

November 6, 1939

Dear Kaneji:

Although Christmas is still far away,
since I have just thought about it, I am enclosing check for $10.00 as my Christmas gift to you.

I suppose you will coming home for the holidays, and am anxiously waiting to see you then.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Tomoko', written over a horizontal line. The signature is stylized with loops and a long horizontal stroke extending to the left.
