Mine Okubo: Artist

"The aim of Art," Aristotle has said, "is to represent not the outward appearance of things but their inward significance; for this and not the external mannerism and detail, is their reality."

Quoting this with approval, Miss Okubo adds, "What one is after is not in the realm of ego, talent, skills, projects, and doing your own thing, but actually getting back to understanding what is universal and common. In Art, one is imaginatively simplifying it. What I have to say in Art is a matter of seeing and understanding."

See Yuri!

With my it is and it isn't clarity of mind and vision and with my knowledge and keen insight into people and life I decided to dedicate my life to this highest inner vision beauty art.

It is ones own challenge and a hell road all the way for one is going towards Universal Truth. In the society and people world it is to follow and to play along.

This research took 50 years and now with the final integrity answers to life and art I have arrived with inner vision beauty art Okubo. A long lonely journey but a joyous challenge towards Wonders and Betterment.

My Christmas cards each year were to tell every body that I was taking this difficult total odds road towards Universal Truth.

A merry Xmas and a Happy New Year.
Wishing you good health and joy.

Sincerely,
Mine Okubo

Thank you phone call. I know you are busy. I'm so busy as I have to do as ~~much~~ <sup>much</sup> & everything myself as This is my own challenge. — so many old people old people as  $\frac{1}{2}$  time go to hospital, glasses & all — alone — my time is out hours so no sleep — a hell road but <sup>with</sup> <sub>it</sub>.
