

Party

WHILE two Wongs may never make a "wight," they managed to get together recently and make an interesting party.

The occasion was the opening of "The World of Suzie Wong" at the Shubert theater. After the opening performance the cast and a number of other guests were invited to Jimmy Wong's Cantonese restaurant, where they partied until the small hours of the morning.

Restaurateur Jimmy Wong and Suzie Wong (she's really actress Jeri Miyazaki) get together for some chopstick chomping. The cast partied while critics bared their fangs.

Delores Dicen, a Filipino-Hungarian who was educated in New York, chats with Irving Wonder, treasurer of the Shubert theater.

Sam Lesner, Daily News movie and night club critic, takes notes while he interviews Mary Mon Toy, who plays the role of Minnie Ho.

Moira Wylie and Linda Ho discuss the opening night performance with Tom Helmore, one of the stars. The play ran for two years on Broadway.

Cast and Friends Get Together
After Opening Night Performance

The world of Suzie Wong moved temporarily after the opening night performance at the Shubert theater to Jimmy Wong's Cantonese restaurant, who closed his establishment to the public for the Suzie Wong party.

Andrea Loa and Irene Tsu sign the guest book. Chicago critics panned the play, which came in for a four-week engagement.
