March 7, 1926.

What Sam said to me, after—

Mr. Harp's unsuccessful attempt to give gas—

Holding my hand, "Well, Agnes, we have to prepare for a long siege. I may get well, and I may not— but we will sell everything not absolutely needed, or anything not having sentimental value.

I will sell all my books— and go to a loan— not pay more than $30 or 40⁰⁰ per month.

Don't show me tears, Agnes — I have been happy with you — have nothing to regret — you have done everything you possibly could to help me conquer this sickness, you have done everything I told you —

"I have no money to give you — only hope and courage, if you can lean on them."

"You poor girl, you've given everything to me, your money — your life, you've exposed yourself — for four years to T. B. — what more could you give — I'm only sorry I have not done enough for you or my country.
I wanted to give you some comfort — ~~to~~ to take you to Japan for a trip. I have not done enough for you in return for all you have done for me.

I will go to a Con- and you will come up to see me once a month or every 2 months.
George will be happy with the Lewis' in Jersey - and you will get work in N.Y. - a governess perhaps - you will have recreation once in awhile.
Have nice clothes. Be brave.
Don't get discouraged -
