

Story of the Week: Tanforan's Sailboat

A feature from the Tanforan Totalizer is herewith reprinted as the Story of the Week:

Lake Tanforan's vast fleet of model sailboats has been a recreation feature unique among all the centers. And to this distinctive scene has now been added a comparatively mammoth vessel--a sailboat capable of carrying its skipper and 2 young passengers.

For a sailboat, it has a somewhat unorthodox look, being equipped with 2 outrigger-pontoons, which give it its amazing buoyancy. With a hull 8 ft. long, it has a single central mast 11 ft. high, carrying a sail with a spread of 28 sq. ft. It weighs less than 100 lbs. and is credited with a nominal cargo capacity of about 22 lbs. It has been christened "Mayflower."

Its builder and skipper is Hisaichi Tsugawa, who used to captain a fishing boat. Tsugawa, it seems, has always been an ingenious sailer. Once when his ship lost its rudder at sea, he steered it back to port with a raft attached to the stern.

In building his ship, Tsugawa hollowed out an old telephone pole for the hull and pontoons, taking 2 weeks for the job. The pole was so old he had to put on 5 coats of paint, besides stuffing it with 6 lbs. of putty. For the mast, he used a "2 by 4." The total cost of the materials for the boat was 12 dollars, including 5 dollars for paint, which was the highest quality enamel the dealer could supply.

Tsugawa has made a practice of ferrying kids across the lake, 2 at a time, and 75 of them have already made the trip. On one of these crossings, a commuter got shaky as the island in the middle of the lake loomed up before him, and he toppled into the lake. The captain, ever the last man to leave the ship, sat tight until the prow shot into the air, and then finding himself in the water, he shouldered the kids to the shore (the lake isn't very deep), dragging the ship behind him. So far, there have been only 3 such spills, but the captain craves for more. Dunkings like these, he says, stirs his sea fever.

About sailing on the lake, Skipper Tsugawa has this to say: "It's worth a million dollars to feel the wind tug at the sail. With no worries, there's happy sailing all the time."

No, the captain does not sleep on his ship. Mooring it to a special buoy, he goes home to 7-34.

NIGHT SHIFTS GET LUNCHES

As all mess halls are now closed between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m., night workers are being furnished pocket lunches, it was revealed today by Edward M. Paulsen, head of the Mess division.

The list of persons receiving lunches is to be approved by the section or division heads.

"It is hoped that requests for night lunches will be kept at a minimum as the kitchen crew has been overworked during the past month," Paulsen said.

Masako Kitano To Join Fiance

"I was extremely surprised to get my permit so soon and I'm happy about the whole thing," said Masako Kitano before she left yesterday to join her fiance, Pvt. F.C. Hiroshi Saito, at Camp Grant, Ill.

dr. flapdoodle, i presume we are glad to report that they have been takeda in a strait jacket in ward C..the authorities glanced at his "masterpiece" and acted quickly....

flapdoodle in the rockies an associated press dispatch last week told of joan vogel's win in the 300 meter event at the aau women's swimming meet held in eenah, wisconsin. then it added that a little japanese-american girl of hawaii, chieko miyamoto, had won the event in '40 and '41 and that she wanted to compete this year at the meet but that she was unable to arrange transportation to the states. we consulted our almanac and found out that chieko won last year with a mark that was 10 seconds better than that of miss vogel's.

flapdoodle has a baby ancient mariner catcher joe ishihawa pulled a real "casey at the bat" wednesday evening in the ancient mariner-unknown b hardball game held on england field. it was the last of the last ..the bases were loaded... two down..the count two and three on joe..the unknowns pitcher threw a wild pitch ..it was a mile high and a mile wide..so joe leaned way over and sort of waved at the ball with the bat.. and missed, naturally..... three strikes..joe sank to about four and a half inches and crawled away..tee, hee.

flapdoodle in an ironmask the san diego falcons quit the aa softball circuit last week....we can't figure it out..we can't believe that they quit just because they haven't been doing too well the last couple of weeks..that'd mean....no guts....there should be a better answer. we hear killer will play for the mutineers..in the a loop...nope, as far as we know, he will not pitch, but as you softball followers know, killer can hit and field darn well.

 PACEMAKER Building -- Phone: 63

Much excitement last week over the Blue and White mess dinner-dance because it was the first social to which the PACEMAKER staff was invited as a body. We say this knowing well that the ubiquitous office punster will say, 'As a body, huh? I always knew you needed a head!'

Counting sheep

We find Thursdays the hardest day to get any work done because from our window we see row upon row of cots set out for the regular weekly sanitation inspection.

Anything which suggests sleep, of course, short of sodium barbituric, being more than gratefully acted upon immediately.

Nota thing to wear

The Number One topic of the day here is relocation. We've never heard so many unfounded rumors about anything as we have about relocation since prohibition days when rumors were rife daily that our favorite speak had been knocked off.

What with no information available yet as to where we are going, we don't know exactly what to order from Sears, Roebuck and company for this winter. We'll probably find ourself battling our way through a blizzard in a relocation center wearing a pongee sport shirt and a pair of basketweave sandals.

Surrealism

The proposed magazines of both Manzanar and Tule Lake seem to have come to nothing; a fact which we regret exceedingly.

However, the Camp Harmony News Letter souvenir edition, running into 10 pages, seven of them pictorial, made up somewhat. It is as neat a mimeographed job as has come out of evacuation.

Living in Camp Harmony among the Dipper, the Fun House and other concessions must have given the whole thing a rather dream like atmosphere. We think that Salvador Dali would have felt very much at home.

Editorial

Await Authentic Information

The final process of evacuation, that is, the relocation of evacuees now in Santa Anita to a more permanent home for the duration, is now a reality.

We deplore, however, all the rumors which have been flying around during this week regarding the transfer. We say now, as we shall have occasion to stress in the days to come, that every bit of authentic information regarding relocation will come to you from two indisputable sources--and no other source purporting to "know all, see all, tell all," will be the authentic, official news.

The two sources of official news regarding transfer will be the official administrative bulletins issued over the name of the Center administrator, and the PACEMAKER, the official publication of Santa Anita.

From now till the Center is cleared of all evacuee residents, the PACEMAKER will appear as often as the occasion demands. So also will the administrative bulletins.

We cannot recall any case where the spreading of rumors had a salutary effect. On the contrary, the very opposite is true.

This is no treatise to prove the point: it is too obvious. You need only to remember the last rumor which you heard and your reaction to it, or your reaction to its being proved false, to know that rumors, like all wishful thinking, is no help in facing realities.

To repeat a rumor, which is tantamount to believing in it, only proves your gullibility.

To originate a rumor can be construed only as a deliberate attempt to cause unrest and confusion.
