

Judd Bill Passed by House Unit Without Dissenting Vote

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12—The House Judiciary Committee Tuesday reported out the Judd bill for equality in naturalization and immigration without a dissenting vote.

This marked the first time in history a bill giving full naturalization rights to all peoples in the world has been acted on favorably by a House Committee.

The bill now goes to the House. A vote is expected within the next 30 to 45 days.

Congressman Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.), author of the bill, said he is "frankly optimistic" concerning the bill's chances in the House.

Passage of the ENI measure would erase the final racial immigration restrictions raised by the Oriental Exclusion act of 1924.

At the same time, it would finally give all legal immigrants to the United States the right to apply for naturalization irrespective of racial ancestry.

Congressman Francis E. Walter (D., Penn.), chairman of the Judiciary Sub-Committee on Immigration and Naturalization, and Judd likened the bill to "six armed divisions in Japan as far as its effect upon the stability and future of that nation is concerned."

Rep. Walter said the "necessity for its passage as far as our Far Eastern affairs are concerned is obvious."

"Communism is gaining alarmingly in the Far East. As long as we maintain a racial basis for immigration in our country, this will provide fuel for propaganda against the United States."

Rep. Judd said: "We cannot stop the communists from using propaganda, but we don't have to provide them with material to use against us."

They said the naturalization provisions of the bill were "simple moral justice for the large bloc of persons living in the United States and Hawaii who are branded as aliens ineligible for citizenship solely on the basis of ancestry."

The ENI bill would eliminate the friction caused by this nation's refusal to grant these person's citizenship, though they have lived here for a quarter-century or longer as law-abiding, respected members of their communities, Rep. Judd added.

At a press conference immediately following the Judiciary Committee action, the bill was explained in detail.

One point which aroused discussion was how much, and to what extent, overall immigration would be affected by its passage.

It was pointed out the bill provides only that the few remaining countries in the Far East restricted from utilizing quotas established under the Exclusion act, would be permitted to send up to 100 immigrants apiece to the United States, with the exception of Siam and Japan. Siam would be given a quota of 105, Japan, 185.

Passage of the act is not expected to increase total annual immigration by more than 1,000 persons annually, it was said.

The Judd bill was acted on favorably in the House Sub-Committee last week. This is the Sub-Committee which reported favorably on the bill before the Eightieth Congress last year. However, the Sub-Committee's actions came too late in the session for action by the full Judiciary Committee.

The bill was reintroduced in the House this year by Congressmen Walter, Judd, George P. Miller, (D. Calif.), Sidney R. Yates, (D., Ill.), and Delegate Joseph R. Farrington, (R., Hawaii).

Because of Rep. Judd's long interest in the measure, the Sub-Committee agreed to report out his bill though he is a Republican and Congress is controlled by the Democrats.

The bill, however, has strong bipartisan support.

One effect of the Judiciary Committee's action Tuesday is to give ENI priority over action to liberalize the nation's Displaced Person's laws.

The DP bill also will be considered by the Judiciary committee, but the deliberations are expected to last at least six weeks. By giving the ENI bill priority, it thus may be acted upon by the House two to three months earlier than otherwise would have been possible.

Mike Masaoka, national JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee legislative director, said the committee's action "is one of the most hopeful things that has happened to our legislative program in Congress."

"But this means that while we can all take hope that Congress eventually will act favorably upon a bill so close to our hearts, we must continue to work even harder than before to secure its passage."

"Our parents have dreamed of such a law for more than 25 years. We must never be put into the position of having to say 'The ENI bill failed at the last minute because we did not support it.'"

"JACL ADC has labored for more than three years in an effort to get favorable action upon our immigration and naturalization laws. We call upon everyone who is interested in this goal to redouble his help and efforts."

"We need support," Masaoka said. "We know it will be forthcoming."

SENATE OK'S BILL TO PAY FOR OUR LOSS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12—The Senate Wednesday passed and sent to the House a bill (S. 29) to indemnify Americans of Japanese ancestry and aliens for loss or damage to personal property deposited with the Justice Department.

This was the first bill passed by the Senate as a regular order of business since start of the present session, and the first JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee sponsored measure to pass either House of Congress this year.

The bill provides the Attorney General may authorize payments up to $1,000 for loss of or damage to any personal property impounded by the Federal government at the outbreak of war.

The bill is designed to compensate Nisei and Issei for loss and damage to such items as radios, cameras and guns which were taken into custody by the Justice Department or its agents.

Claims over $1,000 in this category still must go to Congress for individual action.

The bill will be studied by the House Judiciary Committee before coming up for a vote.

