

'HOUSE FOR HIROSHIMA' GROUP WILL DEPART UNITED STATES FOR JAPAN FRIDAY, JUNE 24

A "House for Hiroshima" to be selected by an impartial committee set up by Mayor Shinzo Hamai of Hiroshima City, will be borne in the minds of a group of Americans, headed by Floyd Schmoie of Seattle, who will depart for Japan on Friday, June 24, from San Francisco.

Besides Schmoie, two others from Seattle will be on this mission. They are the Rev. Emery Andrews of the Japanese Baptist church and Mamoru Takashima of 1414 Weller St.

The others will be Ruth Jenkins, University of Arizona graduate who is teaching in a Mexican school in Tucson, Ariz., and who helped in the return of Japanese Americans to Seattle in 1945, and Daisy Tibbs, home economics teacher in South Carolina.

Schmoie's group received approval from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters to visit Japan to supervise the "House for Hiroshima" project.

Canada's Japanese Unit Offices Will be Shut as of July 31

TORONTO, Ont., Canada, May 28 (New Canadian Dispatch)—The Japanese Division offices of the Department of Labor will be closed on July 31, it was announced this week by Ernest G. Trueman, Japanese Placement Officer.

Trueman said that there is still the matter of clearing up some unfinished business and going through the more than 7,000 files in order that no records which may be of further use will be destroyed.

The special Japanese Division offices which were opened in the spring of 1942 in order to oversee the resettlement of the evacuees in Ontario, was, at its peak, staffed by six clerks. For some time now, there has been only one other person in the office.

Although the bulk of the work has been completed, there have been quite a number of calls from those seeking the assistance of the placement office. Trueman's most recent work has been that of negotiating for pensions for Japanese with the Ontario government.

Pre-medical students, Akira Horita and John Masayoshi Kanda, were invited into the Alpha Epsilon Delta.

On the upper campus three honoraries listed Nisei as new members. Beta Gamma Sigma, Business Administration, selected Peggy Matsue Miyaki and Satoshi Tomita. The sociology honorary, Alpha Kappa Delta, included Grace Nishio among its new members. Toshi Nakamura and Mabel Kiyo Shigaya were invited into the Art honorary, Lambda Rho.

As part of the convocation program the University Symphony Orchestra featured Joesel Nam Kung, a Korean bass.

THREE NEWSPAPERS SUPPORT PASSAGE OF JUDD'S MEASURE FOR EQUALITY WITH EDITORIALS

CHICAGO, Ill., May 28—Under the caption "Lifting an Insult," the Chicago Daily News urged passage of the Judd bill in an editorial on May 19, advised the Midwest JACL-ADC office.

"Early in the present session of Congress," the editorial states, "the House passed a worthy bill to remove from our immigration laws the indefensible provision for total exclusion of certain Asiatic peoples."

"Congressman Judd of Minnesota sponsored the bill, Joseph C. Grew, the former ambassador to Japan, testified in its favor."

"Only a token number of immigrants would be permitted from these countries. The quota from China would be 100 a year; from Japan, 185. The effect on the racial composition of the country would be negligible. Yet it would eliminate from the law the insulting stigma of unacceptability."

"Passage of the Judd Act would relieve the government of a diplomatic handicap that over the years has embarrassed its relations with all Oriental peoples."

"This bill has received no attention in the Upper House. It ought to be brought out and enacted."

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 28—"Exiles at Home" headlines an editorial supporting the Judd bill in the St. Paul Pioneer Press of Monday, May 16, it was learned this week from Mrs. Ruth Abernethy, executive director of the St. Paul Council of Human Relations.

Deploing the ineligibility of Issei to become naturalized citizens, the full editorial stated:

"The lot of Japanese immigrants to this country whose sons and daughters enjoy citizenship in the United States through birth here but who are denied that right themselves is one whose injustice has not lacked presentation. Many of these people have lived in the country for close to 35 years. They gave more than 33,000 sons to the armed forces in the recent war, and it is properly argued that their exemplary, patriotic and law-abiding conduct has earned for them the right to be complete Americans."

