Dear Yuri -

Believe it or not, I'm on a furlough again. In fact, the whole school is on a furlough. They decided that it was a good idea to give students short leaves every two months. Decided to take one since they were passing them out anyway.

As you can see from the stationery, I'm staying at the Nicollet Hotel. And every time I sink my 5'2" in the tub, I ~~wish~~ forget Savage and the army. Some life, eh? Wish you were in Denver - then I'd call you. They have a phone right beside the bed so it's handy.

The furlough is just for five days. If it had been for a few days longer, you'd have found me knocking at 6 F 5 C. Maybe I'll have better the next time.

Dined and danced last night in the Terrace room of this hotel. They have a swell orchestra and a floor show (Not exactly like the one a certain party of three saw in Chinatown in Trisco)

Have lots of time so have been window shopping the last few days. All the large stores have Easter displays - spring outfits, and etc. Keep wondering whether you and others in camp ~~what~~ will have Easter at all. Too bad there isn't no Mt. Davidson in this vicinity. That's the hill in S. F. that had the giant cross.

Don't know much about New York except the plays I saw, but I think you'll like it there. Have you given the Y job further thought?

Tak Nagi was here for the weekend. She, The Endos, Min + Aya, the Shire Omates, and I spent most of the time talking of olden days in this hotel. Wanted to show her Menneapolis but the weather turned out to be rainy. Did treat her to a nice thick steak and China Meshi. But that's about all. She saw the University of Minnesota but acted in different. Must be the memories of good old U.C. We had a few dances at the U.S.O. - she said it was her first time on the floor since evacuation.

Going out to North Minneapolis to visit a nursery - The Rose Acres. Trying to see if they'll hire my brokers. Will write more about it later.
