

Chapelwood Garden Club Sets Workshop

Members of the Chapelwood Garden Club will interrupt their summer activities for a bit of flower activity Saturday when they stage the first of two summer workshops.

The session will be held at the Parish House of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Lappans, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Mrs. S. J. Gower, Sr., a member of the Hagerstown Garden Club, will serve as consultant for the workshop which will stress line arrangements.

Members will bring flowers, containers and a lunch.

Weds Friday Evening

MRS. AUDREY VERNON FLEAGLE
 (Miss Linda Ellen Detrow)

Miss Linda Ellen Detrow, this city, and Audrey Vernon Fleagle of Rouzerville, Pa., were married Friday, July 5, in a quiet evening ceremony performed in Hagerstown Church of the Brethren.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Detrow, Mt. Aetna Road. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon C. Fleagle, Rouzerville.

The service took place at 7:30 o'clock in the evening with the Rev. DeWitt L. Miller, D.D., officiating.

The bride wore a white street-length dress with a bodice of wool knit and satin enhanced by sequins. The dress was also fashioned with a chiffon and satin skirt with tie belt.

She added a short veil of illusion arranged from a pillbox hat of chiffon leaves. The bridal bouquet was made of white orchids and delphinium on a Bible.

The couple left after the ceremony for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and through the northern states to Canada. For traveling the bride wore a coral linen sheath dress with white accessories.

The couple will reside in Waynesboro, Pa. where Mr. Fleagle is a machinist for Landis Tool Company.

The bride graduated from Boonsboro High School in 1961 and attended Frostburg State Teachers College.

Mr. Fleagle graduated from Waynesboro High School in 1956.

Sharpsburg's Bi-Centennial Queen

SUE ANN DELAUNEY, a pretty poetess

Teen-Ager Battles Poison Ivy, Wins "Miss Sharpsburg" Title

A bad case of poison ivy nearly kept Sue Ann DeLauney from competing in last night's "Miss Sharpsburg" contest but she made it — and she won it.

Sue Ann missed a rehearsal and officials were afraid she'd miss the contest.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas DeLauney, Sue Ann is a 16-year-old petite brunette with a pretty smile (despite the poison ivy.)

As her part in the competition, Sue Ann delivered a three-minute speech on the history of Sharpsburg which she had composed into poetry.

Clifton Smith, director of the Bi-Centennial pageant Wednesday and Thursday of this week, was so moved by the oration that he invited Sue Ann to recite her poem in the pageant.

As "Miss Sharpsburg", Sue will reign over festivities of the 200th anniversary in Sharpsburg.

She was crowned by Miss Rebecca Ann Kretzer and presented a patriotic bouquet of red, white and blue carnations.

Among her other prizes were a transistor radio, watch, and pen and pencil set.

Sue Ann is an incoming senior at Boonsboro High School. Her interests span the gamut from teaching and the Peace Corps to art and gardening.

Other contestants, all dressed in pretty summer frocks, were Miss Linda Barkdoll, Miss Sandra Davis and Miss Dottie Turner.

Each delivered a short address on events in Sharpsburg's past, rattling off names and dates like they were part of their everyday lingo. They won many prizes and were given arm bouquets.

Judges were Mrs. Helen Lewis, Mrs. Nona Clever, and Gilbert Everline.

The auditorium of Sharpsburg Elementary School was decorated for the contest with baskets of flowers, bouquets of flowers and vases of flowers. Pastel streamers formed a canopy over the stage where each girl presented her speech.

Miss Louise Hebb was the mistress of ceremonies.

Beauty after Forty
 by Edyth Thornton McLeod

"My skin is dry. I am using cosmetic oil and wish to use the make-up suitable for a woman of 48, with graying blonde hair and blue (faded) eyes. My dentures did not improve the shape of my mouth, so I wonder if I should now use lipstick."