ADC Also Wants Filibuster Curb

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12—The JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee today joined 20 other national organizations in urging the Senate to "curb the filibuster and establish majority rule."

In a joint resolution, the associations, including such groups as the American Jewish Congress, United Auto Workers, American Civil Liberties Union and NAACP, declared that if "President Truman's civil rights program could be brought to a vote it would be enacted."

"We, therefore, regard the removal of parliamentary obstacles that would prevent consideration of these measures as a vital first step in the passage of the civil rights program."

"Every consideration of good government and democratic rule requires, at the very least, that these measures be finally brought to a vote."

The resolution urged the Senate to adopt majority rule rather than the 2/3 rule to effect cloture (or limited debate), and added: "Those who recognize the importance of the civil rights program will judge the sincerity of the Senate to enact this program by its determination to curb the filibuster and establish majority rule."

TOKUDA'S EYE THIRD N. W. TITLE AS BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT NEARS; FIERCE FIGHT FOR CROWN LOOMS

Will George Tokuda's Tokuda Drug quintet capture the third leg of the three-year perpetual trophy offered at the third annual Northwest Nisei Invitational Basketball Tournament?

This question—an all-important one as far as Pacific Northwest fans are concerned—will be answered in the next few days.

Complete pre-tournament schedule will be released in the Wednesday, Feb. 16, edition of THE NORTHWEST TIMES.

ed in full when the tournament opens Friday night, Feb. 18, in the Seattle Buddhist gym.

Tokuda's will floor a squad boasting such men as Heat Heyamoto, Sei Adachi, and Mote Yasuda.

Chief opposition will come from Seattle's own Polka Dots who are primed to whip the favored drugists. The Dots have three dangerous scorers in Art Louie, Seichi Hata and Howie Wong.

For that matter, the local Mercury and Nuggets are no pushovers.

The quintets invading the town will be Spokane's swift-breaking Beacon Cleaners and Portland's American Auto and Esquires. The Cleaners and American Auto, the latter which showed up okay in the all-Oriental joust last December here, may upset the proverbial cart.

Roth's Orchestra Will Play Feb. 20

Frankie Roth's 11-piece orchestra which has played many times at Nisei gatherings before and after the war, will be the featured band in the third annual Northwest Nisei Invitational basketball tournament sports dance from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight Sunday, Feb. 20, in the spacious Buddhist auditorium, it was announced today.

The affair, open to the public, will cost one dollar and fifty cents per couple.

Popular Cage Star To Present Awards

Popular Al Brightman, young Seattle University basketball coach will present the awards at the tournament dance intermission Sunday night, Feb. 20, in the Seattle Buddhist auditorium.

Brightman, 24, who is regarded by many sports fans and critics as one of the best pro cagers in the Pacific Northwest, comes from Morris Harvey college, West Virginia. While at Morris Harvey, he was the second top scorer in college basketball in the nation. His pro basketball career includes play for the Boston Celtics in 1947. He also starred for the Wilkes-Barre five in the Eastern circuit.

Besides being a brilliant maple court star, he is also an outstanding baseball player, having had experience with the Cleveland Indians and the Baltimore Orioles.

The prizes which Brightman will present are the three-year perpetual trophy, the permanent championship cup, the runner-up trophy, and the consolation cup. The tournament all-stars each will be awarded a small necktie pin with a gold basketball.

Use of Japanese Language Dying Fast Among Younger Generation as Parents Themselves Are Seen as Disinterested

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Feb. 12—The revival of Japanese language schools, which were closed at the beginning of the war, has been "enthusiastically received" by the majority of the Issei and by a considerable number of the Nisei, it was reported recently by the Hawaii social laboratory of the University of Hawaii. The laboratory surveyed the Japanese American population to determine its attitude toward the language schools.

Strongest opposition came from Nisei veterans' groups and from those who had always opposed language schools as a major obstacle to the assimilation of the Nisei. They also felt that the school was a source of adverse feeling toward the entire Japanese American community.

Nisei social workers declared that the children in language schools had to carry too heavy a burden in going to two schools as well as carrying on outside activities.

Strongest support for the schools came from Isseis who regarded the schools as a symbol of the ordered life which they knew before the war; the schools also promised a return of control over the younger generation as well as the revival of Issei prestige. Isseis also felt that the rise in juvenile delinquency was associated with the closing of the schools.

A poll taken at the University of Hawaii in May, 1948, showed that 80 percent of the Niseis approved the Japanese language school with only 16 percent opposed. Caucasian students polled 36.7 percent against and part-Hawaiians polled 23.5 percent against; but in either case a substantial majority supported the reopening of schools.

