NEWLYWEDS

Dearest Kaneji,

thank so much
for your time, generous ~~offer~~ ^{gift}. It will help us find a new home.

Melissa, my sister-in-law, our sister at Stanford, regrets not having had a delightful chat with a colleague ^{at the wedding}; she said that you look quite ~~wise~~. We have some lovely photos of you; we didn't realize you got out on the dance states so often!

as you know, you are very much part of our lives.

Thank you.

Soon winter, "GAND, sing ~~Goddam~~ Gand damn" - (pardon the misspelling) - and an excuse to wear a hat. I hope that style will permit me the chance to be a bit different so that I might be that difference in people's lives. That's a mystery I can't explain. I'll try again. It seems that those who appear out-of-step quite often are marching the best.
Let me, I hope, let us also join that march, that walk-for-life, that you among our treasured friends exemplify so well.

So much for immutable mysteries!

I recall Sutton Manor and my strolls into the unknown. Often I would meet you and you would ~~throw~~ ^{best-meet} a few gems my way.
What a G-d blessed place you inhabit. There is such love there, even in this asphalt jungle which lies outside the pillars of our (love)home.

May the Great Spirit, the oneness of life, keep us in your loving kindness and warm in your heart as you remain in ours,

J. M. + Penny B.
