Dearest Yvri:-

A week and a half of summer session has passed. The first week was the longest I've ever spent, but this week is going at such a fast pace that I'm beginning to think that there aren't enough hours in a day -

The session and activities are given in concentrated form, so there's hard work and hard play too.

I've tried to hit the road on Social Studies this summer by taking - Applied Statistics and Economics and also Secondary Education.

I was talking to ~~the~~ my Educational Psychology teacher, and I told him about the Sociology course for Social Workers you were telling me about that was given in the East. He said he would like to get detailed information on it. There's another department that's very interested in Post-war programs, and so they would be very happy to get that information. Would you give me the details or the address, so I can send for ~~the~~ materials?

Or if you know of any other educational opportunities of such a kind in the field of Social work or otherwise please let me know.

But I think that I will let Statistics go until next summer and take "Introduction to Research" instead - for the 6 weeks course. My adviser thinks I should take it instead. Statistics is rather complicated, but interesting.

Economics is one way to go "nuts" when June is around trying to explain about supply and demand. Secondary Education is interesting in itself.

I'm taking teaching methods and Piano techniques in Piano from Mr. Izumi. I think he's a wonderful teacher. (but he's married with a wife and 2 children. Lewis his son is a piano genius.)

IV.

We've moved into a college house with 15 other girls. It's much funner being with the hobbits. We go to school activities, movies, and church together and have our version of "rejuvenation" at home in the evenings.

Pat is visiting us now for a while. Lue enrolled her in the college's summer school. She enjoys it.

I hope your Dad is better, and that things are going fine otherwise.

Best of wishes to you and the rest of the family. My best regards to all.

I'd be glad to hear from you -

Very Sincerely

Mary
