Hello Yuri -

I'm supposed to be in Australia but it sure doesn't feel like it. Must be due to seeing all my classmates from Minneapolis. Can't tell you the name of this place, but off-hand I'd say Camp Savage, Jr. wouldn't be a misnomer. Met Mas Yoshioka in a nearby restaurant. Guess you already know that he was one of the lucky fellows.

all the way from Minneapolis to this place. Must have been an exciting ride. For us, I thought I'd never see Land.

Been here a week now so I'm getting used to thinking in terms of pounds and shillings. Whenever we buy anything, we mentally convert the prices into good old American dollars and cents. Have found that prices are reasonable. Food prices especially are good. A steak dinner being only three shillings (78¢). Haven't found a restaurant with a good coffee yet. Here, the average person orders tea. Going into town so will tell you about it the next time.