By the end of 1948 at least 34 schools had reopened, though the total attendance, at most, was less than a fifth what it had been prior to the war.

Large portions of the Japanese community in Hawaii are still without schools, and though more are expected to open up, it is considered doubtful if the number will be large.

3 Outside Teams Wire Acceptance

Spokane's Beacon Cleaners and Portland's American Auto and Esquires were the first three out-of-town quintets to accept the invitation to participate in the third annual Northwest Nisei Invitational basketball tournament scheduled for Friday, Feb. 18, Saturday, Feb. 19, and Sunday, Feb. 20, in the Seattle Buddhist gym.

Ontario JACL has not yet replied to the tournament bid sent by the sponsoring Northwest Times.

Wapato wired Wednesday that its team was not able to make the trip.

To add color to the tournament, the Northwest Times may invite Wah Mee, a Chinese American team, instead of White River if Ontario fails to answer before the end of this week-end. Official invitations to Seattle teams will be sent this weekend.

Discloses Rules On Ash Mailing

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12—The Office of the Postmaster General today informed the JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee of complete regulations on mailing human ashes to Japan for interment.

Following are the postal regulations:

"Human ashes may be accepted (for parcel post) if presented for mailing by a licensed crematory or licensed mortuary. The ashes must be packed in a sealed, metal container enclosed in a substantial outer container. There must be enclosed within the outer container, but outside the metal container, a certified copy of the death certificate and a statement or certificate executed by the crematory or mortuary to the effect that the ashes are those of the person named in the death certificate."

Maryknoll Slates Carnival-Bazaar

Under the chairmanship of Roy Sakamoto, Maryknoll parish's various groups and societies which include the Adrians, the Ancillas, the Altar Society, the Holy Name Society, the Boy Scouts, the Cub Scouts, the Genrokai, and the Filipino Catholic Youth, will hold a carnival-bazaar on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 18 and 19, in the Maryknoll auditorium, 16th and E. Jefferson. Any No. 12 bus at Third and Union will take one directly to the scene of the affair, according to Sakamoto.

Filipino, Japanese and American food will be prepared and served by the parish women.

A drawing for the grand door prizes will be held Saturday evening.

For Dimes Backing

Appreciation for the community-wide support of the March of Dimes was expressed yesterday by Thornton K. Shaw, Seattle chairman of the annual fund raising campaign of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The March of Dimes, which ended last week, is the only source of revenue for the Foundation, and supports its work of assistance to patients, research and training of professional personnel in hospitals.

"In spite of the cold weather and ice that prevented some of the usual March of Dimes activities, the campaign is coming to a successful close," Shaw said. "However, many persons have not yet returned their dime cards with their contributions. These should be returned immediately so that the volunteers may complete their job at the headquarters."

Headquarters at 600 Pine St. are kept open for another week so that workers may bring in the coin collectors that have been distributed throughout the city.

IT'S YOUR BUSINESS

By GEORGE S. BENSON
President of Harding College
Secoy, Arkansas

Looking Ahead

WHO OWNS America's industry? It's easy to say who owns the hot-dog stand down the street or the candy store on the corner. But you say, "big" business is different. You're right, it is different. The chief difference is that most large firms are "corporations," which are owned by many people rather than just one or two persons. Maybe the hot-dog man and the candy store owner—maybe even you—own these big businesses. That's very likely for the people of America do own them.

are small. Others are equipped and financed by thousands of people for the purpose of doing big jobs well. Anyone who buys stocks or bonds is a direct investor. There are perhaps 20 million such persons, and they hardly could be called "battered capitalists." About half of all corporation dividends go to persons with annual incomes under $10,000. But whether they be called rich or poor, those who invest money in corporations are very important to all of us. Their investments help make jobs and create payrolls.

Sometimes you'll find a fellow who is afraid of that word corporation. Mostly, that is because he does not understand what it means. The modern corporation is built around this idea: many people working together can sometimes do things in a better way than just one or two can do them alone.

In America, not two or three families nor a favorite political clique nor even the government but the people own the tools of production. Anyone of us may invest in corporations. Besides direct investors, anyone who pays for life insurance or has bank savings should be interested in the welfare of corporations. That is true because insurance companies and banks invest in various industrial enterprises the money they receive from you. In this additional way, ownership of corporations is spread throughout the land.

Money for Industry
YOU SEE, it takes a lot of money for an automobile factory or an oil refinery. But we have to have them, even if they do cost millions of dollars to build. Then who'll build them? There is hardly anybody who would want to lay down ten or twenty million dollars for a new industrial venture. Few have that much money and fewer still would want to risk that much at a time.

