QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT REDRESS PAYMENTS

1. Will my redress check be exempt from taxation?

All redress payments are exempt from federal taxation. State taxation is determined on a state-by-state basis. You should contact your state Department of Taxation to determine if your check is exempt from state taxes. Income earned on the check (such as bank interest) is taxable unless you place the check in a tax-free investment.

2. Will my redress check affect my eligibility for benefits (such as health and housing)?

Eligibility for most benefits is not affected by your redress payment. The following federally assisted benefits are not affected by your redress payment:

- Benefits under the supplementary security income program under title XVI of the Social Security Act.
- Old age, survivors, and disability insurance benefits under title II of the Social Security Act.
- Benefits under title XVIII of the Social Security Act.
- Aid to families with dependent children under a state plan approved under section 402(a) of the Social Security Act.

- Benefits under the special supplemental food program for women, infants and children established under section 17 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966.
