

Nice, October 1st, 1945

My darling Billy,

Today I am at 48 Lamartine Rd, meaning at my grand mother's [house] and I just worked on my singing. My darling Billy, last night I had a marvelous dream. You were next to me and together we took a long walk in the moonlight. Oh Billy darling, how I would have wanted in waking up this morning for this dream to be true! Oh how I want to have you near me and to be able to dream in the glow of the moon and the stars. It seems to me that in your arms I would feel protected. I would be scared of nothing and I could spend the night [with you]. But all this was only a dream too beautiful for it to be real! Tell me Billy darling, when will you have leave? If you knew how I can't wait to see you again. Do you know all that you mean to me? Billy, Billy darling, I love you but I think that I am still in my dream and since you are not next to me I want to talk to you about other things. How are your parents? I hope that as of now you have good news. Billy darling, be nice with your captain so he will let you come to Nice soon. Today in Nice, the weather was splendid, a real spring day with a marvelous sun, I miss you more than ever. Ah Billy, my darling Billy, come quick, (quick)! I need you, a long absence makes me sad, as sad as possible. Yesterday night, father noticed your little badge. He asked me where it came from. I explained it to him and he said absolutely nothing other than that the badge was pretty. I am really happy. But Billy darling, I will leave you for today. But my thoughts stay with you. Mother, Aunty, Uncle and Charley send you their best wishes. All my tenderness, all my love and thousands and thousands of kisses.

Your little star,

JANY

P.S. Please write soon darling. My regards to Tom.