

More Details of Tule Lake Shooting Announced

Additional details concerning the fatal wounding of Shichi James Okamoto, 30, former Heart Mountain resident, by a member of the military police at the Tule Lake segregation center last Wednesday was revealed here yesterday by a teletype sent from Dillon S. Myer, national WRA director.

According to the wire, Okamoto was driving a truck returning from the project farm to the center when he was stopped by the sentry outside the gate. As he approached, the sentry first struck him with the butt of a gun and then shot him at close range. Okamoto was taken to the center hospital Wednesday afternoon and died there Wednesday night.

The reason for the shooting is not clear as yet, Myer said. Army authorities at the center have arrested the sentry and are conducting an investigation.

There is no sign of a disturbance in the evacuee community at Tule Lake, Myer added.

Additional facts will be released as they become available.

Special "Back" Gates to be Used by Hikers

To conform with instructions received from the Washington WRA office, records of residents departing and returning from the center to hike in the project area will be kept by means of three special "back" gates, starting Thursday, it was announced by George D. Deihl, statistician.

The gates have been constructed on the south, west and north ends of the center area and persons departing are requested to pass through the gates, leaving their names and addresses with the clerk who will be at each station from 7:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Red identification buttons will be issued to each individual hiker upon departure and they must be checked in when the person returns.

Residents who plan to leave before the clerks are present in the morning are asked to get their red buttons on the previous day. Those who return to the center after the clerks are gone in the evening are to turn in their buttons on the following morning to the statistics division in the administration building.

It was emphasized by Deihl that the reason for the new procedure is not to limit the movement of the residents but to provide a constant check on where residents are at all times in case of emergency and for a check whenever a person becomes lost. Another reason for the ruling, he pointed out, was for the purpose of public relations.

Agriculture workers of the project farm will still use work passes, which will be turned in each morning at the main or "back" gates for red buttons.

A change in the use of authorization passes will also be effective Thursday, according to Deihl. Hereafter, the passes will be turned in at the main gate in return for blue identification buttons which are to be presented when the evacuee returns to the center.

Unfilled Seasonal Job Offers to be Withdrawn

Residents planning to go out on seasonal leave should register at the outside employment office as unfilled job offers will be withdrawn for recruitment in other centers, Joe Carroll, relocation officer, announced.

Orders have been received for approximately 500 men, mostly for cannery and agricultural work in Utah and Idaho. Men are also needed in Montana, Wyoming, Oregon, Washington and Colorado. Raleigh Serle, Julius Quintana and John Phelps, War Foods Administration recruiters, may be contacted at the outside employment office.

Foreign Bonds and Property Must be Reported

Residents owning any foreign bonds, regardless of value, payable in U. S. dollars or foreign property of any kind with a value of $10,000 or more must file a report on form TFR-500 not later than June 15 at the project attorney's office, it was announced by Donald T.