"The case for this group is well stated by one of those heroic sons, wounded in action, decorated for bravery in his nation's service in the recent war. His argument was this: 'The point is that we Nisei enjoy and appreciate the heritage of citizenship which we obtained purely by accident of birth (for if we had been born in Mexico or Canada, we would be as ineligible for citizenship as our parents), but we strongly desire that our parents be permitted to share this citizenship with us."

"The Judd bill, still pending in Congress, would correct this situation. It would end the role of exile in their own homeland for a group that has proved its qualifications for citizenship. It would fulfill the theme of 'I Am An American Day', observed on Sunday by permitting an unjustly excluded group to join that avowal."

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 28—The Milwaukee Journal, in re-affirming its position supporting the Judd bill as was editorially expressed on March 1, 1949, pointed out in its editorial of May 15 that "So far, the Senate judiciary committee has not taken any action on the Judd bill. . . . The Journal believes that it should be acted on by the judiciary committee and then passed by the Senate."

The complete editorial follows: "So far the Senate judiciary committee has not taken any action on the Judd bill. This would end the last remaining discrimination against any permanent legally admitted resident who desired to become an American citizen."

"The chief beneficiaries of this bill would be American residents, legally admitted, who were born in Japan, Korea and Polynesia. Many of them, especially those of Japanese origin, have been almost lifelong residents of this country. Many are the parents of American war heroes."

"All similar discrimination has already been ended. Chinese, Filipinos and (oriental) Indians, if they are legally admitted permanent residents, can now become American citizens. The numbers that may be admitted to the country are, of course, rather strictly regulated under immigration laws. There is no thought in the Judd bill of any real change in this. This is not a bill to open up the floodgates, as some would put it, to immigration from the Orient, or from any other part of the world."

"It is a bill to allow people who are already American in every other way to become citizens. The Judd bill was unanimously recommended by a subcommittee in the 80th Congress, but it was caught in the closing jam. In this Congress, the bill has been overwhelmingly passed in the House."

"The Journal believes that it should be acted on by the judiciary committee and then passed by the Senate."

MEETS MAYOR . . . Jennifer Aoki, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isamu Aoki, 1104 31st Ave., extended an invitation to Mayor William F. Devin of Seattle.

VET NOTES MEMORIAL DAY

To the Editor, Northwest Times:

During the complacent and undisturbed years before the late world war, perhaps Memorial Day didn't mean very much to us except that it was a holiday. A day's vacation from work or school, a day perhaps, for a ball game, a picnic, or a fishing trip. Or, at best in keeping with the tradition, to enjoy the morning parade, and in the afternoon, to decorate the graves of loved ones long gone. Perhaps we knew it more popularly as Decoration Day — and not much more.

Yes, those were rather carefree holidays — before the cataclysm of war struck us, uprooting our families and homes, undermining our whole structure of communal life. Eight years have elapsed since those harsh and harried days of evacuation to our present day of readjustment, resettled once more to our former or new pursuits. The wounds of war are healed but the scars will always remain. And scarred forever in our minds is the indelible memory of our youth who marched away to war, and returned — in caskets bedraped with our country's flag.

Thusly, the full significance of Memorial Day has been brought home to us, to our minds and to our hearts.

Wholeheartedly and generously, the Japanese Community has donated toward a memorial monument, the unveiling of which will take place this fourth Memorial Day since war's end. As this memorial is a symbol of tribute to our honored dead, it is no less an unselfish symbol of greatness and gratefulness of the community's heart. With this in mind, all veterans, living and dead, share a common gratitude and a humble pride in the dedication and perpetuation of this memorial.

How can we veterans, the living, express our gratitude to our community who so honors them? There is one little thing all of us can do. The Nisei Veterans Committee has asked for the active participation of all veterans in the Memorial Day parade. As Nisei, we are naturally adverse to any ostentatious display of any kind — yet it is not for this purpose that we are asked to march. It will be our unified expression of homage, befitting the day and the memory.

Ample publicity about the parade has been given to veterans at large, but individually we may be dubious about taking part. And hinged upon each and every individual conscience is whether or not there will be a solidarity in this gesture, with an integration of action as well as of spirit.