Use your cosmetic oil as a foundation for powder. Before applying powder, however, use just a touch of cream rouge in a shade for blondes, and blend carefully. Then use a light touch of blue eye shadow on your eyelids. This will have the effect of deepening your eyes. Yes, wear eye shadow even though you wear eyeglasses. Your face powder should have just a fine tone of pink (have it blended at your cosmetic counter if you cannot get the exact shade to match your skin tone). If you do not use a bit of lipstick, you will look undressed, so apply your lipstick to the upper lip more than lower lip. Be sure to wear your makeup with what I call "understatement."

"Would a pale blue linen sheath dress look right at the ten o'clock wedding of my niece? We live in a small town, and the wedding is in August. What color accessories?"

Yes, and it is quite appropriate. Wear white gloves, a white hat and eye white pumps pale blue to match your dress. A small bag will complete your smart appearance.

"I have gray - blue hair, my skin is fair and clear, my eyes are brown, and I'm 68 but try not to look it. Would a beige dress with touches of blue-violet be becoming to my type of complexion, etc."

—Nan.

Beige is a bit hard for a gray-haired woman to wear, but if you will use a bit of rouge and a hat of the blue-violet you will "get away" with it very well.

Thomas Told Making Movies Like Having An Operation

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Making a movie is like having an operation," says ace cinematographer Leon Shamroy. "Eight weeks after it's over, you forget about all the pain it involved."

Crusty, straight-talking Shamroy was enjoying a rare rest at his Hollywood Hills home. He mused about the biggest operation of his long, award-filled career—"Cleopatra." It was also one of the most painful.

"But that's all past," he philosophized, "and now the result is up there on the screen, like it or not. Personally I liked it."

I think it's a good movie. Photographically it's one of the best I have done. I would rank it with 'Leave Her to Heaven' and 'Forever Amber' among my best work."

Shamroy admitted that "Cleopatra" was made the hard way. "They did everything wrong," he groused. "The Italians shoot their pictures outdoors, from about April to October. That's the only time you get good weather. So why did we start out outdoor stuff in October? After a week and a half, I told 'em, 'This is stupid; let's move indoors.'"

"But the studios over there are not equipped for big indoor shooting. Sets like the throne room were built here and sent over and they were too big to fit the stages. There was never enough power or equipment. We had to send all over Europe to get enough generators and lamps."

"Besides which, we didn't have a script. Joe Mankiewicz was writing it as he went along."

they wouldn't give him time to prepare."

Shamroy, who isn't easily swayed, came out of the experience a fan of Elizabeth Taylor's. "You can say what you want about her. I still think she's the only really exciting star we've had since Carole Lombard," he remarked.

Pennsylvania Restaurant Unit To Meet

CHAMBERSBURG — Richard C. Funk, executive vice president, Pennsylvania Restaurant Association, Harrisburg, will speak to the charter members and guests of the PRA's new Mason-Dixon Chapter at their first meeting, 8:00 p.m., July 15, at the Hitching Post Inn, Chambersburg.

Funk will tell the story, "Your Trade Association in Action" and will answer questions from the group.

