East-West Wedding Lightens Jurors' Labors

VERDICT: PRETTY AS A PICTURE

Rites in Open Court Unite Scions of Old Cathay

East had met West today and they were on a honeymoon tour to San Diego.

And the men and women jurors in Superior Judge Edmund P. Mogan's court decided that Kipling was wrong for once.

East was represented by Edward Foon Dea of 1156 Stockton street, a University of California student, born in China. Good looking, too.

And West! Downright pretty, was the jurors' verdict. She was Miss Mary Stella Lee, daughter of S. M. Lee, a Chico merchant. Miss Lee was born in Portland and has yet to visit the land of her fathers. That will come after Edward Foon Dea graduates from the university.

It was an Oriental courtship in an Occidental setting, climaxed by a court marriage. That is, Judge Mogan performed the ceremony in open court during a recess in a promissory note case, and the jurors were witnesses and beamed on the happy couple as Dea folded his bride to his arms and kissed her Yankee fashion. Then all the jurors shook hands with bride and groom and wished them all kinds of luck.

As pretty as the bride—and that's saying a lot—Miss Esther C. Lee, her sister, was brides-

Eastern love met western court procedure today for a happy conclusion to an unusual courtship. Edward Foon Dea, University of California engineering student, and Mary Stella Lee, daughter of a Chico merchant, had been married before a jury in Judge E. P. Mogan's court during recess, with Miss Esther Lee as pretty bridesmaid.

And last night, at Hang Far Low, in the heart of Chinatown, Hing Sang Dea, father of the groom, and S. M. Lee, father of the bride, gave a banquet in honor of the newlyweds and toasted their happiness in wo hop—peaceableness tea.

Young Dea is majoring in electrical engineering and plans to practice his profession in China.
