NATIONAL JACL CONFAB DATE CHANGED TO SEPT. 4-8

Judd's Measure Aids Japanese

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 6—Congressional enactment of the Judd naturalization and immigration bill, H. R. 4824, introduced during the closing minutes of the special session of Congress by Representative Walter H. Judd, Minnesota Republican, will all but complete the slow and gradual development to extend the privilege of citizenship to all qualified residents of the United States irrespective of race, color or national origin, the Washington office of the JACL Anti-Discrimination Committee reported today.

Under the Judd measure, the individual's character and ability, not his color or ancestry, would become the final test of the privilege of becoming an American. His bill, designed to eliminate the last vestiges of racial bars to naturalization, would thus round out the long and historic process in this country in which citizenship has been granted to various racial groups who constitute these United States.

The original nationality laws of 1790 permitted only "free white persons" to become citizens. In 1870 the privilege of becoming an American citizen was extended by Congress to include persons of African nativity or descent. Thirty years later, this right to obtain naturalization was given to the inhabitants of Hawaii and in 1917 to the inhabitants of Puerto Rico, and finally, in 1924 to the American Indians. In 1927, the residents of

21 from Seattle Granted Presidential Pardons On Draft-Dodge Charge

Twenty-one American-born citizens of Japanese ancestry from this area are among 1,523 Selective Service Act violators who recently received full pardons, including the restoration of their political and civil rights, from President Truman.

In its report, the President's Amnesty Board, headed by Owen J. Roberts, former Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, issued the following statement on the wartime dilemma of a number of Nisei convicted of violation of the Selective Service Act:

Closely analogous to conscientious objectors, and yet not within the fair interpretation of the phrase, were a smaller, though not inconsequential number of Americans of Japanese ancestry, who were removed in the early stages of the war from their homes in defense coastal areas and placed in war relocation centers.

"Although we recognize the urgent necessities of military defense, we fully appreciate the nature of their feelings and their reactions to orders from local Selective Boards.

"Prior to their removal from their homes they had been law-abiding and loyal citizens. They deeply resent classification as undesirable. Most of them remained loyal to the United States and indicated a desire to remain in this country and to fight in its defense, provided their rights of citizenship were recognized. For these we have recommended pardons, in the belief that they will justify our confidence in their loyalty."

The twenty-one Nisei pardoned by President Truman from this area are as follows:

Hitoshi Gene Akutsu, Jim Akutsu, Frank Shinichi Hino, Gordon Kiyoshi Hirabayashi, Kaoru Kita-

yama, Shozo Kiyomizu, Ted Yutaka Kuramoto, Frank T. Matsuaki, Hiroto Nagasugi, George Nakagawa, Isao Nakashima, Saburo Numoto, Nobuo Omoto, Roy Yasuo Omoto.

Kunichika Sakaguchi, Sumio Sakaguchi, Ken Keichi Tainaka, Mamoru Takashima, Frank K. Tashiro, Frank Hideo Yamasaki, Kentaro Yasuda.

Hirabayashi, a central figure in a figure in a Supreme Court test case on the evacuation of Americans of Japanese ancestry from the Pacific coast, told the jury at the time of his trial in Federal court on the Selective Service Act charge that his religious convictions prevented him from participating in any form of military activity. He was convicted of failure to report to a camp for conscientious objectors and sentenced to a year in McNeil Island penitentiary.

Presently an associate in the department of sociology at the University of Washington, Hirabayashi is married to Esther Schmoie, daughter of Floyd Schmoie, Northwest secretary of the American Friends Service Committee in 1944.

What the Seattle JACL chapter has in mind in regard to welcoming the ADC leaders has not been disclosed yet.

OUR NEW LOOK

How do you like our new heading? We ourselves think that it is very distinctive and appropriate. With the above heading, furnished through the courtesy of "Ye Editor", we thus take on a new look for 1948, which we hope will be a portent of better things to come.

TOURNAMENT MUSINGS

The first All-Oriental Basketball Tournament is now a matter of history, and likewise the fact that it was a "smash hit" from start to finish. The success of the tournament was assured when close to 2,000 fans crowded into the Seattle College gymnasium to witness the first night's play; and the fact that Seattle appreciates a good basketball show was proved when a capacity audience, many of whom could not find seats, saw the final two games of the tournament on Sunday afternoon.

Congratulations of the highest order are due to the tournament co-sponsors, the NVC and the Caythay Post, for putting on a truly professional show all the way through. The results of careful planning and hard work on the part of all committee members are easily apparent as the tournament spectacle unfolded and carried through to a spectacular finish. Competent managership on the part of the co-sponsors, combined with the high caliber of basketball and and sportsmanship displayed by the participating teams, the fine publicity given by all the newspapers and the enthusiastic patronage on the part of the community, made the tournament a memorable affair and one which will be hard to top.

All participating teams left with heartfelt memories of Seattle hospitality and with an eager desire for another invitation. The success of the next tournament is THUS a foregone conclusion, and perhaps the hardest job for the next renewal will be that of picking and choosing among all the teams which will be fishing for invitations. Truly, a pleasant note upon which to end a tournament!

