MOST JAPANESE SUPPORT U. N., SURVEY SHOWS

But Only 54 Per Cent
Know about Peace Organization

TOKYO, Japan, Dec. 16 (Nippon Times Dispatch)—Only 54 per cent of the Japanese know what the United Nations is, but out of the total more than 80 per cent are in support of the world peace organization, according to a public opinion survey conducted recently.

The results were obtained in a large-scale survey carried out after the landing of the U. N. forces at Inchon last September.

The survey followed the multi-sampling method, dividing the country into 12 blocs and picking up 1,052 persons at 170 municipal points and another 1,948 at 255 county points. Some 88 per cent of those addressed replied.

Of those who replied, 54.2 per cent said that they know what the United Nations is. 45.8 per cent said they didn't know. They were asked, "What do you think about the United Nations as it stands now—do you support it or don't you?" Strongly supporting it were 40.4 per cent; 40.4 per cent to a certain extent; 12.9 per cent neither in favor nor against; 0.8 per cent against to a certain extent; 0.1 per cent strongly against; and 5.4 per cent scratching their heads.

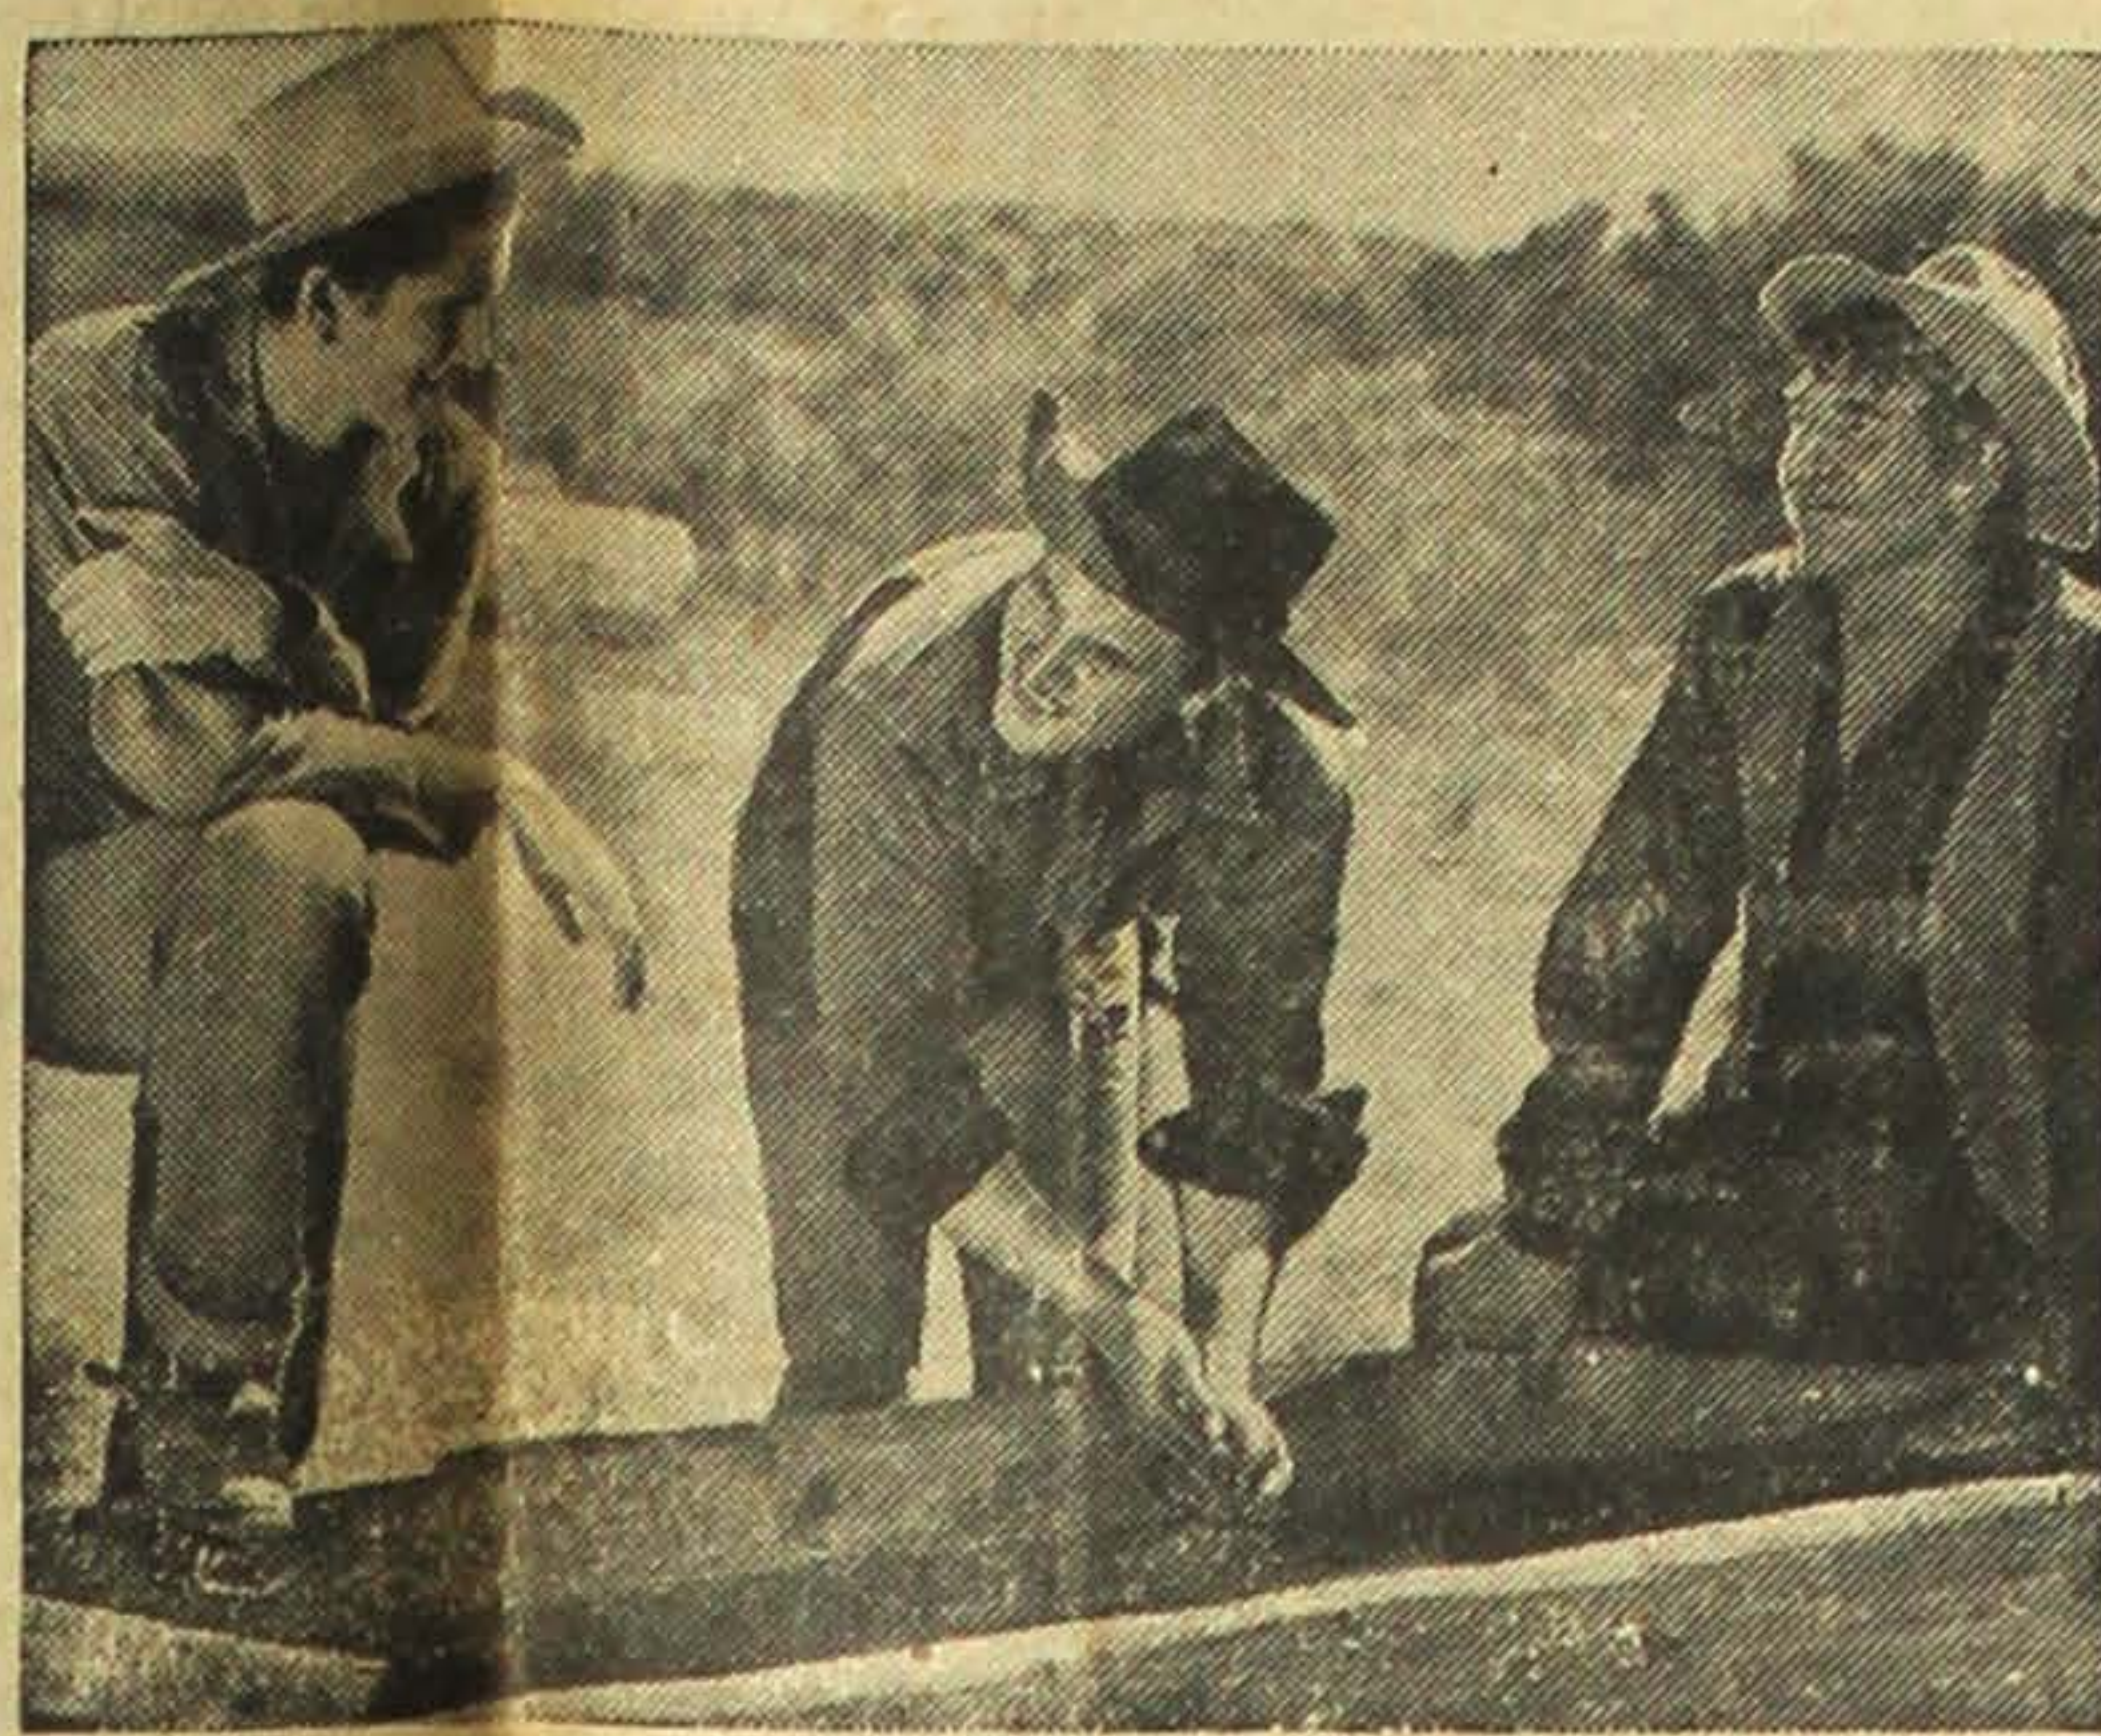

Asked, "Since the Korean conflict broke out, have you changed your mind about the United Nations?" (Only among those who had replied they knew what the United Nations was), 26.1 per cent replied they have, 69.4 per cent that they haven't, and 4.5 per cent that they didn't care to answer.

Of those who expressed themselves in favor of offering cooperation to the U. N. in regard to the Korean war, 10.9 per cent said, "all-out cooperation", 11.3 per cent "cooperation with armed force", 6.1 per cent "by offering military bases", 2.9 per cent "with human resources", 17.5 per cent "economic cooperation", 11.4 per cent "moral cooperation", 7.6 per cent "all other means" and 28.2 per cent "don't know".

