2. MORE ARRIVE FOR INSTITUTE

Marjorie Johnson from Antioch College, Yellow Springs, O., and Frances Munn of St. Louis, Mo., arrive today to take part in the Rohwer Recreation Institute.

The evening training sessions of the Institute continue to meet at 7 o'clock in Mass hall 35. Those who are unable to enroll in the course regularly are cordially invited to attend the sessions whenever possible.

Tonight Miss Munn and Miss Johnson will discuss types of social gatherings. Things to do with social parties and how to do them. There will be demonstration and more group games.

The evening Institute sessions will continue next week from Monday through Thursday.

On Saturday morning at 8:30, Miss Munn will meet with the high school teachers and discuss problems of club and home room leadership. At 2:30, Miss Munn will meet with the Young Matrons for discussion of the planning of social functions.

On Sunday night, Institute visitors will participate in the "Information Maybe" program sponsored by a joint committee of Buddhists and Christians.

Open Institute With Gathering

The opening session of the Rohwer Recreational Institute in Mass hall 35 was held Wednesday evening.

With a songfest as a starter the program consisted of talks by three of the Institute's leaders. Margaret Chesmore spoke on the arts and crafts done by Girl Scouts, displaying actual work. Originator of the Institute idea, Marshall Stalley, explained its purpose. Harold Ingalls from the New York YMCA spoke on group work.

The Rohwer Institute is the first of a series which will be duplicated in the other relocation centers.

COMMUNITY COUNCIL

The Community Council made the following report following its 73rd regular meeting on Oct. 23,

- In connection with the "Templeton's Violence" case, Project Director Ray D. Johnston and Chief of Internal Security Bert Clayton met with H. L. Clayton, Sheriff of Desha County, and others Monday. They reached the conclusion that henceforth the county officials will not arrest any Rohwer drivers in cases of violations of state or county laws, but they will stop them and take their names, addresses, and machine numbers, and report them to the Center.

The Center will take the necessary measure against such violators.

- Election of Councilmen will be held on Nov. 7.

- Tofu and Miso will be produced again soon.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO PAPER IS LIMITED

Since demand exceeds the supply, the Co-op reported that not all subscription requests for next month's Commercial Appeal can be filled.

The Center is limited to 300 Sunday copies and 12 weekly subscriptions to the Appeal. However, there is no limit on subscriptions to the Arkansas Gazette.

There are widows, and there are grass widows. There are also golf widows and poker widows.

But now the relocation situation has brought into existence a new kind of widow--the Chicago widow.

As you can readily surmise, a Chicago widow is one whose husband has gone to Chicago. Gone there to work, to look over relocation possibilities, or perhaps to get away from his wife.

Of course, there are also Cleveland widows, Denver widows, Minneapolis, widows, etc. But we are only concerned today with the ever-numerous Chicago variety.

There are several things about the Chicago widows that set them apart from the various other prototypes.

For one thing, there are more of them. They are all over the camp. You can't miss running into them. It seems as if seven out of every ten widows you meet are of the Windy City variety.

The Chicago widows are generally a more carefree, happier bunch than their prototypal sisters. Far from being lonesome at being separated from their spouses, they seem to love this newly-found experience of not having a man around the house.

(Don't ask me why. I'm only telling you that it's so. I'm a columnist, not a psychoanalyst.)

When you ask a Chicago widow if she is lonely, a characteristic answer is, "Not a bit." I'm enjoying this life of a widow." And generally, she seems to be.

Then, too, the Chicago widows faithfully write to their husbands everyday. Cincinnati widows may write their hubbies every other day, and the New York ones may do it every week.

But the typical Chicago widow writes her hubby every day. It's not all, however, motivated by un-

JOKER Ys TO CLASH WITH GIs TOMORROW

The highlight of this football season will be witnessed as Vic Matsui's Joker Ys and Yas Chono's GIs play this Sunday at 2 p.m. on the high school field.

The Joker Ys and GIs have already played together scoring a 6 to 6 tie. Both teams have one win, one tied, and are in top condition practicing hard for this game. The Joker Ys' smashing through the line of Blue Devils last Sunday for a long gain, will be pitted against the GIs' iron-men—George Katsuki, Adira Tanouye, John Kikuta and Sam Shimasaki. The GI's fast backfield of Tommy Mukai, Yas Chono and hard-blocking back Tom Kawaguchi will constantly get in the Joker Y's hair.

The Joker-Y line will be nothing to sneeze at with men like Ken Nishikawa, Mas Yoshimura, and Smedie Sugii and Walter Matsui. The real trouble will be the throwing aim of Ty Kajimoto and the pass-snatching Ken "Hudson" Nishikawa. Also the magic touch of Vic Matsui on his men and his vicious hard blocking.

Both teams have shown a strong charging line and tricky backfield work playing against the Blue Devils. Some fast and exciting plays are anticipated to be executed by the rivaling teams.

ROYAL ACES SEEKING ANOTHER VICTORY OVER CLOWNS TODAY

The snappy Royal Aces, fresh after their 13-0 victory over the Blue Devil Jr.s. last weekend, will face a determined eleven when they clash with the battling Clowns this afternoon at 2 o'clock for the lightweight lead. the Royal Aces. The Gotan-Kimoto passing combination will probably cause the Clowns some headaches.

In their first game of the season, the Clowns displayed courage and a solid forward wall. Behind their new coach George Takahashi, the Clowns are relying on Walter Sano to do most of the ball handling and Fred Oshima to "snag" the passes for the scrappy eleven. Both team are practicing hard and will put up a whole of a game.

thing to write about. But they all demur and hedge on the question.

I have a strong suspicion, though, that they mention the weather, the food situation, and a few of the choice rumors that they pick up in the laundry room and at the beauty shop.

Of course, they can always explain how little Johnny was a bad boy that day or how little Makiko got an A in her composition. If they have a few-month-old baby, a dutiful wife can always devote five or six pages to telling that Junior uttered a few gurgling sounds that day.

Well, you get the idea. I could say a lot of other things about the Chicago widows. But I'm afraid that I've said enough, perhaps too much. I have my health to think of.

Next week we shall discuss the merry widows.
