Dear Kan,

Don't be alarmed at the extraordinary stationery. It just happens to be the form we use for our menus, and since I have a dozen of it on hand, I might just as well use it, n'est-ce pas?

Thanks so much for your two letters. The very impressive envelope made me wonder for a minute who in the world could be writing me air mail in such important style. And it was only you!

Since I last wrote, I've secured a job here at Stanford & am enjoying it immensely. It's very easy, as you can judge from the fact that I'm doing this letter-writing during business hours. My hrs. are 8:30 - 5:00 with $\frac{1}{2}$ hr. for lunch — it's really wonderful! To think that I'm working at Stanford, of all places, after having graduated from Cal. Gee! What disloyalty, eh? But a job is a job no matter where it is.

Golly! I can't even tell what you are doing by the letters you write. You speak of working in kitchens and then on buildings — just what are you doing, anyway?

You certainly seem to have a lot of diversified activities. Is it a training school, or a job, or what is it? At any rate, you seem to be enjoying it whatever you're doing & that's much more important.

Saw Yui about a week & a half ago when our Darnes group got together for dinner & then to hear Leopold Stokowski conduct at Treasure Island. You've no doubt heard from Yui about our group of ten U.C. grads who get together once a month for no reason at all. But we do have fun & it's the only way we keep in contact with each other. Funny how we all drift our own separate ways after school days are over.

Wish I could tell you what's happening to our J.A.L.S., but you know about as much as I do about it. It seems a shame we've allowed it to drop into oblivion so it has. We really should have a strong group especially at the present time, but somehow we don't seem to. With election coming up & everything, why can't the group be a little more alert - I wonder.

I hear you are an uncle again. My, oh my! You certainly ought to be proud! Well, don't get too pigeon-breasted. Do write again if you have time. Bye.) Tak