APATHY OF PEOPLE TOWARD FLAG NOTED BY NIPPON TIMES WRITER

By KIYOAKI MURATA
One fine autumn day in 1948, an American intelligence officer driving through rural Japan was shocked to see Rising Sun flags fluttering among farm houses. But he was soon assured by his colleagues that the Japanese had been permitted to display the national flag on national holidays by decree of General MacArthur on September 17 of that year.

Restrictions on the display of the national flag was completely lifted on January 1, 1949, by SCAP's New Year's Day address. And today the flag which six or seven years ago appeared as pernicious and abhorrent as the Nazi swastika seems as harmless as a toy gun to any American. But the Japanese as a whole have shown considerable reluctance in availing themselves of the once forfeited privilege of displaying their national emblem.

No doubt this general loss of attachment to the national symbol prompted Education Minister Dr. Teiyu Amano to issue a circular last week. He told the education authorities throughout the land: "It is desirable that the national flag is raised and the anthem sung at times of school functions, commemorating national holidays. I strongly recommend also that government agencies and private homes alike raise the flag on those occasions."

The reason for the prevalent apathy toward the national flag, however, is significant. The Rising Sun brings back to the people who suffered from the disastrous war odious memories. It was under that flag that the youths were taken away from their families and that many of them died like dogs. The hue of the red which in the Japanese tradition once signified "purity of heart" now is associated in many

LUCAS URGED TO SPEED OK OF MEASURE

Private Legislations
Sifted in Favor Of Walter's

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16 (ADC)—Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas this week was asked to help speed passage of the Walter Naturalization bill through the Senate.

In a conference with Lucas, Mike Masooka, national JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee legislative director, recalling Senator Lucas' promise to the 11th Biennial convention of the JACL last October, urged the majority leader to press for Judiciary committee approval of the measure so the Senate will have an opportunity to vote on it before the session ends.

At the national convention in Chicago, Senator Lucas declared that he would do his best to insure passage of a bill eliminating race in naturalization during the "lame duck" session of the 81st Congress.

Meanwhile, a source on Capitol Hill today predicted there was a good possibility the Senate would approve the measure during the present short session.

Masooka said, however, that with each passing day prospects of Senate approval become more slim.

The bill passed the House last week and was referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

There is little doubt the committee will give its ok to the Walter Naturalization bill, if—and it's a big if—it gets around to acting on it while there is still time for the Senate to vote.

Should Congress wind up its business at the close of next week, as some now predict, the Judiciary Committee will have but one more regularly scheduled meeting—next Monday, Dec. 18.

Thus, if the bill does not get committee approval by then there simply may not be enough time remaining in the final days of the Congress for this legislation to become law. And even if the bill is given committee approval by next Monday, it still will be a race against time for a vote in the Senate.

Nisei Attends Amvet Session

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16 (ADC)—Ken Uchida, former Inter-mountain JACL District chairman and president of the Ogden JACL chapter, was in Washington last week for a meeting of the national executive committee of AMVETS. He is a committee member.

While here, he visited the Washington JACL ADC office.

Beside his activity in JACL and veteran affairs, Uchida is a member of the Utah Democratic Central Committee from Weber county.

Japanese minds with that of bloodshed. Likewise, the national anthem, though it had never been banned officially, has seldom been heard since the surrender. Although the older generations, who were born and reared in the Meiji Era, are said to have a sort of nostalgia for "Kimigayo", the reaction of the younger generation to it is similar to the feeling held against the flag. A letter to the editor of leading journal stated in response to the Education Minister's plea:

"How painful are the memories recalled by the national anthem! It reminds us of the hopeless life of the students who were drafted to work in munition factories and of the tens of thousands of those who never returned from the battlefield. . . . How could a song in which the people eulogize the Emperor who is their own symbol be a national anthem? Furthermore, should the song which is directly associated with imperialism be permitted today? The Education Minister who grew up in old Japan may be able to sing it but how can we, who have grown up in the darkened age?"

Another wrote: "It is necessary to raise the national flag and sing the anthem on every possible occasion. But they should not be the flag and anthem which carry with them the dark shadow of gloom and sin. The Rising Sun was a symbol of aggression in the past. I cannot stand looking at it. We must first replace them with a wholesome and truly democratic flag and anthem."

