura began his life as the son of an immigrant coal mine worker in Gallup, New Mexico.

He grew up in a family so typical for the Nisei before World War II. In 1944 Hershey entered the U.S. Army and served a short term with the Nisei 442nd Regimental Combat Team just in time to return to Washington, D.C. for the ticker tape parade down Pennsylvania Avenue.

Returning to Gallup, New Mexico, Hershey reenlisted in the Army Reserve Corps. It was then that he married Terry Tsuchimori in 1948.

At the outbreak of the Korean War, Hershey soon found himself in Korea with the 3rd Division all the way north to the Yalu River. The Chinese then entered the war and Hershey soon found himself pushed back to Pusan.

Reversing the role and pushing the Chinese north beyond the South Korean Capital of Seoul, Hershey found himself in the thick of battle with the Chinese forces that had crossed the river below his perimeter. Outnumbered, Sgt. Miyamura who was the squad leader for the machine gun crew, ordered his men to retreat to the rear while he alone kept the enemy busy with his arsenal of machine gun, rifle and a couple of cases of hand grenades. He, himself had to abandon his position when they began dropping phosphorous bombs on him.

By now, the Chinese soldiers had his position surrounded and Hershey found himself face to face with the enemy. The two Asian soldiers squared off, recognizing each other as the enemy by their uniforms. Miyamura had prepared himself by fixing the bayonet onto his rifle and he attacked the other soldier who had a concussion grenade. When Hershey withdrew his bayonet from the other man's body, he fell flat on his back and at the same time, the enemy grenade hit his leg. Hershey immediately kicked it away but when it exploded, a piece of shrapnel became embedded in his body. Now wounded, Hershey struggled to get away from the enemy, but he could not. He decided to play possum and laid there hoping the enemy troops would leave him for dead. About an hour later at daybreak, someone spoke to him in English, "Get up! You are my prisoner. We have a lenient policy for our prisoners." Sgt. Miyamura was now a prisoner of war.

For nearly two and a half years, Hershey suffered in the prisoner of war camp coping with dysentery and malnutrition. Malnutrition caused his hair to fall out in huge clumps and night blindness was another symptom caused by the lack of a proper diet.

Hershey was among the last groups to be released from the camp. On August 21, 1953, his group was placed on a truck which took them to the train station for the long awaited trip to Freedom Village located in Panmunjom, Korea.

At Freedom Village, after lengthy debriefing sessions and being checked physically, Hershey was informed of his being awarded the nation's highest award for bravery, the Medal of Honor. The Pentagon had known about his brave deeds in saving his squad while single-handedly fighting off the enemy until he was forced to retreat, and knew that his retreat came only after killing more than 50 Chinese soldiers. However, they did not disclose his actions for fear of retaliation while Hershey was being held as a prisoner of war.

Upon his return to the United States, Hershey was formally presented the Medal of Honor by then President Dwight David Eisenhower in October of 1953. The ceremony took place at the White House with Hershey's family, including his father, witnessing the impressive ceremony.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE SERVICE (MIS) PLAYED MAJOR ROLE AT ONSET OF THE KOREAN WAR

The MIS story didn't end with WWII. When the Korean War began, hundreds of Japanese Americans in the MIS were sent to Korea as interpreters.

The lack of trained American soldiers in the Korean language and the knowledge that the Korean people were fluent in the Japanese language prompted the U.S. Army to send hundreds of Japanese Americans to Korea immediately. They were some of the first troops into the war. Many were trapped at the Port of Pusan, which was the last city and area held in the early part of the war.

Many of the Japanese Americans in the MIS were killed in action, while others were taken prisoner by the North Koreans. Some died in prison camps and others suffered permanent disabilities as a result of their captivity as prisoners of war.

