This last years can from a print we have & the text from a publication identifying the print. We thought it was pretty clear. This year we just bought. Its a sample of what we used to do next year? I think will borrow from your little rebus book that you salvaged.

Instead of rice, they use food made from roasted wheat, with meat and fowls as relish, followed by fruits. For drink, they have a kind of red-colored wine. Their method of eating is quite different from ours. The dishes are served up separately, one after another.