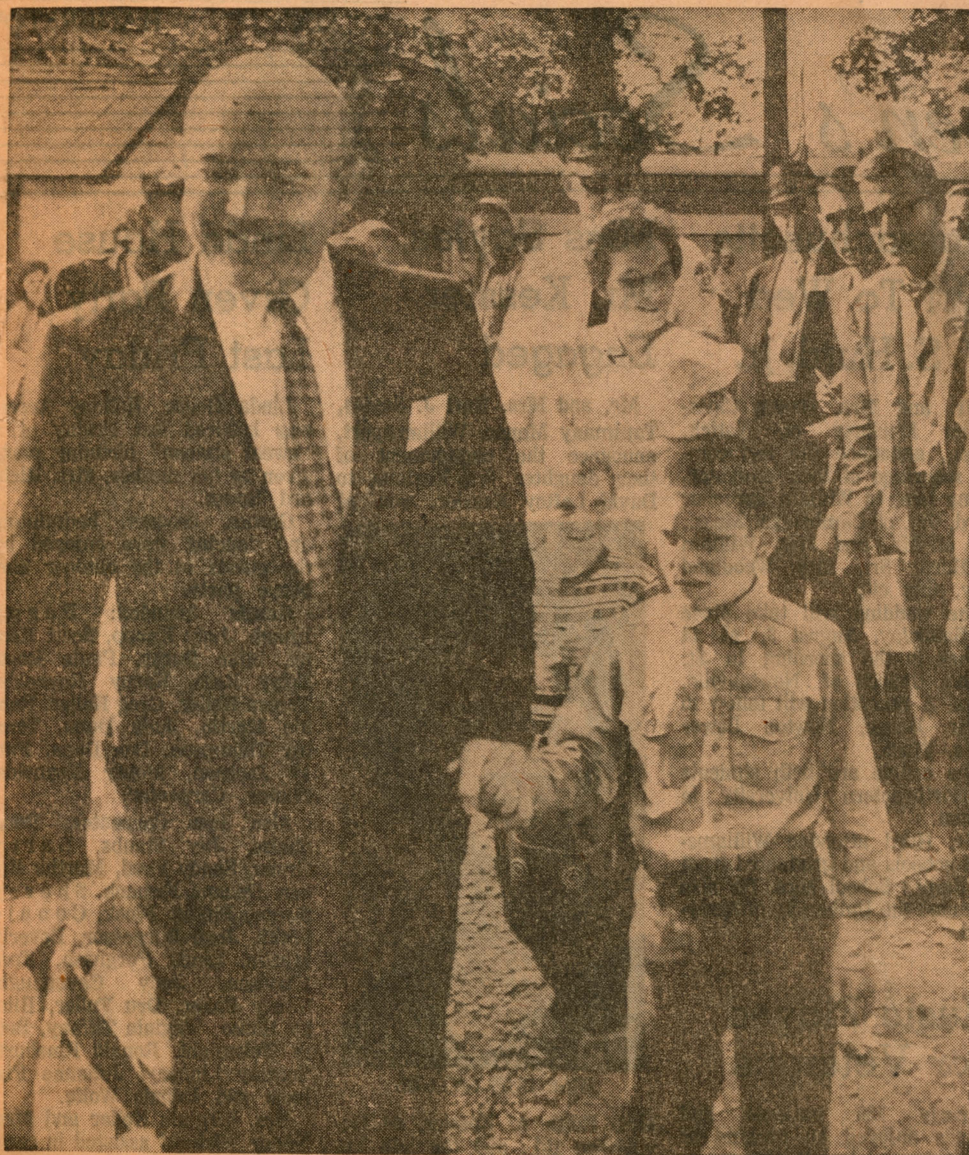

Also featured on the program will be William T. Coffield, Jr., executive vice president, Greater Chambersburg Chamber of Commerce, who will present ideas on "Building Better Tourist Trade". All food service operators in the area are invited to attend as guests of the group.

The Pennsylvania Restaurant Association has, for over twenty-six years represented the best of the food service industry in that commonwealth.

Its over 1600 members carry out an ambitious year-around program of education, legislative information, and business information.

Guided by its "Code of Ethics", members work together to provide better food and service for the eating-out public while also cooperating in worthwhile community activities.

R. C. Hobson To Head Md. Welfare Board

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Board of Public Welfare chose Raleigh C. Hobson of Richmond, Va., Monday for the $17,500 a year job as head of the Maryland Department of Public Welfare.

Hobson is tentatively scheduled to take over direction August 19 of one of Maryland's most important state agencies. He succeeds Thomas J. S. Waxter, who died last November.

Hobson has held positions with several local welfare agencies in Virginia, and for the last 13 years has directed The Department of Public Welfare in Richmond.

In 1961 he was appointed to the Ad Hoc committee on public welfare by Abraham Ribicoff, then secretary of health, education and welfare. The recommendations of this committee served as the basis for most of the 1962 amendments to the Social Security Act.

Hobson was elected for two terms to the board of directors and executive committee of the American Public Welfare Assn. He also was chairman of the National Council of Local Public Welfare Administrators.