MASH Hospital-First Dialysis Machine

Dr. Benjamin Uyeno's Tour of Duty in Korea

My first contact with Korea was at Pusan in March 1953, and then to my permanent duty station at the 48th MASH (Mobile Army Surgical Hospital) just a few miles north of Seoul and near Panmunjon. As a non surgeon my duties were that of a triage officer delegated to see all admitting casualties and determine disposition. I soon was trained to operate the only kidney machine known as the Klopff model and to care for G.I.'s in kidney failure. From Middle of 1953 our men were affected with a serious illness very similar to our modern E-coli virus causing a hemorrhage with viral illness that was life threatening. Since one phase of this disease had to do with kidney failure our MASH was assigned the task of caring for all those who contracted this plague. When we had to use the kidney machine it was premature ancient model known as the Klopff model. This was the machine I was showing Major General George Armstrong when he came to inspect our MASH on occasion of his inspection when he became our new Surgeon General of the 8th Army.

During the last 8-10 months of my tour in Korea, the MASH allowed me to have a Korean clinic where I saw between 100-110 patients daily. The army paid for all the meds and the help I needed to care for them.

My tour in Korea was a fascinating and rewarding period and I would not change it for any other time of my life.

Congratulations to the Japanese American Korean War Veterans for a job well done. It appropriately stands along side of the Japanese American Vietnam War Memorial as a grim reminder of the supreme sacrifices made by their fellow comrades. The message given by these Memorial Walls are that "we must never allow our War Dead to be forgotten." They are the true Heroes.

Americans of Japanese Ancestry War Memorial Coalition joins a grateful community in saluting the Japanese American Korean War Veterans for not compromising in honoring their war dead on their Memorial Wall.

KIA, MIA Korean War Vets to Be Remembered at May 24 Event

Had he lived, he would be 76 years old this year. But PFC Wataru Nakamura isn't here. The clean-cut 30-year-old was killed in action in Korea on May 18, 1951.

While he may be gone, he, along with 247 Japanese Americans killed or missing in action from the Korean War, will be remembered during a ceremony on Saturday, May 24.

The ceremony will include a memorial wall dedication in the Veterans Court of the Japanese American Cultural and Community Center, located at 244 S. San Pedro in Little Tokyo.

Nakamura, born in Los Angeles in 1921, attended Jefferson High School. He and his family—parents, three brothers and two sisters—were interned in Rohwer, Arkansas, during World War II.

Nakamura served with the famed 442nd Regimental Combat Team in Europe, and after his discharge, settled in Chicago. He was in the Army Reserve when the Korean conflict broke out in June 1950. His reserve unit was activated, and he was eventually assigned to the 38th Infantry Regiment of the Second Division in Korea.

Near P'ungch'on on the night of May 17, 1951, Nakamura's unit sustained a vicious attack which neutralized communications between the First Platoon and the Company I command post.

A citation on his posthumous

Wataru Nakamura

Distinguished Service Cross reads:

"... At approximately 0430 hours on 18 May, with intermittent rain and fog increasing the darkness of early morning, Private Nakamura volunteered to check and repair the damaged line, and unaware that the enemy had infiltrated and captured heavily-fortified friendly positions, moved forward until he came under a withering hail of hostile fire.

"Disregarding his own safety, he made a one-man assault, silencing a machine gun and its crew with his carbine and bayonet and destroying two enemy positions with grenades, but when his ammunition was expended, he was forced to withdraw in the face of overwhelming odds.

"After falling back, Private Nakamura met a carrying party, briefed the officer in charge and replenishing his ammunition, returned to engage the hostile force. Supported by rifle fire, he wiped out an enemy position and attacked the remaining bunker, killing one and wounding another enemy soldier before he was mortally wounded by grenade fire."

The citation goes on to state, "Private Nakamura's intrepid actions and consummate devotion to duty reflect the highest credit on himself and uphold the honored traditions of the military service."

His remains are interred at Evergreen Cemetery.

Robert M. Wada, president of the Japanese American Korean War Veterans which organized the fund drive for the memorial, stated, "How sad to realize that these Japanese American comrades, along with the many non-Japanese KIAs and MIAs, never had the chance to ever have children of their own. Each young man died without the benefit of being held or comforted by his parents or family in death. They died alone in battle so far away, and it is our obligation to see that they are no longer alone and will never, ever be forgotten."

The memorial dedication is part of a May 23 to 26 weekend full of events, including a golf tournament and banquet. For more information, contact Wada at (714) 992-5461.

