VIII. MANAGER'S NOTES

This morning, after the dust-settling rain, the city of Poston looked like Paradise by the brightness of the sunshine. We all felt like new beings.

The first complaint I received which made this sunny day cloudy was a complaint from the residents working in the Mess Hall. Many of them came to the office and said, "Yesterday's rain gave us extra work--too many places are leaking! Something should be done about it before we have any more showers like that." True, the kitchen surely looked messy after all the dirty water leaked through the many openings. A little later, more complaints were heard from the housewives, "The rain leaked through the doors and from under the windows, and the cold drafty air came up through the floors."

All of us in this camp, although we have sunshine today, are still asking desperately to have better living quarters to avoid sickness and unsanitary conditions. We have sunny days, so we would like to keep them that way.
