

has been for several weeks. He looks fine in a civilian hat. He has his job with Public Works but not the road construction.

That does not affect my position in the house. I play a lone hand as usual. Get my own breakfast and dinner is brought in to me. I live an entirely different life to the rest of the household, I prefer it that way and I guess they do.

My coming North this summer is very problematical but I hope I'll say love to Millie and to any of the clan whom you come in contact with and believe me

Love

So I in a good doctor will hold on, Millie is not out of the woods yet, but if she slips on she will be. It takes a lot of courage to carry out that lemon-aid business. Don't come to me for advice (medical) My fee is $64 in advance. I don't get stung in the same place twice, but I am sure surprised that I answered the $64? and rite off the bat at that.

I don't know why I got anemic but I know when it started and that was in Brooklyn. I believe I eat properly, I don't swallow my knife or drink out of my saucer or put my elbows on the table, or gargle my soup, but I do have unmodified milk, two glasses each meal with Hemo. I take Vitamin B1 complex capsules with iron and get a shot of liver extract in my sit-down Dept. twice a week. My Doctor bill for last month was $47.50 If that keeps up much longer I'll go broke, and I have not found any Cement to mend Pocket Books but work and I cannot work cuz I can't stand on one leg. Now put that all together and make sense and I'll pay you $64 - and give you a sack on the Kaiser business.

Now Agnes, why dwell on that birth certificate, I never had one that I know of, although I know I was born, and it has not prevented me from growing up to be what I am. As for St. Georges, like many another church, it has a snob for a rector who needs a good sock and the buzzer and I'd like to give it to him, I have had several bouts with ministers and have not been licked yet.

A lot of Jannies will be marching home before long. Ned is home