One top-notch journalist made a revealing analysis of the underlying reason for the apathy of the people toward the flag. In addition to the odious associations they carry, he said, there is a sort of guilt complex which deters the people from displaying the flag. It is a feeling of guilt for having trampled upon the Asiatic neighbors under the banner of the "Holy War". Although he had in his own editorial urged the people to raise the flag more often, he stated that he himself would not raise it. "I lost the flag in an air-raid, and, besides, personally I don't care to raise that flag even if I had one." He added that his attitude represented that of a majority of Japanese intelligentsia.

There were opinions which run counter to that of the editorial writer. Once a disheartened father wrote to a paper that his own child had thought that the Japanese national anthem was a "swimming song" when he heard it at a Japanese-American swimming match. And at least another school child thought that the Rising Sun was a "repatriation" flag because it was the only thing in connection with which he had ever seen the flag.

If these instances indicate anything at all, however, is something that is not necessarily as disheartening as the Education Minister and some fathers might think. That is, the Japanese educational system since the end of the war has been rid of nationalistic elements. This is, in the case of the democratization of Japan, an essential prerequisite.

If, on the other hand every sovereign nation must have a national emblem and anthem for the up-bringing of its own children, Japan should have ones which are free from all abominable memories. The reason why proposals for designating new ones have been squelched so far is that the leading citizens of the country did not feel it necessary. The reason is simple. As stated previously, to the older generations the national symbols are not as odious as to the younger. But which of the two should be more important? After all, the future of Japan belongs to the younger generations, and to them there is today no national symbol which is not contaminated by heinous memories.

NATORI CHOSEN TO LEAD PSGC FOR NEW YEAR

Cabinet, Committees Also Elected at Annual Dinner

Ed. K. Natori, long an active member in the club and recognized as one of the outstanding Nisei golfers in the Northwest, took the office as president of the Puget Sound Golf Club for the coming year at the group's annual bonenkai Wednesday night at the Gyokko Ken. He succeeds Toru Sakahara.

Natori's cabinet will consist of George Shimizu, vice president; Yoshio Urakawa, recording secretary; Jaxon Sonoda, corresponding secretary; W. Nakamura, treasurer; John Funai, tournament chairman; Frank Hattori, rules and grievance committee chairman; and Mac Kakeko, social chairman.

Committee members elected from each flight were as follows: 1st flight—Young B. Lee, Minoru Tai; 2nd flight—Toru Sakahara, Shizuo Tazuma; 3rd flight—Dick Momoda, Ted Jue; 4th flight—Terrance Toda, Tom Hidaka.

Among other matters voted by the PSGC were:

1. Unanimous support of the 2nd Annual National Nisei Golf Tournament next year for which Seattle was the sole bidder.
2. Continuation of the Golfer of the Year Award.
3. Holding of more tournaments in Tacoma in deference to loyal Tacoma members, each of the club's four flights to play at least once during the coming year in Tacoma.
4. Retention of the $5 membership due, with monthly tournament fees to be decided by the committee.
5. A businessmen's tournament (36 holes) instead of the Komon meet in June.

Team Game — Nagamine-Bepu's and Sakahara Insurance, 933.
Team Series — Nagamine-Bepu's, 2759.

While every team was watching every other team, Fred Takagi and his West Coast Printing keggers quietly began to move out into the front in the Nisei Commercial league last Tuesday night in Main Bowl.

The printers knocked off their usual "2500" to turn back Puget Sound Vegetable Growers' Association of Summer, 3-0. Every member, except one, hit a 500-plus series on the West Coast squad. The winners' big guns were Fred Takagi (549) and Frank Yokoyama (536), and the others were David Wong (520) and Brownie Nomura (506).

PSVGA found out that West Coast was a "rough team to beat". Dave Botting (535) and George Ota (526) were PSVGA's best.

Iwata Insurance had three men — Floyd Yamamoto (560), Kenny Oyama (528) and Benny Nakata (523) — in shape as it stopped potentially strong, Jackson Grocery, 2-1, to advance to the runner-up spot. Yo Maekawa (521) and Tony Rambonga (500) kept Jackson in the contest.

The fellow who was rocking the pins hard, however, was Tak Shibuya of Nagamine-Bepu which came to life with a puissant 2759 series to topple Coast Wide Supply, 3 to 0. Shibuya, one of the topnotch Nisei bowlers in Seattle, hit 244, 222 and 200 for a 666 series, a season high. Pruney Tsuji and Bill Tanaka, two more stars, added 500 and 581 respectively for the triumphant auto dealers.

