

Air-Wacs Fly, Too

PVLT. ANABEL GOLDEN of Turley, Kan., former college student, is ready to take off for a flight over Denver with Lieut. James R. Tafferty, pilot of a training ship, and is telling Pvt. Margaret Toole of Evansville, Ind., she must await her turn.

Air-Wacs fly, too, at the AAF western technical training command's Lowry field, besides serving as meteorologists, plane dispatchers, aerial traffic policemen, radio mechanics, photographers, drivers, telegraphers, artists, draftsmen, chemical and laboratory technicians and as office personnel.

The army air force wants YOU, young lady, NOW! See your Denver recruiting office.