THIS 'N THAT

JOE NAKATSU'S New Year will not really commence until next Sunday when he marries Miss Miyo Kuramoto. The wedding will be held at four o'clock in the Buddhist temple, followed by a reception in Gyokko Ken Cafe...the Nisei Veterans Committee wishes to acknowledge with grateful thanks the generous donations to the chapter by Bill Hattori of Moses Lake and Dick Naito, the local jeweler...basketball fans are still talking of Willie Wong, the amazing little sharpshooter of the championship St. Mary's Mission team of San Francisco; he proved to be as elusive as smoke and possessed of a deadly "soft" shot which rarely missed its mark...yes sir, he gets our vote as the finest Oriental basketball player we have ever seen, and with just a little more height, he could be favorably compared with Wally Palmberg, the great OSC flash of several years ago...

Lanky Tak Hiyama of Chicago scored 49 points in the two Sunday games which his team played and won for the consolation title; his play under the boards was a big factor in the comeback of the Huskies...for fight, determination and tireless ball-hawking, the Hawai All-Stars were tops; their fire and drive really earned the plaudits of the big tournament crowds...and they gave the tournament champions a battle all the way in the thrilling final game...Washington's grand old man of basketball, "Hee" Edmunson, who was present throughout the tournament, presented the championship trophies during the intermission of the wind-up dance in spacious Palladium, and manager George Ishihara, in behalf of his team and Hawaii businessmen, also presented calabash bowls to each of the veterans' organizations which co-sponsored the tourney...and so, friends' that's all for this time from Ex-GI Joe...

Vengeance Is Mine

BY KEN ADACHI

A GAUNT AND RAGGED figure stood waiting in the shadow of a palm tree...

The man was Abdul, once an opulent merchant who had risen to a high station in life by dint of much sweat and toil. At the peak of his success he had been attacked by his jealous brother Kasbar and had been left for dead on the burning sands of the desert. And Kasbar usurped his brother's place.

Fleeing to a distant country Abdul had plotted his revenge, laying his plans in secret with the youngest brother, ambitious Cain, who still worked for Kasbar.

Abdul had confided everything in Cain. Then one day Cain stopped answering all letters. Abdul concluded that Kasbar had discovered the plot and had done away with Cain.

His bitterness and hatred against Kasbar increased because Abdul loved Cain dearly.

But now the day of vengeance had come. The wind blowing over the desert settled to a soft whisper and clouds besmirched the face of the heavens. Abdul's burning eyes strove to pierce the shadows of the dusk...

His plan was simple. He had sent a note addressed to Kasbar. On it was a terse message:

"Meet me at the water hole at dusk." The words "An Admirer" were scratched below in delicate hand.

Abdul knew Kasbar's egotism and the note was one which might have been written by a love-sick girl. Abdul was confident that Kasbar was not one who could resist such an intriguing invitation.

Abdul clenched his hands as he heard footsteps padding softly over the desert sand. Someone was approaching stealthily.

Abdul held his breath. At that moment the fingers of the approaching figure flashed in the pallid moonlight which sifted through the mottled sky. The fingers were heavy with jeweled rings which had once belonged to Abdul...

It is Kasbar alright, thought Abdul as he studied the bearded face of the man who looked about him carefully and then sat down on the sand to wait patiently.

In his hiding place Abdul stroked his dagger, then checked himself. This would be too quick, too merciful. Kasbar must be made to suffer.

The pent-up hatred pressed heavily on Abdul's breast. He walked out of his hiding place and with a smile playing around his mouth, he confronted the other.

"So we meet at last, Kasbar," he said.

The other man leaped to his feet, his nostrils dilated in fear and surprise. His hand moved, but before he could draw his dagger, Abdul pounced at his throat like a savage beast.

Abdul's hand curled around his brother's neck, and slowly squeezed the life out of the struggling victim.

There was a gleam of wild triumph in Abdul's eyes as the lifeless form of his brother slid down and lay still at his feet.

Suddenly Abdul noticed something queer about his brother's beard. He grasped it, and it came away in his hand. And Abdul found himself staring into the lifeless face of his favorite brother, Cain.

'MAC' LAUDS LARA'S WORK FOR JAPANESE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 8—General Douglas MacArthur in a statement received today by officials of Licensed Agencies for Relief in Asia praised the program of LARA in Japan and urged its "continuance and expansion" as "necessary to sustain the progress made to date."

In his statement the Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers in Japan said that the LARA program "met a very definite need in assisting the rehabilitation of the Japanese."

Licensed by SCAP in July 1946 as the agency which all voluntary donations for Japan from organizations in America were to be channeled, LARA started shipments in November of that year. In its first year of operation, it has been the channel for close to six and a half million pounds of relief supplies, valued at approximately $2,000,000.

The agencies composing LARA are: Church World Service, War Relief Services—National Catholic Welfare Conference, American Friends Service Committee, Mennonite Central Committee, Brethren Service Committee, Lutheran World Relief, Inc., Salvation Army, the YMCA, the YWCA, the C.I.O., and the A.F.L.

the Virgin Islands were included in the eligible-for-citizenship category and in 1940, the races indigenous to North or South America.

While the Oriental peoples have never been barred from citizenship by name, it was not until 1943 that the first Asiatics were extended the privilege to become naturalized by an act of Congress. The first to benefit were the Chinese. They in 1946 citizenship rights were granted to the Filipinos and the natives of India. But the right to become naturalized is still denied to a number of other peoples of Asia and of the Pacific Islands. They include the Japanese, Koreans, Siamese, Burmese, Malaysians, Afghans, Javanese, Sumatrans, Netherlands Indians, Guamians, and British and French Pacific islanders.
