

Monday afternoon

Dear Billy;

Having finished my weekly duty letter to my mama, I decided I would shoot off a few lines to you kids and, since I'm sure you couldn't read much of my handwriting, I'm typing it!

It was really fun having you kids with us this weekend. The party wouldn't have been complete otherwise, you know! I'll bet you're still laughing at papa's jokes -- now that they've finally caught up with you, ha ha.

It certainly is hell to get back to the kiddies. I can hardly keep my fat (and you said they were!) green eyes open. Ohhhh my achin' back! I didn't sleep much last night either so there! Okay, I know you're not the chaplain so I'll tell someone else my troubles (as my no-good husband always says!) and bore them to death for a while.

Why don't you drop me a line when you get around to it? Of course you're so busy buzzing around that you'll probably take years at it. Oh yes, while you're at it, I know brother John would love a letter from you. It's Pvt. John B. Turner, Company B., Pioneer Hall, University of Minnesota, Mpls. 14, Minnesota. He's a limp brain, hey, but you'll love him.

Oh, incidentally, whyncha tell me you could play the piano? It sounded very good to me and I didn't leave the room in pain once.

The flu epidemic is still going on here. Tell my mother that if it gets much worse, I may be back in Minneapolis before she knows it. Of course we're praying that the school won't close because if it does we'll lose vacation, I'm afraid. (oh heck-- they got me comin' and goin')

I hope you enjoyed the ballet that you saw Sunday and that you behaved yourself and didn't whistle at too many passing girls!

Well, I reckon I'd best prepare myself for the ordeal of meeting my seniors. Don't you wish you could be a little fly on the wall and listen to me givin' them the dickens, huh? Keep your fingers crossed for me! They're demons, no joke!

As always,

Nancy

p.s. tell votre chere frere that I'll write 'em when I get a french dictionaire. comprenez??
