Dearest, darling, sweetest. — Wife.

There is your husband again! No wonder you haven't much time to yourself, me tothering all the time.

The B- has a friendly visitor, so I shall visit you. This paper used to be the Company letterhead. The Mr. is out to lunch, now it is about 1:30. I usually have sandwich, pie and coffee and candy for lunch.

Woke up this morning by god-awful rain and thunder. The trains were held up and I was 1/2 hour late to the office. The B came in around 10:30. By then I seemed very busy.

Honey, have your two guests arrived? By bus or train? I said to Margaret in the note that we'll get acquainted after Mrs. Tumbada gave me a build-up. Do you suppose I deserve any?

Just came back from lunch, sweetheart. Everybody, people are talking about Churchill being ousted. Personally, it isn't a very serious condition because the B. Son. system is an extremely fluid one with most of the internal mechanism being operated by a staff of permanent, usually trained civil servants.

By now, I guess you received both the book and fibres. Did you have to go to the P.O. for the book?

I still haven't heard from Ted Brother. Getting rather anxious to receive the picture albums as a letter to some effect.

See why, one more day and another weekend to spend alone. When you get down here I sure hope that you have a free day week. Think of it two whole days together every weekend!

I'm going to study this job of mine real serious.
There are a lot of angles to it and right now I'm figuring out what part to concentrate on first. There are such things as, foreign import laws, freight handling financing etc. which are all very complicating. ~~Get~~ ^{then there} ~~set around~~ there are geography, U.S. regulations etc.
When! That Mrs. Trubada, my darling, at home. You are are going to get just plain Mr. Trubada, your love and husband.

Bye for now and as they say there, "come again?"

Bye and love,

Uick.

Honey, Margaret just telephoned - from work. She said she is going up by train Saturday morning. She has very nice voice but I didn't do all the talking so she couldn't get a word in edgewise.