Indeed it is a small sacrifice, if it may be termed as such, that each of us can and should make — in uniform or out, that matter being relatively unimportant. Undoubtedly we won't be asked again. It will be just this once — and once alone.

This is the voice of but one veteran, making this urgent appeal. For this Memorial Day, for our comrades, for our community, for our stake in America — veterans all, join me! I'm marching.

ON BEING PATRON, PATRONESS

This Saturday my wife and I are to be a patron and patroness at the Spring Tolo sponsored by the Valledas. From the appearance of things it looks like it will be quite a fancy affair at a fancy place, the Edmond Meany Hotel.

One of the fine things about being a patron and patroness is that you usually don't have to pay for the "bid"; I used to call it a ticket, but I guess that's kind of passe now. Thumbing through the "bid" I came across the formidable list of patrons and patronesses and immediately began to wonder how I happen to be included in that list.

When I look at my economic standing, I see "red"; my occupation is merely part-time instructor because I'm so busy, I'm only a part-time parent. I seem to be only half-baked no matter in what category I consider myself. About the only thing I have done fairly thoroughly appears to be "in-mating" at seven different institutions of "correction" (University of Washington excluded). What is it that qualifies a couple for the position of patron and patroness?

Slightly at a loss I turned to Funk and Wagnall and looked up "patron". Here are some of the things I found:

- (1) one who protects, fosters, countenances, or supports some person or thing . . . (Is that describing an aspect of dancing—such as, supporting your partner?)
- (2) a saint regarded as the peculiar protector of some special person, country, or cause . . . (Shall we pass on — I don't think this applies.)
- (3) Financial support given by customers to commercial enterprises . . . (Shall we pass this one too?)
- (4) one in the position of father, guardian, or helper toward another . . . (We might as well pass this one, too; the Tolo won't be needing this.)

Well, I'm still not clear as to my role. I used to think that patrons were easy to spot because they looked conspicuously older than the rest of the group. They usually looked bored, and were usually suffered as partners in exchange dances, most frequently by the officers of the sponsoring club. They provoked stiff, I mean, restrained conversation; their presence subdued petting. They tended to leave early, thank heaven. Today, I'm not so sure I appreciate all those earlier stereotypes of mine.

Towards the bottom of the definitions in the dictionary, there is a passage on "patroness". It says a patroness is a female patron. I'm glad to find out what my wife is. Now, what is a patron? Maybe, the comment on patroness applies — it goes on to say, a patron who promotes and assists in the management of a social event. Nope, I guess that doesn't fit, either.

Perhaps, the truth is that the patrons and patronesses are unnecessary evils that our culture attaches to the "better" social events. Personally, I can't see where a social function will collapse if it weren't for the p. and p. It, instead, usually means a half a dozen tickets on which you don't collect.

This is what I'll do. I'm accepting the ticket, I mean "bid", as a p. and p., but I'm preparing to attend the dance as one of the gang. (When I get as old as Bill Mimb, I may develop a little dignity and change my tune.) In the meantime, I'm looking forward to a pretty good time, which I don't think I could do as a patron as long as those old stereotypes persist in my mind.

Summer Opera and Concert Dates In Volunteer Park Disclosed

Dates for the summer opera and concert series in Volunteer Park were announced this week by Gustave Stern, music director for the Seattle Park Department. The opera company and the symphony orchestra will be presented on alternate Sundays, beginning July 10.

First in the series of light operas will be "New Moon," July 10, followed by the "Gondoliers," July 24, "Naughty Marietta," August 7 and the "Merry Widow," August 28. Orchestra concerts will be given on July 17 and 31, August 14 and 21.

All will be afternoon concerts with the tentative starting time set for 3:30.

Stern has not yet selected music for the orchestra programs, he announced, as he wishes first to determine what the public wants to hear.

"These concerts are being given for the single purpose of bringing musical enjoyment to the people of Seattle and I would like to find out what music they prefer to hear," Stern said. "We are prepared and willing to present anything from Bech and Beethoven to Gershwin and Jerome Kern but we would like to know the people's preference."

