The House Committee on appropriations, recently submitted to Congress a bill of appropriation for a $8 million dollar appropriation for the WRA for the 1946 fiscal year. The amount represents a reduction of $18,000 under the sum requested in budget estimates.

German prisoners of war in northern Italy are being guarded by troops of the 42nd Infantry Regiment composed of Americans of Japanese descent according to a 20th Army headquarters report of May 31.

The California Preservation Association last week in a formal resolution, asked that the control over the Japanese taken away from Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes. The association is a group opposing the return of evacuees to California. The resolution asserted that Ickes and the WRA "have been indulging in the dissemination of false and misleading information" about the returning Japanese.

Center Closure

Forton Recreation Center units 2 and 3 and Center camp at Gila River Relocation Center, both centers in Arizona, will be closed to evacuee occupancy no later than Oct. 1, 1945. The decision is a recent announcement. It was stated that administrative considerations, plus the fact that continued normal recreation activities in itself depopulate the three units at the two centers on or before that date, made the decision necessary. The announcement was signed by Director Dillon S. Myers.

100 of Returned Japanese Go on Call Relief Rolls

SACRAMENTO — Charles M. Wolfenbarger, state director of social welfare, told the monthly meeting of Governor Earl Warren's cabinet this week that approximately 700 out of 4,400 Japanese who have returned to California in recent months had to be placed on state assistance rolls. "He said the 4,400 figure is based on cases checked by his department, and added there are probably 5,000 or 6,000 returned Japanese in all."

WRA Hits Boycotts Against Price Cutting by Japanese

FRESNO — WRA officials recently discussed problems in the marketing of produce raised by Japanese evacuees.
National WRA director Dillon S. Myers acknowledged the agency is concerned by incipient boycotts against Japanese grown farm products and noted such a situation may justify price cutting by the returned evacuees.
Myers said he had heard reports the Japanese plan to undersell their competitors on the produce market, adding, "they may have to do it in self defense."

"But no larger percentage of people in this group resort to price cutting than in any other group," declared Myers.
He recalled that some evacuees have encountered marketing problems, together with other difficulties connected with their return, with the result the agency has been called in to assist.
"Boycotts affect our whole program," he asserted.

Problems On Wane
Otherwise, he told a press conference, the WRA's problems are on the wane and the agency plans to end out of business by July, 1946.
All the Japanese Americans housed in eight WRA centers throughout the country will be returned to their homes or wartime jobs by next January, he said, while nearly half the housing of two of the projects in Arizona will be closed by October.
Myer emphasized the Japanese will be assisted by the WRA in their return to "wherever they want to go, not where we tell them to go," and disclosed more than 1,000 evacuees already have returned to the Fresno area where, he declared, 75 per cent of the attacks against the Japanese have occurred.
"He asserted most of the terrorist attacks on the WRA's citizens are being handled by the WRA."

Charles F. Miller, area relocation officer who presided over the closed conference said WRA officials do not subscribe any serious difficulties by the Japanese in marketing their produce.
Miller stated he had toured the Fresno area, visiting returned evacuees and had failed to find anyone who had not made arrangements to market his farm products. He said he had not found a boycottist but believed one would develop.

Most of the contractors, he noted, in rural communities, he noted, because "land lands the Japanese left behind them have been making money" and the temporary occupants "are reluctant to give them up."
The opposition to "resetting the Nisei would have been just as bitter" even had the agency delayed return of the evacuees until Japan is defeated.
"There would have been the same reasons for forcing them there as now," he explained, "except maybe prices wouldn't be so high."
Resistance to the Nisei's return, he said, is limited to "small vocal groups," whom he declared are "well trained in opposition, because they've been working at it for years." He asserted opposition gradually is diminishing "because fair-minded groups are becoming more vocal."

Chicago Buddhist Church Group Will Sponsor Carnival

CHICAGO — Climaxing a 2-day celebration of the Fourth of July, the Chicago Buddhist Church will be converted into a palace of fun and laughter as a Nisei group in this city will get under way 12 noon on Wednesday. Doors will remain open until 11 that evening. The purpose of the event is to raise sufficient funds for the payment of the church building.
An admittance charge of 10¢ per person will be assessed. Service men and women will be admitted free of charge.
Leis and artificial flowers will be sold as souvenirs and soft drinks will be available at the coke bar. The basement lounge of the church will be the scene of a tea room where Japanese dishes will be served by the young girls of the church group.

Japanese Hated Less at Home, Than at Home, Says Joe Brown

SAN FRANCISCO — The boys at the Pacific fighting fronts don't hate the Japanese like the people do here, Joe E. Brown, the cavern-mouthed secret co-ordinator, said here recently.
Brown, who has just returned from a 38,000-mile tour of the Pacific fronts, paused briefly in San Francisco on his way to Los Angeles.
"As for pre-education of the Nisei here," he said, "they think it's terrible. They think it's horrible. I know. I've had a number of round-table discussions with them on that subject alone."
He went on to explain that a loyal Japanese American was just as liable to be killed by his buddies as by the enemy, since many Japanese had been found dressed in American uniforms.

The Washington Post: REBUKE FROM THE FRONT

"Nobody has asked where their grandpas came from," declares an editorial in Stars and Stripes. The Army newspaper was referring to American soldiers of Japanese ancestry who have rolled up a fighting record in Italy which evoked the highest commendation from Gen. Mark Clark. His editorial referred to as "Japanese Americans." This battalion fought at Cassino, Anzio, through the Apennines, and then in France, where among other acts it rescued a battalion of the Thirty-sixth (Texas) Division which had been cut off by the Germans.
"That was a pretty tough assignment," the editorial said. "A pretty dirty job in the hands of the Americans whose families were being beaten up by the families of other American lads." We think that this editorial, written in France, where the hoodlums in California who have been engaged in a campaign of planned terrorism against the Americans of Japanese descent, evacuated from their homes after Pearl Harbor and now, belatedly, authorized by the Army to return. We think it ought to
