

Democracy is threatened by the present war between United States and Japan. The United States is fighting for democracy which they think is right and Japan with a altogether different system of government is fighting for what they think is right.

I cannot say which one is right, but I think that some Americans are forgetting the code of democracy. We as Japanese has never been given equal rights in this democratic country because of discrimination. Negroes which were brought over as slaves against their wills are still being treated as slaves.

Indians who really own these lands are put on reservations and not given equal rights.
If that is democracy I would not have any of it.

Now at the present, people are forgetting more the meaning of democracy. Now with the country in a prowar race discrimination is increasing.
Even the Nisei, which pledge loyalty to the United States are still being discriminated. If this keeps on the people of the United States will lose all sense of democracy.
