Evacuee Future to Be Discussed

Chicago Conference Postponed; Hunt Will Send Delegates

With a need for more time to develop further plans for the meeting of evacuee representatives with the WRA, the conference which was to have been held sometime during the latter part of this month or the first part of February in Chicago has been postponed by WRA.

The Relocation Planning Commission at its regular meeting last Thursday afternon decided to postpone the selection of the two representatives from this center who will attend the conference, to be held at a later date, until after the election of the Community Council.

Council.

Of the several methods suggested for the selection of these representatives, the Commission tentatively agreed upon these two methods:

1. Selection of one member from the Community Council and one member from the comunity-atlarge;

2. The selection of one issue from each property of the selection of the community and commission of the selection of th issei and one nisei from each block, making a total of 70 candidates in all, and a vote by the entire center to select two persons from the 70 to represent the com-

"In any event, those two per-sons selected must be truly rep-resentatives of the residents," Dick Kanaya, member of the Com-mission said.

Since the WRA made no provision for expenses which will be entailed by the delegates, the Commission decided to put the monetary issue up to the Council for its decision in this matter. The Commission felt that since the Council must of necessity be representative of the nearly such resentative of the people, such matters should be decided by the Council.

Edward Berman, relocation of-ficer at Pocatello, spoke on the necessity of family relocation at hecessity of family relocation at this meeting. Berman has been assisting the Relocation Division here for the past month in its work and will remain here for about two weeks.

"I believe that for the sake of the children, the parents must make the necessary sacrifices in going to strange areas to lead normal lives again. In every case where the issel have gone out, the children were able to lead a normal existence," he said.

'The announcement by the War Department that nisei are to be inducted into the Army through the selective service system marks another significant step forward for American citizens of Japanese descent. On Equal Footing

"No loyal citizen of the United States should be denied the right to exercise the responsibilities of his citizenship, regardless of his ancestry," wrote the President in February

And on January 20, of this year, almost a year later, the War Department made an announcement which erased forever the stigma of doubt and disloyalty on American citizens of Japanese descent in the United States by restoring the privileges and responsibilities of their citizenship through the reinstitution of selective service.

This action demonstrates beyond a shadow of a doubt, what the responsible people of the government think concerning the nisei, and his loyalty to the United States.

The acceptance of the nisei through the draft and his induction into the United States army through the normal channels undergone by any other John Doe, American, prove that America's faith in the nisei has been fully restored, and all our labors, our protestations of loyalty to this country, our faith have been not in vain.

In our daily lives, this War Department announcement will aid us. We shall be able to look at other Americans eye to eye without any qualms of inequality. We are now about circumstances in these cenlike other Americans whose services will be accepted by our country without question, without discrimination.

Nor must we forget the part played by our volunteers for the Combat Unit, from the mainland and from Hawaii, who paved the way for the final decision concerning selective

Their meritorious deeds on the field of battle, and the excellent showing made by those who are still in training drove home the fact that the nisei were willing to shoulder their share of the responsibility as loyal citizens, the burdens gates.

The reinstitution of selective service for citizens of Japanese descent will muzzle the West Coast race-baiters who have been cluttering up the home front by attempting to besmirch and question the loyalty of all persons of Japanese ancestry, no matter how remote the connection with the empire of Japan.

Our work is not finished by a long shot by this new status under selective service. Indeed, we must never relax our vigilance in remaining true and loyal American citizens.

Yes, we are now really Americans in every sense of the word, but with every privilege there is attached a duty which must be performed.

We have measured up well during our unusual interlude behind barbed wire fences the past two years.

The yardstick is being held up again for us, as it is being held for any other American regardless of race, creed or a valuable experience to me. I think that in a way evacuation gave me a chance to get out of a rut and try new pastures. The many experiences I had in camp will remain in my mind forever will remain in my mind forever. Tom and Junior are also here and they often talk of their experiences and how it affected them. All of us agree that the positions we were able to hold have given us a feeling of self confidence and have given us valuable experience in dealing with othrs. Our work also gave us the opportunity to accept responsibilities and gave us a chance to eel our wings regarding the directing the labor of others. Tom and Junior are now working

My brother is working at a garage lubricating, washing and parking cars. I came here as an Order Dep't. manager for a Co-operative store. After three months the Board of Directors closed the department because of lack of personnel and transportation facilities. Since September 1 I have been Gro-cery Dep't. manager. Before workery Dept. manager. Serore work-ing here, I had pictured Co-opera-tive stores as a small store on a side street, barely getting along, but this store amazes me. The store is located in the district near the University of Chicago, and the members range from university professors, theological school pro-fessors, defense workers to queer radicals. At the present time there are about 1150 members and the store does a business from $5500 to $7500 weekly. The high ratio of sale to the number of members is because we compete with chains in price and values and give as Living conditions here are pretty good considering that our country is at war. Meat and groceries are rationed but everyone seems to have enough to eat. Electrical supplies such as irons, toasters and percolators are gone, although sometimes one can find rebulit ones. The shortage of alarm clocks causes the most inconveniences. The community sentiment regard ing nisei is fairly good. I think that the reason is more because of lack of interest instead of sympathy or interest in our problem. Sincerely yours,

The Deer Flat group said sub-stantially this: A loyal Japanese American citizen has a right to be in the United States. Whether he has a right to be in California, Oregon or Washington, his prior home, under war conditions now need not be argued, though it may be said in passing that it is now apparent no serious damage would

