

Yoko Watanabe
Sociology

May 12, 1944

2) The ideals set up by the founders of this democracy are threatened more at the present time than ever before in the history of the country.

We all know that America has stood for democracy. America the land of freedom, invited the Pilgrims here in order that they would be free from oppression.

In the later part of our history immigrants left their mother-country to come over to this land of freedom. This land where even the poor men could start life anew, with almost the equal chances as the rich.

This country has always stood with the principle that "all men are created equal." In any war that she has fought it is said that she has fought for these democratic principles.

At the present time it is said that she is fighting for the same principles but mean-while within the country there are race discriminations right after another.

What this country is fighting for is being torn down by some race prejudiced people of this country.