Let us go "Inside" a privilege many people desired during the war. It could not be granted for according to the Geneva Convention, Internees of War are not to be considered as "objects of curiosity," only official personnel was allowed inside. A few who had necessary business, for example, drivers of trucks delivery supplies or equipment, were always escorted by a guard.

But now we will go in and see something of the homes, schools and hospital. We will see something of how these people lived, how they obtained their food and clothing and find out a little of their activities and recreation.
