Hisa and Sumito had three children. Eddie, the eldest, born Oct. 26, 1949, was a computer specialist. He passed away several years ago. Raymond was born Mar 3, 1952 and still lives in California working In the construction trade. Danny, the youngest, was born Nov. 28, 1953 and works for SMUD. He keeps a close eye on his Mom since he lives in the area.

Hisa and Sumito had kept up their correspondence and decided to get married. Hisa left her position with the Lumsden family and took the train back to Penryn. Hisa and Sumito were married Dec. 18, 1948 at her sister-in-law's home by the local Buddhist Priest. For the wedding Hisa wore a simple medium gray dress without a veil. They exchanged rings in the ceremony. She and Sumito, whom Hisa affectionately called "Daddy", did not have a honeymoon since Sumito had a job at Rusty Uratsu's Fruit Farm in Loomis. They had a small cabin there at the ranch. Sumito brought his new bride home and gifted her with a new washing machine, refrigerator and a nice gas range. Although plumbed for water inside, the "outhouse" was appropriately apart from the cabin. They stayed here for about a year and then, with new baby Eddie in tow went to Newcastle, to Green Hill Orchards. Sumito worked here for about 10 years, during which time Raymond and Danny were born. Eventually the family moved to Penryn, where Sumito worked for Suzuki Ranch and Hisa completed her High School Diploma and worked in the Housekeeping Dept. at Roseville Community Hospital for about 15 years. The boys all graduated from Penryn Schools and Del Oro High School in Loomis.

1) Hello friend. I dropped this card at Minneapolis Minn. I'm on way to Chicago and if I have time I will visit Arkansas.
I will write and tell you all about it later on.
So please take good care of yourself till I come back. So long