This is the miracle of America's free enterprise. Management, labor, investors—all work together to make business and industry hum with production. Everyone benefits.

But there are many of us who would like to invest a little, hoping for a small return on our money. This may be done through the corporation. It obtains a charter from the state, which permits it to seek capital by inviting people to take shares of stock. Money thus put up by "stockholders" is used to build factories, to gather in machinery and materials, and to handle payrolls until earnings come in. If managed well, the company may pay dividends to those who put up their money.

So Long, Steve

By NISEI ANONYMOUS

Spring will come again to the fertile valley of the Puyallup River region, in the heart of the Pacific Northwest. Soon, golden daffodils will gently nod their heads and blushing tulips will reply in return. Fat, pudgy peas will burst out of their chunky pods and the field will be fragrant with the scent of sweating raspberries. Over yonder, scarlet strawberries, the "Queen of the Soil" will glitter their sequined coats of ruby red in the hot mid-afternoon sun. Juicy blackberries will join the parade, bringing with them an aura of dark mystery.

It was here in the midst of nature's wonderland that you were born Steve. How strong and handsome you grew up to be, crying with the misty raindrops, laughing with the golden sunshine. The out-of-doors was your playground; the rich, brown earth your paradise, as you romped your way out of sneakers into your first long pants. Fleeting years dashed by, and now you were in high school. Being tall was an advantage wasn't it Steve, for those basketball shots you made so aptly. Rugged football rubbed your interest, but the sport that made you famous in the valley was boxing. I can still see you, standing in the ring in your "Joe Louis" stance, your bright purple shorts sharing your spirit. It was a cruel sport, but your interest in it made it seem a bit more glamorous, somehow.

Crammed in between were those beach parties with hot dogs, dancing and girls. I can still remember your surprise and bewilderment at being asked by a girl to the "Sadie Hawkins" tolo. Your handsome face, etched in serious lines, was an idol to be worshipped from afar, during our madcap teen-age terror days, followed by our adolescent dreams into fantasy. Modesty crept into your every act, so how were you to know?

Perhaps you knew a lifetime had to be lived in those twenty, short years. Earnestly you plunged into everything and drained every drop of pleasure out of anything you did. Then, suddenly, the murky skies opened in a shattering thunder and we were caught in the turmoil of war. Off you volunteered, and before long you were riding the waves of the turbulent Atlantic, bound for the land you never saw, determined to save the only land you knew and loved.

Killed in action, July, 1944. Springtime, and the sky up above will be a cloudless blue all day. Over there in the southern tip of Italy, the sky must be just as blue. How proudly the stars and stripes must be waving overhead, guarding the gallant souls of you and your buddies. What can we say, what can we do for all that you left behind for us to cherish? For the white Christmases and the thrilling tingle of sleigh bells; for the abundance of food and the gay laughter of happy, healthy children; for the million and one things of everyday living in a "little bit of heaven" called America? How very humble our prayers and our thanks seem to be.

Today, Steve, I heard that you were coming home to rest in eternal peace. Over the same Atlantic, now calm and sublime, across the land you helped preserve, to the valley you loved so well. Welcome home, Steve, welcome home! Though your ears will not hear the refreshing trickle of the stream beyond the strawberry patch; your crinkly eyes will never survey the endless field of ripe harvest; your firm footsteps will tread the fertile soil no more. I believe, this year, the daffodils will bloom lovelier than ever before, and the tulips will bud into breath-taking beauties as a token of gratitude for a native son.

Your job is done—well done. Although your fighting body is stilled, spirit like yours will live forever. The generations to come will learn it only from the pages of history books, but the freedom of living will be theirs to enjoy.

You see, Steve, I just wanted you to know, how deeply proud we are of you.

Just among People

by gordon hirabayashi

In our culture today monogamy (one male married to one female) is not only the most common form of marriage, but the only one that is sanctioned. However, among the primitive peoples (pre-white contact), there was a form of marriage which was permissible on a much wider scale than monogamy. This favored system is known as polygyny (the marriage of more than one female to one male).

Readers will recall records of polygyny in the accounts of early Chinese and Japanese family life. In the Bible, the stories of Solomon and Jacob bring to mind the fact of legitimacy of the practice of polygyny in early Christian history.

Under normal conditions the ratio of births according to sex is approximately one to one. However, among the primitives, the hazards faced by the males were greater, and there was the tendency for women to survive in greater proportion. This is only a contributing factor; not the explanation. Usually, this practice occurred in areas of higher economic level. The number of wives was highly correlated with high status; in fact, one conspicuous way to show one's status was the number of wives one could support. Therefore, even in areas where polygyny is permissible, monogamy was actually more frequently found because the rank and file could not afford the luxury.