He also indicated that the programs would be arranged with an eye toward unity, the more traditional composers being included in one concert, modern and light classical music on another.

"While we hope to present a sampling of all kinds of music, we feel that offering music of one general type in a single concert will make for greater listening pleasure than presenting a hodge-podge of old and new, classical and modern music on the same program," Stern said.

He went on to invite all interested persons to write in and express their wishes on the type of music and the individual selections they would like to have presented in the orchestra concerts. Such requests and suggestions should be addressed to Gustave Stern, Seattle Park Department, 100 Dexter.

All written requests will be given full consideration in planning our programs, Stern said, "but we would like to have them sent in as soon as possible in order that we may go ahead with arrangements for sheet music and rehearsals."

Chicago League Okays H. R. 199

CHICAGO, Ill., May 28 — The Union League, an exclusive men's civic, social and patriotic club whose national membership of 3500 includes many eminent Americans, officially endorsed H. R. 199, the Judd bill for equality in naturalization and immigration, it was disclosed by the Midwest JACL-ADC office today.

The report revealed that support for the JACL-ADC sponsored legislation came as a result of representations and appeals made by two Nisei Chicagoans.

Veterans by the thousands are enlisting in the United States Army today. These men know the Army offers them a better deal than civilian life. See your recruiting sergeant, and find out if you can qualify for enlistment.

Four Outstanding Pin Stars

By unanimous choice, the four most outstanding Nisei league bowlers in the city of Seattle were Jean Numoto of China Import & Export, Toki Mizuki of Seventh Ave. Service, Bill Tanaka of Over the Top Beverage and Kaz Yamasaki of Standard Hotel.

All of them figured prominently in the championship triumph of their respective squads.

Miss Numoto was the one who held up C.I.E. throughout the race which finally turned out to be a one-sided affair in favor of C.I.E.

Mizuki, who got the knack of it at mid-season and continued to roll brilliantly, inspired his team to the title on the final night.

Tanaka, ever-consistent spare-getter, led off for Over the Top Beverage in excellent manner. His frequent high series pushed the beverage gang to the front.

Yamasaki, who carried an average in the 180's, was positively sensational for Standard Hotel which finally landed in the P.I. Champion of Champions tournament at Seattle Rec. In his own inimitable manner, he was the fellow who fired the squad to the Cosmopolitan Classic title.

And so the last of the tenpins fell in the '48-'49 campaign.

By Henry Yorozu

After a poor weekend prediction, I hardly feel qualified to carry on with this article, but after reading Beatrice Cook's "Till Fish Do Us Part" maybe I could do a little more. One thing, reading the book gave me some consolation as to why more fishermen don't catch fish and why some of the select few do catch fish. The book gave me a better understanding of my wife and her unsparing loyalty toward me though she is virtually what is known as a fisherman's widow. Much as I would like to take her, it just doesn't work out that way. Maybe some day when the kid is a little older we could bundle her up and teach her some of the tricks of the trade.

I see no reason why women can't go fishing with the men. Of course, there are a few breaches of etiquette incidents when women tag along, but for the married men without commitments, I can't think of a better way to keep peace in the family and fish in the ice box. One thing I assure you, your lunches will be a heck of a lot better. Women have a knack of preparing food which the men have yet to conquer—at least men in our category. Many is the time that I've looked upon sandwiches with utter disrespect and yearned for a couple of slices of "sushi" and tsukemono. After all, a good fishing trip can be had with a picniclike atmosphere even though the fish do hang tough and refuse to bite.

To you fishermen's Widows, I suggest you read "Till Fish Do Us Part" for a better understanding of your fisherman husband.

Swallowing all pride, I must admit that the fishing the past weekend for the saltchuckers was anything short of sensational. Too many long faces returned to the boat houses and too many dirty looks bounced my way. I guess Possession was as good as expected and few of the fellas came home with fish. Hank Obata topped the list with two fish to 13 lbs. It should have been three but one too many anchor rope got in his way and he lost a lunger.

