

GRAND CENTRAL ANNEX

Mrs. Yuriko Inukada
13 Parkman St.
Boston¹⁴ Mass.

#1.

July 13, 1945
Friday —

Darling,

— just came back from making the call. I didn't think about making the person to person call. Just wanted to hear your voice so much that I jumped into a drugstore phone booth.

I guess it was better that we had to hang up because —

I didn't mean to scare you.

darling.

It's so good to hear your voice your darling — didn't give you much chance to talk but just one word from your lips was what I wanted.

Saturday

Another Saturday but tonite I do not feel so restless as past ones. Guess the phone last nite made the difference.

Ah yes, no work on Saturday. Today I messed around the kitchen again

I better hurry up now or else you'll be welcomed into an uncompleted apt.

How is the linoleum? Have you told Miller that Dick is down here? Probably D upstairs already told him.

Sonic Masao is taking a furlough at S. G. I guess I'll write to him and ask him to send me my photographs.

Nothing much to say today honey.
But all is OK here. Dick is full of pep and raring to go on Monday.
Wishing hope you feel the same way.

Kiss to Wak.

And love all a hug, and lots of kisses to my wife — Dick.