STRONG OPPOSITION

British Columbia, Canada, has no return problems. The province simply got around these problems, faced by our own West Coast states, by not lifting the evacuation order for the 23,000 Canadian Japanese.

New York City—"For months now," the New York Times editorial on May 16 said, "an effort in California has been spreading terror and applying the torch to the homes of many who went back at the request of the government and in abiding faith that they would be left alone to work their land, for most were farmers."