Kellio Suguro was big man for the day with a 16 lb. plus fish taken off Skatnet Head. No Point was pretty sad according to Hippo Kawahara and Double Bluff produced a lot of Dog Fish for our part.

Point Defiance turned face down for the boys and those who did come up with one aren't saying how big it was. Don't tell me it was that bad. Anderson seemed to produce again but none of clan ventured down there as Possession was reported to be hot.

Fresh water fishing was more to the liking of some men than was the sound. For those who found elbow room among the thickets, fishing wasn't too bad. Even the greenest of the fresh-water boys came home with a few fish running around 8 inches on the average.

Issaquah creek was good to Cannon Watanabe, John Takizawa and K. Nagasawa with each catching 12 to 16 trouts apiece. Sammamish slough was hot for cutthroats and the usual early season creeks yielded Kanaka Boy Seichi Yamamoto took off to the hills with his boss and caught some fish up to 10 inches. He tells me the walk thru the woods was better than fishing.

I'd like to give a frank "hot tip" for the weekend but I'm just a little hesitant in saying just where. What I will do is try and go by logic and tell you that some of the places which will produce during a big minus tide is the best bet this weekend.

With plenty of feed in at Gig Harbor and a minus-three tide, I'd say that Defiance should be good. It has always produced at this time of the year when there is a big outgoing tide.

You might also try Anderson Island which has been one of the most constant producers this year. My brother-in-law, Fudge Fujii tells me that you can't miss out that way when the Dogwood is in bloom and, being the old sage that he is, there may be something to that. No Point should come around this weekend and if you don't mind the tide try Possession again. I know that there's fish there.

For the fresh water boys, stick to the creeks. The green below Flaming Geyser should be good and the Cedar is a sure spot. Lower Deschutes is coming around fine and some of the upper reaches of the Snoqualmie should be about ready. You can forget the lakes for this week. The running waters will hold more fish.

I might add that the tide this Sunday is perfect for clam digging. Try Eglon Beach. They hold some mighty fine "Goosey Ducks" there. Salt Water beach always produces nice big butter clams and Gig Harbor has "Tako" for the Issei. Benny Yoshida and some of the Valley boys always seem to get one or two out that way. What about some "Nori" and if you can't get anything, I know where you could get some good "Fuki", or am I carrying my column too far.

Whatever the state, I'm sure with my lengthy predictions, I should make a few of my readers happy. To the distraught wives and girl friends of the Waltonians, go to the library and get a copy of "Till Fish Do Us Part". No kidding it's good reading.

Club members will engage in 36 holes of medal play, with the "A" and "C" flights to play at Jefferson Park golf course, and the "B" flight to match strokes at West Seattle golf course.

The first big tournament of the year was the Spring Handicap in April in which Jimmy Okimoto, Eddie Okamoto, and Kasai were the winners of the A, B, and C flights respectively. The coming Komon Tournament will be the last big event before the Annual Open which has been scheduled for August.

VISITED HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Juro Matsumura and their children, Gary and Janice, from Ontario, Oreg., were visitors in Seattle this week.

Tourist Tips

Visitors to Umeda in Gunma Prefecture, Japan, can see the evidence of how antiquity has done its part to lick the modern housing shortage.

Professor Tatsuo Ozaki of the Gunma Normal School, who had unearthed a number of previous relics in a nearby valley, got even more ambitious with his digging recently. Northwest Airlines Information Bureau reported. He had gone down about 25 feet when he came upon a gourd-shaped object that proved to be an ancient house.

The dwelling, believed to be about 7,000 years old, is now open for inspection.

It appears that those temperamental actors, the volcanoes, are getting a bit jealous of one another.

Let one of 'em attract the attention of tourists and another begins to get hot under the collar.

Not so long ago Mauna Loa in Hawaii got quite an audience of natives and visitors when it began to erupt after a long dormant period. Now, Mt. Asama in Japan, which has been calm since its big explosion in August, 1947, has become active again. Officials of the Maebashi meteorological observatory warned that the big blow-off might come almost any time.

