Dear Sally:

I fear Hoper & I are both pretty disgraceful correspondents & you should make no apologies! We think so often of all of you and are delighted to have the snapshots of both babies. How the small boy is growing. You must find life very strenuous without your husband as assistant nursemaid, & it is fortunate that the two wee ones get on well together - not luck but good management on mother's part!

I do hope the departure will be soon and that you'll all land on your fect in congenial surroundings. This war "existence" isn't life at all + it must be difficult to continue being a good sport under such trying circumstances.

As no doubt you've been told, Mr Wellington has a beautiful exhibit of oriental art in the Art Museum, + whenever I go in, to count as a tallied statistic, I half expect to see you smiling at the door. It sounds as though I dropped in merely to swell the attendance which isn't the case at all, for the show is exceptional and the attendance takes care of itself without much assistance from yours truly. One Sunday I in-

970 Miller Avenue

tended to go to his four o'clock lecture after playing the chimes. However I good heartedly took up some passengers & when I let them out of the tower another load appeared and it looked as though I'd spend the rest of Sunday afternoon in the elevator! The Campanile is closed "for the duration" so the only time anyone goes up is when we play. After three loads, with more customers each time I closed shop & hurried off to the power house, but he was half thru by then & I've never heard the whole story!

Hope went to Carmel with Anne Alvarez for the few days between terms

The vacation was all too short with her final on Friday, but they got off Saturday afternoon, returning Wednesday. Very unfortunately it rained most of the time. Of course it rained here, too, but It. thinks of Carmel as wet & gloomy & I love it & wanted her to have warm sunshine. Too bad! Her opinion hasn't changed & she can't get to Echo which she loves but which is really inaccessible now.

The day she returned I had a wisdom tooth out & am squirrel jawed on one side as though nuts replaced the wisdom. Sorry I picked the eve of registration because my jaw gets plenty of exercise. However I'll live through it!

My very best greetings to you

Margaret Mundock
