of the relocation project to which the evacuees have been transferred.

Is it true...that one lucky girl was given a gardenia for the graduation ball. Her escort fashioned the corsage out of Kleenex and lemon leaves.

We turn a cold shoulder to the male who ridiculed his partner who wore slacks to a recent dance. Doesn't he know that slacks are a solution for the diminishing supply of silk hosiery?

These reports come from a young girl who enjoys dancing.

Was it you? One day at a mess hall, an issei man asked the waitress, "Will you please give me some water?" Another day a boy bellowed, "Water!"

Many young children fill themselves with bread and dessert, leaving their vegetables untouched. Children need supervision for reasons of health and should be accompanied to the mess halls by their parents.

The contributor of the foregoing opinions is a young mother whose prime concern is for children and their well-being.

A young boy showed a bruised knuckle and asked how one should attack the washboard. In order not to wear out the clothes and the worker, we advised that he hold the clothes lightly, so that the material will roll over the washboard. Otherwise the rubbing will be concentrated on one spot.

Hair may be washed with soap flakes, not chips, when shampoo is not available. This method is economical and lemon juice in the final rinse gives soft and clean hair.

TAIYO CHIEFS NAMED

Fujiwara's cabinet included Lin Takai, vice president; Ray Kuyhara, secretary; and Yosie Kuroki, athletic manager.

PIONEERS

It Wasn't Much of a Move.

"We used to live only a stone's throw from here," says Dick Mimaki, 11-14-1, "We were the only Japanese family living in Arcadia in recent years."

The six members of the Mimaki family lived on a farm at 1700 S. 2nd street within the city limits.

"My father first came to Arcadia back in 1897. He's farmed here for some 35 or 40 years. He remembers when the town was nothing but a hayfield with only three or four houses nearby."

To evacuate to Santa Anita, the Mimaki family registered with the Los Angeles group as they were unable to get a special permit. "I was in Arcadia the day of the evacuation. Then I took a taxi into Los Angeles and came with the Downtown group. It was a funny sensation taking the bus back."

He remembers when Santa Anita was nothing but a potato and cornfield farmed by a prominent Arcadian named Butler. "In fact my father was going to lease this land to raise raspberries."

It was when he arrived at the Center that Dick met his cousins for the first time. They are Etsuko Hatanaka, a second cousin from San Francisco, and Bill, Ruthy and Lillian Hatanaka from Los Angeles. He learned of Bill's whereabouts when he read one of Bill's by-lined stories in the PACEMAKER.

He is a graduate of Monrovia high school and Pasadena junior college.

Since June 3, the office has been conducting a survey relative to the number of aliens and citizens now residing in the Center. Approximately 3000 questionnaires have been distributed to date, mostly in the stable area.

The American-born are requested to return the questionnaires with sufficient data to establish citizenship; that is, with name, date, place of birth, and names of parents. It is not compulsory that these questionnaires be completely filled out. However, inasmuch as they are numbered, it was requested by Coler that all questionnaires be returned to the Immigration office whether completed or not.

The office, Coler added, will be glad to answer any question pertaining to immigration problems of any Center resident.

The Santa Anita sub-station of the Immigration office is located at 21 He Did avenue.

PEACEMAKER BUILDING -- Phone: 63

To the reader who writes in asking who was the first girl baby born in the Center, we are glad to repeat that she is Katherine-Anita Chiye Kimura, born May 6. Smile pretty, please

The ad for 'Kodak Finishing and Supplies' which ran in the special issue of the Arcadia News 'printed exclusively for the Santa Anita assembly center,' leads Emi Kusumi to wonder whether --well, it leaves her wondering...
No hangers

The two-hour delay in the, shall we say, colossal extravaganza Friday resulted in 15,000 people staying up later than they ever have yet since coming to Santa Anita.

No ill effects were noted, however; breakfast at our mess hall the morning after doing a land-slide business.

Much ado

The amazing ingenuity shown at the Handicraft show reminds us that Ben Carey says: 'You can make it easy on yourself if you will do the best you can with what you have where you are.'

Win, Place and Show not only adheres firmly to this bit of philosophy--we even practice it.

Major operation

Our Art editor, to whom ingenuity is no stranger, took on tonsorial duties the other day assisted by a pair of tin snips, a toothless comb and our leg-man.

We had flashes of conscious moments during the operation when we moaned feebly for more anesthetic.
Sad plight

Columnist Herb Caen of the San Francisco Chronicle tells this one:

A young Japanese at Tanforan was filling out a questionnaire the other day --and puzzled a few seconds over the question: 'Any known physical defects?' A pal nearby noticed his predicament and offered wryly 'Just tell 'em you're a Jap!'

Editorial

Judge by Man's Belief

Scheduled for the month of July at the San Francisco Museum of Art is an exhibition of the works of Isamu Noguchi, internationally famous sculptor.

This one-man show was arranged for last summer before war had forced such drastic changes in the relation of Japanese Americans to the American scene. In spite of the question raised by Noguchi as to the advisability of continuing with the plans in view of changed circumstances, the Museum authorities felt, however, that the factors which caused the changes in no way impinged upon art.

It may very well be possible, a memorandum on the exhibition states, that art has a definite though subtle propaganda value: that a work of art reflects a culture, is partisan to its dreams. From this point of view, Noguchi's conception of art is one of universality--it is a hybrid like the artist himself of America, Europe and Asia. In other words, the man is, as his art, a melting pot American.

The Museum is to be commended on this stand for in the hysteria of the moment it may be forgotten that this artist is a natural antithesis of fascist doctrines, both in race and culture.

The world is now split into two opposing camps of reaction and progress--of fascism and democracy. For those in the ranks of democracy to resort to fascist racial bigotry at this time would be to foul the very principles for which this war is being fought.

For art, music, literature, science--for all cultural activity--to be judged by the racial background of the craftsman is a negation of cultural enlightenment. It is the perversion of these arts, regardless of race, of which we must beware.

Democracy is a man's belief, not a man's color.
