Invite 11 Nations to Begin Talks For Early Japanese Peace Pact

Senator Cain and Mayor Devin Act | Propose Voice To Have Seattle Named as Site of Treaty Conference on August 19

U. S. URGES VETO END IN NEW PARLEY

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 18-The State Department this week formally invited the 11 nations on the Far Eastern Commission to hold a preliminary "peace conference" of deputies and experts on a Japanese peace treaty Aug. 19.

Although it was not made clear, the site, the United Press learned will be either San Francisco o Washington.

Senator Cain, Republican, Washington, and Seattle's mayor, William F. Devin, have started a move to have Seattle named as the site of the treaty conference, it was learned today.

This government(it is understood, also has proposed that the Big Four-Britain, China, Russia To Start Soon and the United States-give up, in such a peace conference, the veto they have held in the Far Eastern Commission which drafts occupation policy for Japan.

Reports that scores of persons are being poisoned by tainted shoyu sauce in other states, mainly California, give many of us Nisei who tove our sukiyaki and sashimi dipped in that flayoring stuff a rather sour taste for dinners these sultry days.

Seattle food inspectors, we are happy to report, have found no evidence of any poisoning from shoyu.

That means but one of two things:

We are strong and tough people, or We have missed the affecting drop of bad shoyu shipped from Illinois way.

Our only hope is that the Illinois product will not reach our dinner tables. We could easily forget about our being rugged people.

Now that the shooting is over, applications of businessmen for permits to visit Japan are being accepted by the Department of Commerce whose field service offices are in 809 Federal Office Building, First and Marion, Seattle.

It will be like old times for many businessmen who, prior to Pearl Harbor, did extensive trade with Japanese firms.

Only the official signing of the Japanese peace treaty stands in the way of normal trade between the United States and Japan.

In any event, issuing of permits to visit Japan is a healthy sign that Seattle once again will assume the role of "gateway to the Orient."

The Sporting Thing

Hal Hoshino who was kayoed by Henry Davis recently in Honolulu has decided that he is "definitely through" with the ring.

That decision was the smartest thing Hal ever did in his life. Much as it hurt his pride to quit just when he thought he was rolling, Hal, we believe, made the right, sane move.

The knockout shattered Hal's hopes of climbing back into the select ten in the featherweight division, but it saved Hal from absorbing a probable worse beating in later bouts. The surprise kayo also left Hal still mentally and physically healthy, and for that we should thank God.

Just before Pearl Harbor, Hal loomed as a fistic terror among the top-ranking featherweights in the world. His sharp, hard punches were feared by all. His boxing ability, overshadowed by his hitting prowess, was by no means puny as he exhibited when Henry Armstrong, the three-crown champ, sparred with him once in Seattle.

We knew Hal from the time he was a raw amateur learning the tricks of the cruel trade from Lonnie Austin in the small, dingy gym in the Arctic club on Third and Cherry. Hal caught on fast, won the Northwest Golden Gloves championship, and lost in the Pacific Coast finals by a slim margin in Los Angeles. When he turned pro, he went great guns, kayoing one after another.

Then Pearl Harbor ... Hal laid off almost five years.

As in the ring, Hal, being a keen competitor, should make a go in any field he undertakes. We are pulling for him one hundred per cent.

There will be no more copy about Hal Hoshino, the boxer, but let's hope there will be some articles we could do when Hal Hoshino turns to a profession which would not require the use of fists.

GREELEY, Colo., July 15-Explaining the two-fold program for the democratization of Japan, utilized by the Supreme Command of The Allied Powers in Tokyo, Dr. J. Darrell Barnard, chairman of the division of science at Colorado State College of Education, addressed the daily book hour on the campus recently on Japan-Educational and Economic Trends.

While serving with the army Dr. Barnard was a member of the staff of the Civil Information and to tell us long time no see and Education section of SCAP in Tokyo. Cast out of the Japanese schools were military training such as Judo, and fencing, Dr. Barnard said, and such courses as Japanese geography, "which was designed to develop militant nationalism," and history, which he said, was mostly fiction. Another course that was abolished was the morals course which taught Shintoism. First step in the positive pro-
