

Clarification of the Registration Program

Because there exist certain misunderstandings in the minds of the people in this center concerning the present registration program, clarification of the situation is necessary.

Article 27 of the questionnaire is especially in need of clearing up. This question reads: "Are you willing to serve in the armed forces of the United States, wherever ordered?"

This question, as interpreted by Lieut. Ray McDaniels, in charge of the registration mission from Washington, need not be answered with either a flat "yes" or "no." There is an allowance for other remarks, such as: "Yes, if outside conditions change," or "Yes, but not now," "Yes, if I can join the air corps," and such answers will not be held against the person registering. This allowance the Army is allowing because it recognizes that individual circumstances may prevent an immediate enlistment.

Another point which should be cleared up is the question of the formation of a "voluntary nisei battalion." No one need volunteer if they feel that for any reason they should not. The Army feels that such a unique corps will draw favorable public attention upon the nisei as a body, and make our status in America a clearer, if not better, one.

Finally, project director Guy Robertson has stated that this registration program is in no way connected with the draft question, and emphasizes the point that as yet, there is no definite plan for a wholesale drafting of nisei manhood.

Relocation Officer Here for Interviews
