Dear friend Sue:

My humblest apologies for my neglected writing and answer.
Really had the best intentions of writing much sooner, but as usual late. At any rate, I really was happy to hear from you and am happy too to know you enjoy your job and responsibilities, and I must say 'tis a big one. Power to you, Dad, and when this is all over, you will have experienced something wonderful which I have never had. I guess home is a sweet place, but one can't always be there can she? Danory being gone will be a big boost for your father and which I guess as Chief Manager of the household, I'm certain, your pop won't have too many worries or responsibilities!
Isn't you happy about your big sister. I had the pleasure of meeting him and frankly I think this swell, anyway I see he is a gentleman, as much as your sister is a gentlewoman. It makes one happy to think they are so well matched.
She gave me a wedding picture which I think is "Super" which reminds me to thank you for your lovely picture too! I'm gazing at it just as is, for I think there need be no alteration on the frame, and you look very natural, with your "spark" of a personality.
Just as the time I received your letter I am now home again, and as usual came home unawares. He said he got cheated on his previous date so asked for another & much to his joy, got it. Stayed a week with me, and of course, Little Ginger was the "apple" of his eye.

I think he worships the ground she walks on for he said he came home, especially to see her. He calls for her yet, and I know she misses him as much as he does. Since she saw him leave on a plane, she always points to the sky to tell me he's over there. He isn't overseas yet, but somewhere on the East Coast, and I think he's very close to New York for he goes to New York City, very often to eat good old "Pie and the "stuff" which goes with it. I guess he'll appreciate my "super" Cooking now, don't you think?
I imagine Massachusetts is very beautiful now, for I've read about the state there, and since it's such a historical place, really, I'd like to visit there someday, I hope. I love Colorado for its grandeur of the mountains and its wide open spaces but there still isn't anything like a good visit to other parts of the U. S. I'm very sure you have seen a good part of the Country east of Colorado.
"Mather's" "putting" in her immense victory garden varieties, and tending to her grandchild, which she loves so much to do.
Ginger is, making grow and picture her helping her Grandma in her Victory Garden pulling out everything imaginable as kept mild. Oh, boy, two like that, one will drive me wild, I'm afraid! However, I don't mind having another one just like the one I have now. Guess it's the motherly instinct what do you think, whatever it is, I hope I have one before not too long. As for myself I'm still in the peak of health and actually getting to the point where I'm beginning to put on a little flesh.

 Maybe by the time I have my tenth one I shall be as big as an elephant! Ho! Ho!

Sue, Macker sends her best wishes to you with hopes you will always be healthy & well. I also send my best too, so until the next time ~

Adios friend,
 Yours friend,
 Chigo

Please excuse this horrible writing.