Tourists re-visiting Japan and those going there for the first time will see a new sight. The Benten-bashi bridge, which connects Enoshima Island, well known beauty spot near Kamakura, with the mainland. The bridge was recently opened with colorful ceremonies. The structure, costing 14,000,000 yen and taking six months to build, is more than 400 meters long and four meters wide. Eighty brilliant lights have been installed along the railings. The bridge is a feature of the Kamakura - Enoshima tourist playground.

American Silver Spoon Inspires Paris Fashions

Two of the lace-trimmed gowns inspired by the sterling silver spoon that went to Paris and made fashion history are: (left) evening gown by Raymond Barbas, director of Jean Patou organization, and bridal gown by Pierre Balmain. Mr. Barbas is comparing lace of his gown with lace-like openwork of the "Queen's Lace" pattern, the spoon of which is shown directly above.

This is the story of an American sterling silver spoon that went to Paris and made fashion history. It's also the story of why it will be fashionable for this year's June bride and graduate to wear gowns, robes and lingerie highlighting lace.

It all began early this year when a New York fashion expert chanced to see a sketch of the spoon. International Silver Company planned for its new sterling pattern, "Queen's Lace". The expert was so impressed with the lace-like openwork, delicate beading and graceful, sweeping lines that she asked permission to take a spoon with her the following week to Paris.

Though only a few spoons were available, the company permitted the expert to take one. She arrived in Paris at the time designers were working on creations for this year's spring and summer markets. During a conference with a famous gown designer, the American woman showed him the silver spoon. He looked intently at the spoon . . . reached for paper and pencil . . . and in a few minutes was sketching a bridal gown that featured the same lace-like design as the silverware.

That designer was the famous Pierre Balmain. Other name designers, too, were inspired by the spoon. Molyneux created a short evening dress, Jean Patou interpreted a lace and net evening dress, and Marnier made trousseau pieces—including gowns, slips and negligees.

Adaptations of these Paris originals . . . as well as the Queen's Lace silverware . . . will be available for the June bride and graduate. It now is an established fact that lace, a wartime casualty, once again is back to please the fastidious. The spoon that went to Paris now made America lace-conscious once again.

The Enlisted Reserve Corps of the United States Army is expanding, and there are openings for veterans of all the armed forces.

The Science of Extirpation

By "KIKUBARI"

Since the mass slaughter of civilians in Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the study of atomic radiations has progressed so far that scientists believe the human race will have to undergo rapid physical mutations in the near future if it is to survive this Atomic Age. According to the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington, it is known that Japanese survivors in these cities suffered intensely from the effects of ultra-radiation which killed off thousands of children and increased greatly the number of miscarriages, abnormal children, and mental and physical disorders. American sadism has done its worst; yet today there is no sign of basic change in the way the Japanese feel and think, states a visiting professor of political science from Melbourne University.

Commenting on the possible effects of radiation as a means for liquidating the posterity of the race, the Atomic Energy Commission states that "the larger dosage of radiation received by the first generation the more descendants will die prematurely or develop abnormalities." And the inference that Dr. L. R. Donaldson of the University of Washington draws from experiments with marine life subjected to atomic bombing at Bikini and elsewhere, is that "the grandchildren of Nagasaki and Hiroshima survivors will be less fruitful than normal parents and will produce more still-born and misshapen offspring, that is, if they have any families at all."

While American scientists are quite positive about the fate of Japanese and cocksure of their experiments with fish, history teaches nevertheless that the planned extermination of a population is a very antiquated form of political suicide and the last resort of desperate strategy. It was a strategy that effaced the civilizations and cultures of ancient Egypt, Babylon, Assyria, and Persia from the earth; and had it not been for the discoverers of archaeologists of the nineteenth century, modern science and learning would have no knowledge of those vanished powers, whose monuments record how their leaders gloried in the extirpation of small nations and peoples. — most of whom have survived to this day without sign of physical mutations.

One thing can be predicted for certain of the Land of the Rising Sun. After the night shadows are fled and dispersed, there will come a more vigorous democracy which will submit neither to the rule of a military Junta; nor yet swallow whole the Yankee scientific yarns that Vice-president Alben W. Barkley ascribes to "those who are educated beyond their intellect."