NEW PASTOR—Rev. J. Rowland Reichard, 71, has retired from the Manor Church of the Brethren near Tighmanton. Rev. Jimmy R. Ross, 28, preached his first sermon during services Sunday. Ross, a graduate of Bridgewater College, is the new pastor. He attended Bethany Theological College in Chicago. He, his wife Betty, and their four children will be the first residents of the new parsonage on the Sharpsburg Pike.

Md. Alumni To Hold First Family Picnic

The University of Maryland Alumni Association of Washington County will hold its first family picnic Wednesday, July 10 from 5 to 10:30 p.m. at Cold Spring Park near Waynesboro.

It will be a Dutch picnic with dessert and beverages provided. There will be games for the children and recreation facilities will be available for everyone.

Lewis Schnebley is president of the association. Picnic committee members are Harry Vollmer, Charles Huyett, Gilbert Bohn and Charles Downey.

The picnic will be held rain or shine.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"
In Love With Married Boss, She Left Husband; Now Burns With Frustration

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I suppose my problem is old-hat to you, but please help me.

I am 30, have one child, a daughter 5, and have been separated from my husband for a year, because I felt there was no love in our marriage.

I won't go into details (as that isn't my problem), except to say that I talked with our pastor before I left my husband and he seemed to feel I was acting on mature reflection, with good reason.

About six months prior to leaving my husband I had returned to work in an office where I was employed before marriage. This time I have a different boss. He is 46, married, childless.

We fell in love from the start, I guess, though neither of us admitted it until four months later. I knew Dan was what I was looking for and he felt the same. From the start we both knew we wanted to marry. But we don't seem to be making any headway towards it and I have been miserable most of the time.

Somehow I can't bear sitting and waiting (like some kind of vulture) and pretending I don't mean any more to Dan than just a secretary. It was something beautiful to me, yet I can't feel that way when our love is hidden and sneaky.

GIVES HER BOSS AN ULTIMATUM

I guess I know he truly loves me, otherwise he couldn't put up with my hatefulness. But if he loves me so much — the love of a lifetime, as he says — how can he continue his marriage?

I have given him an ultimatum: if he is still with his wife by August 1, just forget me. I have thought of all sorts of things I could do if he doesn't decide either way. Such as go back to my mother's to live, or back to my husband, to make my word stick. The trouble is I don't want to leave town and I couldn't go back to my husband as it wouldn't be fair to him.

I don't know what to do, or who is right, who is wrong. Except of course that the whole thing is wrong. But I don't feel I am taking Dan from his wife. I firmly believe if there is love in marriage, that don't happen.

PROBLEM INHERES IN HER PERSONALITY

Your lamentable experience, in leaving the frying pan for the fire in pursuit of love, indicates that you operate "strictly from hunger," as the phrase is.

By your own admission you react with rejection in relation to your husband, and with hatefulness in relation to your paramour, on finding that neither man is any better able to love than you are. Which surely means, as I said before, that neurotic incapacity to love is the kink in your personality that needs correcting.

You are going in circles, getting nowhere, so long as you try to make sense of your senseless involvement with your boss, who is a neurotic type in his own right. To get a line on what motivates Dan's romantic urge, and how little the "other woman" can expect from him, read Dr. Edmund Bergler's book "The Revolt of the Middle-Aged Man" (A.A. Wyn, publishers).

PLAINTIFF HERSELF UNABLE TO LOVE

Dear V. J.: In condensing your letter to fit this space I've omitted much relevant detail. For example you say: "I am from

BERRY'S WORLD

America's "professional buyers" agree...

Going OLDS is the Going Thing!

The men who buy cars for business fleets are professionals with a sharp eye for value. That's why so many of them specify Oldsmobile. In fact, latest available registrations show Oldsmobile fleet sales up more than 40%! Reason: Oldsmobile's reputation for exceptional "built-in" reliability. Reason: Oldsmobile's Rocket performance and economy—a Dynamic 88 topped its field in this year's Mobil Economy Run. Reason: Oldsmobile's traditionally high resale value—one of the highest in the industry. Come to think of it, aren't these the attributes you want in your next new car?
