Dear Yuri -

Just a short letter to let you know how much I enjoyed our long distance. Wish it could have been longer. Reminded me too of past phone conversations. The ones that started with "Hello + Hello Yourself". Hope I get the chance to talk to you again. And according to the hotel operator, we talked exactly 17 minutes. Wish it had been sixty. Just hope that I was able to put your mind at ease.

Was roaming around Dayton's, one of the largest dept. store in Minneapolis, buying things for the family when I happened to notice the Richikiew beads. Reminded me of the strings I saw at Jeffery - the ones that averaged a hundred dollars ^{a bead}. Priced it and found that its monetary value was less than a two pound box of candy. Was surprised since it was so good looking. Hope you like it in spite of the absence of hocking value.

P.S. That fellow who made the jeep is now manufacturing baby tanks. Will send you one if you want.

We're translating a captured diary of a Japanese seaman now. It's very well written. Hope I'll be able to lift a few interesting entries for you.

Many Happy Returns.

G.S.
