Entry Rule Relaxations Encourage Visitations

With the relaxation of regulations governing the entry of nisei soldiers into the center, furlough visits from Camp Savage, Minnesota, are on the pick-up.

On their arrival here, the soldiers are invariably astonished and indignant at the rumors of discontent among the men at Savage.

Pvt. Grant Ichikawa, in discounting the rumors of mistreatment and bad morale, emphatically stated, "I don't know where they come from, but they are all false." "We are invited out to private parties and to public socials of all kinds. Many nisei soldiers outshine the Caucasians at these functions. And, I might add, that some are taking blondes out."

WAKE UP EVACUEES!!

A few short weeks ago the big issue in the center was resettlement. The WRA had announced that relocation was to be given first priority, first consideration.

Now the sensation of that time has been almost completely obscured by the pressing military registration problem. Events are moving so fast that people are losing sight of the essential need of the community.

The military registration is also an application for leave clearance. The WRA has made that clear, but by and large, the community has overlooked that phase of it. Not only is it an application, but it is a step calculated to make possible a greater resettlement program, by the physical proof that the evacuees are also bearing the obligation of citizenship, and therefore should be given all the rights.

The real need for resettlement is evident. Even if the residents were released today to go where they pleased, the majority will not be able to return to their former homes and jobs. Those homes and jobs are occupied and held by others now. The acute housing situation in California will not be able to handle 90,000 former Californians. The inevitable question ever on the tongue of many evacuees is, "Why not stay here?"

There is no question quite so short-sighted, yet so tinged with pathos than this. In their bitterness the evacuees have become people to be pitied, have become self-pitied. They fail to see the moral disintegration caused by the easy life they lead here. They do not try to see that, particularly, the nisei, most of whom are still in the vitally formative years of their lives are not learning that life is one constant struggle--that, indeed, life loses meaning without real effort to survive.

The full horror of the degeneration of the nisei in whom the hope for a brighter future had been so confidently placed even a bare year ago will probably never be evaluated. The Gila colony, with the lessening control of the family discipline, the lax methods of work, the unconcern for schooling, the lack of a realization that on the outside throughout the world people are engaged in the greatest kind of struggle, is a real tragedy. In the normal man's fight to find a place for himself in organized society, the evacuees are being far outstripped. If the parents and the leaders of the nisei do not see to it that they resettle, they will indeed be a lost generation an idolent group incapable of meeting the tough post-war problems squarely.

The first concern, the essential need of the community is resettlement--it is the foundation with which evacuees can best meet the future.

As a means of raising funds for recordings and costumes, bids will be sold at 5¢ per person. The public is heartily welcome.

The divisions that will not be situated in the new administration building are Internal Security, Fire Department, Mess Operations and the Enterprises. The building was constructed on the scale of the Butte annex and is railed off in the same manner. The high school art classes have been painting murals on the walls to give the room a western touch.

The southwest room will be occupied by Lewis Korn, Canal director; the northwest room, where the present re-registration is being held, will be for interviews; lower southwest room will be for Community Services under Luther Hoffman and M.