In areas where polygyny is practiced the children are reared to adjust to it, and women look forward to being "fellow-wives". In other words, it is natural to them. A girl of Mormon background once told me that her grandmother was one of two wives of her grandfather. She sometimes was embarrassed to have to explain this to some people, but she did not feel it was "wrong" or "bad". Many families get along fine; each wife had her own house; every so often there would be a huge family gathering. Except for a small minority, the Mormons do not now practice polygyny, but their sentiment seems to regard it as acceptable.

Consider our marriage practice. One man marries several women, but as long as it is done one at a time it is regarded as legitimate and acceptable. Except for the sequential factor, there is a strong suggestion of polygyny even in our culture today.

Another form of polygamy is known as polyandry (one woman married to two or more men). There is some disagreement as to whether such a practice is actually found, or merely represent improper observations on the part of researchers. At any rate, it is theoretically possible, and reports tell of such cases in Tibet, among the Todas, and to some extent in the Marquesas Island. Polyandry is usually associated with female infanticide or poverty-stricken economic condition. In the latter case it takes several men to support one wife. Brothers in Tibet are said to band together to "sponsor" one wife.

You will find it less easy to uproot faults, than to choke them off raising virtues.—Ruskin

'BUTCH' SHIMOMURA RUNS AMUCK AS HE SCORES 22 POINTS TO AID CHARLEY'S IN HAWAII CAGE WIN

(Exclusive to Northwest Times) HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 12—Richard "Butch" Shimomura went on a wild rampage for 22 points on 11 field goals to lead Charley's Arcade five to an upset 64 to 58 victory over the University of Hawaii team in a Honolulu Amateur Basketball Association game last Feb. 5 in the University of Hawaii gym.

Coach Art Gallon's collegians, paced by Harry Kahuanui, took a 35 to 23 lead at the half but couldn't stem the fast-breaking Arcades as Shimomura, Herb Sumida and Tets Odo cut the meshes with crucial baskets.

Shimomura kept the Arcades in the game during the first 20 minutes of play, scoring seven goals. He added four more in the second half to wind up the evening with 22. Sumida tallied 12 and Odo eight, while Sylvester Rodrigues and Moses Kealoaha each garnered seven and Dick Asato scored five.

For the college Rainbows, Kahuanui, found the nets for 25 points. Ed Loui and George Malama each countered for 12 markers.

Sumida, besides playing a good offensive game, put up a whale of a defensive game by controlling the backboard from the taller U players. He outjumped and took almost all the rebounds from the U's stand-out center, Kahuanui, during the crucial moments of the battle. Kahuanui, who is about 6 feet 4 inches tall, played in Seattle against Seattle University last year.

But the player who had the crowd on its feet was Odo. Odo's ball handling and dribbling really gave the crowd into a thrill. Three or four times he dribbled right past the U team to score.

The victory for the Arcades, who participated in the all-Oriental national basketball tournament in Seattle last December as the Hawaii Nisei All-Stars, was the first against the highly-touted U of Hawaii cagers.

SENATE URGED TO CONTINUE FUNDS FOR GROUP TO PROBE U.S. IMMIGRATION LEGISLATIONS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12.—The Senate today was asked to appropriate $135,000 for continuation of the work of a special committee investigating immigration and naturalization laws according to Mike Masaoka, JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee legislative director.

The committee's work will end March 1 unless additional funds are granted, but it is expected the money will be appropriated. In asking for the additional money, Senator Pat McCarran, (D. Nev.), said the "investigation is not, in any sense, a witch hunt, but, on the contrary, an objective, analytical appraisal of our entire immigration and naturalization system, with the end in view of a comprehensive report and over-all legislation designed to improve the pattern and administration of that system. "I anticipate that with the addition of 5 or 6 more temporary staff members, with the study and investigation, together with a comprehensive report and draft of an omnibus bill, (the work of the committee) can be completed in approximately one year."

Chairman of the committee is Sen. McCarran, also chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. He succeeded Alexander Wiley, (R. Wis.). Other committee members include: Senators James O. Eastland, (D. Miss.), J. Howard McGrath, (D. R. I.), William Langer, (R. N. D.), and Forrest C. Donnell, (R. Mo.).

Senators McCarran and Langer are new to the committee, which was set up by the Eightieth Congress. Retiring committee members besides, Senator Wiley, include Senators Homer Ferguson (R. Mich.), and Chapman Revercomb (R. W. Va.).

Staff members of this committee held hearings on immigration and naturalization last year on the west coast.
