

Mary Ogasawara

Star

Perhaps many of us partially realize what this simple noun "Star" actually means. No doubt I myself can hardly explain, but the following is my interpretation of it. First of all, in the home front it raises commotion and friction among our supposedly organized united people, it brings about sorrow & men leaving their wives and children behind to fight for their country, — it means to save on every we have. In the battle front there's damaging of scenic sights and monuments, waste of money and time, bloody murder, and ruining of valuable future of the young youth. In the long run I believe that they should not have any more battles among nations, and yet we should have international government for nothing is gained through taking turns in owning certain portions of land.

All these elements go with every war so we must put forth all our effort to help win this war. It is not only for our selves but for the good of our nation.