For Coast Wide, the punch was supplied by Tak Yoshijima (523), Ben Sugawara (521) and Bill Ihashi (507).

In other contests, Red Front Tavern blanked Tad Katayama's Gardening, 3-0; Royal Amusement tripped 12th Ave. Service, 2-1; and Sakahara Insurance beat Twentieth Century, 2-1. Five-hundred-plus series were Osa Edamura (558), George Tanaka (533), Tomio Hamasaki (510), Manabu Fujino (501), Mas Shibuya (520), Shig Sumioka (558), Sab Yamashima (531), Jim Kuramishi (521), Shoichi Suyama (504), Jack Shlota (541), Tom Hidaka (552), Roy Fujiwara (531), Roy Tanagi (522) and Tuk Tada (503).

One of the important reasons why Takano Studio is not to be taken too lightly in the SNGBO (Seattle Nisei Girls' Bowling Organization) pennant chase is YoYo Konishi, anchor woman.

Miss Konishi, who has been consistently setting up excellent scores, bashed the tenpins for a 604 series, the first of its kind in the SNGBO loop this year and one which many

The Takano Studio satellite stirred the hearts of fellow bowlers when she climaxed her charmed "600" affair with three deuces, 222. Her team, naturally, beat Martha's Beauty Shop, 3-1. Mary Maniwa of Martha's wrapped a 209 game in a 508 series.

N. P. Hotel provided some incentive for action on the part of upper-division clubs by taking league-leading North Coast Importing, 4-0. Ruby Nakauchi of N. P. enjoyed a 516 series for the winners.

Frank's Jewelry moved up to share the top spotlight with North Coast by smashing Russo's Enterprises, 4-0. YoYo Ishii of Frank's gave a firm helping hand with her 496.

Other results were: Ken Nogaki's Buickettes 3, Gyokko Ken Cafe 1, and Tall's 4, Tom's Grocery 0.

Senators Skip Walter Bill

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16 (APC)—The Senate Judiciary Committee met Monday but failed to act on the Walter Naturalization bill, the JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee reported.

The committee spent the morning discussing private bills only.

Mike Masaoka, national JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee legislative director, said while no regular meetings of the committee are scheduled the remainder of the week, it is possible the Judiciary may hold a special session. If so, he is hopeful it will act on the measure, recommending its passage to the Senate.

Unless the bill is approved by the committee, the Senate cannot consider it.

The House passed by Walter Naturalization bill last week without a dissenting vote.

TEXTILES IN FURNISHINGS

When faced with temporary quarters, large or small, the so-called furnished house may be given the look of a home with a collection of well chosen textiles, easy to pack, unbreakable, and of little weight.

Those who have learned this secret: know how to find those useful articles of artistic merit which give individuality to any dwelling.

It is surprising what one choice fabric on a table, a small rug, or embroidery or block print, with perhaps a lamp, a bit of pottery and some books, can do to make the undesirable features melt away.

When ugly upholstered furniture is encountered, there are ways of forgetting it. A quiet printed fabric, as an India or Persian cotton or even a natural gray linen may become arm rest or back rest covers. If the fabric is not conspicuous in color or design, it can be used in many places unobtrusively.

Curtains are the greatest hug-bear. Windows vary so in size and proportions.

Of course, large and long curtains from a previous dwelling can be cut down to fit. Then, what to do when the next temporary place has larger windows? The problem cannot always be solved by merely pulling something out of a trunk or chest.

For make-shift in living room or bedroom, there are attractive cellulose curtains on the market, and inexpensive, too. They are printed and made flame retardant and will last a year or so. In some cases they have lasted five years. Smart looking plastic ones in stripe design are suitable for some rooms. These also do not require laundering.

Still another treatment for windows is one that most people overlook. In case there is little need for privacy and especially if the room looks out on a pleasant scene, why not just keep the glass sparkling clean and use no curtains? There are ways of softening the window frame — a quick-growing vine may be induced to trail around part of the window, or a bit of ivy in a little pot serves to break the plainness.

Venetian blinds are too expensive to install in a temporary home, but the new match stick shades are comparatively less in cost and can be painted or stained any color.

Probably bedspreads and covers for couches do the most to furnish a room. These chosen for individual taste can make a room seem to belong. There is Grandmother's beautiful old quilt, a hand-woven coverlet, an India print, a light weight oriental rug of right proportions for a couch, or maybe a hand-woven blanket picked up during travels which has intrinsic art value and personal associations.