But when the war is over, no military or other reason can be reasonably urged against the Japanese going back to their homes on the coast, where they have lived for many years and where many of them own property. It is said that the coast people intend to keep them from going back there. How? By threat of violence? Probably just by running a bluff on govern ment officials and trying to get the Japanese placed in the interior where they are no more welcome than they are on the coast. And their homes are on the coast, not apprentice-machinists, making here

Idaho people have on the whole taken a rather decent view on this delicate question, and the Deer Flat resolutions are in line with it. We have heard virtually no objection to Japanese who were in this locality before the war, re-maining afterward. But objection is made, and properly, to making this state a Japanese center merely because the coast states are seek-ing to place what is "their baby" elsewhere.—The Idaho Free Press, Nampa, Idaho. When a child spies a cleared off space that has iced a little, no matter how small, he dashes to it and gleefully slides on it. What a shame it is to have the pleasure of it all to himself, he thinks, so he calls over his kindergarten cronics.

With typical fairness of the very small, they form a line and while their Peter Rabbit books lie stacked neatly on the grass, they take turns slipping and sliding over the oval, not more than two feet wide, and certainly not longer than five feet. It's a pleasure to see them derive such fun out of a bucket of water casually thrown out the night before.

On the same scale, but gradu-On the same scale, but gradu-ated from sliding on precious lea-ther, are the young people with their iceskates. The mild weather of the coast offered them little op-portunity to skate, and the recent weather in Hunt gave them more than a month of tasting the "skat-

Rinks in Blks. 35, 44 and 12, were haunted by skaters while they waited for the completion of Rink 21. Then somebdy discovered the canal, and thereby began the rush. Transformed by ice and snow, the canal is a beautiful change of the canal of stratching avanuage of scenery of stretching expanse of snowy ice. Here and there, the moving water can be seen, dark green, relentlessly washing away the ice, only to have it frozen over during the night. Late in December, the ice covered only the inlets, and in the middle, the water was still moving, deep, silent, and threatening. But by early Janu-

still moving, deep, silent, and threatening. But by early January, even the rapids succumbed to the cold, caught in bumps and ripples and waves. And we found out that it was possible to skate from an incalculable distance beyond Blk. 44 down to the Main Gate.

We tried it one day. There are rough spots and smooth, thin ice and solid. Strung out in one line and a certain distance apart from each other, we glided over the curving canal far after we lost sight of the camp. Every time we hit a thin spot, the leader would give warning, and we would be careful to take it one at a time. Experience taught us that while thin ice would hold up a swift skater, it would crack under slow, labored strokes, and naturally would not hold up more than one. thin ice would hold up a swift skater, it would crack under slow, labored strokes, and naturally would not hold up more than one. Like one beginner who knew he was headed for thin ice but was unable to stop himself and went right in. Other skaters nearby saw it and managed to pull him out. He was just lucky, and we knew it. Then last year, one of the best skaters in our group was standing watching somebody else take a foolish chance, when the ice cracked under him and only his outstretched hands held him up. He too, was really lucky, and all of us went thome all are the wiser. Then, too, last season I happened to be standing on fairly solid and transparent ice, watching the water gurgling under me. A friend glided up to join me, and unable to support our combined weight, the ice gave and both of us went down. However, it was the Blk. 44 pond and fairly shallow, and aside from getting drenched and our lives shortened five to ten years, we were none the worse for wear. We realize that it was late in the evening and few people were about, and if it was the canal there was a fair chance chance that we wouldn't be here to talk or write about last season.

Sitting on one bank and watchout effectively the canal there was a fair chance that we wouldn't be here to talk or write about last season.

Sitting on one bank and watching some other skater on the opposite bank with the flowing water between us is like watching some other skater on the opposite bank with the flowing water between us is like watching some other skater on the opposite bank with the flowing magnetic that up above is spring, and the canal is winter.

People skate the scaly, bumpy way down the canal just to see the giant and beautiful icides just under the bridge, and it's truly wor to three for the session with a crowd and refreshments.

Dr. Hutchinson Speaks at "Bishops Crusade" in Boise

We are on the highroad to mili tary victory, but are we headed toward lasting peace? Some day we will welcome home in triumph our boys who have defeated Nazi and Nipponese tyranny. And then what? What will things be like five years, 10 years, 25 years after that? Will the victory of 1944 and 1945 be followed by mass unemployment in 1950, by national disillusion and retreat into a new isolation in 1950, another plunge into a world war in 1970?"

With these words, Dr. Paul Hutchinson, managing editor of the MICHIGAN: "Christian Century," the leading interdenominational religious jour-

AN URGENT APPEAL

The Minidoka Consumer's Cooperative has completed arrangements with the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company to supply the residents of this project with soda pop. Your Co-op has been negotiating for some time to obtain soft drinks, but until now they have been unsuccessful. However, the bottling company has finally agreed to supply the canteens with pop on the condition that they return an empty bottle for each bottle purchased. It is the desire of the Co-op to have an initial stock of at least 150 cases. Therefore, they would like to have the residents having empty Pepsi-Cola, Squirt, or Sun Drop bottles, sell them to their canteens at 2¢ for each empty bottle, 60¢ for a full case of empty bottles, and 12¢ for each empty case.

If through your cooperation the Co-op is able to obtain a large initial stock of pop, the residents may purchase them without turning in empty bottles. We are appealing to those who may have any of the above mentioned empty bottles or cases lying around to sell them at once to your nearest canteen. By so doing you will make it possible for everyone to purchase pop, many of whom, heretofore, were unable.

Remember, that the more bottles you sell to the canteens, the more bottles of pop your Co-op store will be able to stock for your needs.