Devotion of a Sister

Arthur Okamura

This is the story of Natsuko Okamura, a sister whose love and devotion was shown by her many letters sent to her brother Arthur in Korea long after his death.

When Arthur's company, A Company, 5th Regimental Combat Team, was assaulting enemy held hill bunkers on October 14, 1951, the company's assault was halted by heavy bursts of enemy machine gun fire. While the unit was pinned down, Pfc. Arthur Okamura discovered an enemy mine field in the path of his comrades. Without regard for his own safety, he exposed himself to the intense fire and began clearing the mine field.

Pfc. Okamura worked four hours under direct observation of the enemy and had cleared most of the area when one of the mines detonated and mortally wounded him. His heroic deed was directly responsible for saving his comrades' lives and inspired them to capture the hill.

Pfc. Arthur L. Okamura and his sister Natsuko wrote to each other almost weekly, as did his other friends, ever since Arthur had arrived in Korea. Both her returned unopened letters to Arthur and his letters to her reveal a heartwarming story. In the weeks following Arthur's death, Natsuko and her family were completely unaware of his death. Natsuko was not receiving any mail from Arthur so she began writing letters to him more often, even daily.

It was not until later when the family was officially notified of Arthur's death and Natsuko's unopened letters to Arthur were returned by the Army did she stop writing to her brother. Postmarks on the unopened letters to Arthur show dates almost daily for about a month after his death. Such love and devotion from a sister is a story that has no ending.

HIDEMARO ISHIDA

A Sister's Memories

Hidemaro was born the first of seven children, our father a Buddhist priest and mother a poetess and teacher of the Japanese Tea Ceremony. As the first born son, Hide held a very special place in our family.

Our parent's hopes, dreams, and aspirations for Hide are embodied in the name they gave to him, "Hide," which means "the rising sun," and indeed, like the sun, Hide was bright and sunny with a winning smile and outgoing personality.

From a young age, Hide felt responsible for the family, especially after our father was taken away by the FBI. The day after Japan bombed Pearl Harbor. We were told that he was being detained for "three days of questioning," but it was two long years before we saw him again. He was incarcerated as "internee of war." Hide, at age 9, became the "head of the family" and acted as interpreter for my mother and grandmother. The family was first sent to Sanforan and then to Topaz. From time to time, Hide would say, "Let's write to President Roosevelt and ask him to return Papa." We wrote many letters but received no response. We were finally reunited in February of 1944 at the internment camp in Crystal City, Texas.

During the camp years, Hide was active in sports and school activities. He served as student body president of our grammar school. After the war ended in August of 1945, our father was notified that he was on the deportation list. He requested a hearing, and Hide, now age 13, went with him to plead our case. He told the panel, "We are American citizens. This is our country. You can't send us to Japan. If you send our father to Japan, who will take care of the children? We need our father." We were granted release in April of 1946 and returned to California.

The postwar years were financially difficult. Hide worked during the summers as a gardener's helper or picking fruits on farms. He went to George Washington High School, making the All-City team in broad jump and playing for the YBA basketball team. Shortly after he started SF City College, the Korean War broke out. I'm going to prove that I'm just as American as anyone else.

He was stationed in Okinawa and served as gunner. After a close call on his 21st mission when the plane was forced down into enemy territory, Hide wrote me a letter saying that if anything happened to him, I was to tell our parents to use the insurance money the Air Force would pay them, for a down payment on land in the hot springs region, "onsen," which our parents enjoyed so much. This was the last time that we heard from him.

Postscript: I went to an Armed Services Family Update meeting in Oct. 1996 and received the enclosed case report. My brother Kaz and I submitted blood samples in response to their request to be used to do some DNA testing for identification of bone marrow remains received from the North Korean government.

The rifleman fights without promise of either reward or relief. Behind every river there's another hill — and behind that hill, another river.

After weeks or months in the line only a wound can offer him the comfort of safety, shelter, and a bed.

Those who are left to fight, fight on, evading death but knowing that with each day of evasion they have exhausted one more chance for survival. Sooner or later, unless victory comes this chase must end on the litter or in the grave.
