

July 9

Dear Sue,

It's the Sunday after the test - so I feel free as a bird - with enough time to write a few letters. After tomorrow I can start worrying about the next test.

But, for now, I'm free! I spent most of the day catching up a bit on my sleep.

How are things at the

I kind of look forward to getting back. I miss the company and the kids at the office.

The other night two of the boys rented a car and took Fran and I
to see the Natural Bridge.
Maybe you've never heard of it - I never had but I guess it's supposed to be very well known.

It's just what the name implies - a natural bridge over a chasm formed by a stream. It's quite a wonderful sight. Sort of scares you you have any trouble with Nettie - especially while Alice was gone?

I wrote to Alice, too,
today.

I'm taking it for granted that you read the letter I sent to the office - so I won't go into detail again about what we are doing here. It's a lot of fun - and Deven is going to seem very dull in comparison, I'm afraid, but still

when you think of how many years &
millions of them - it took to form that.
and we worry and get upset over one day's events!

I wrote to Lt. Howell about my furlough, but I haven't heard from her yet. I should get back to camp July 27 & I want to leave on furlough the next day.
I think I'll need it
by then.

Don't let Alice take advantage of you - & say hello to Hoodie for me. Love, Florence
