Dear one:

I am much delighted to have received your kind letter and books and magazines.

Have you received the letter I meant to send mother in poston? If mother had the letter she won't worry about me. Please let me know all about it.

You mustn't forget to extend my deep appreciation to those who kindly take good care of you.

You will have never to send me things unless I asked so, except the letters. In your next convenience send me the identification ^(leaflet) booklet with my finger-print on it. You will find it on the shelf where all my records are, or in the pages of my diary as you know.

Will you always mind to keep all the English Papers, the Examiner, day after day. Don't think I ask you to send them to me. Just keep them.

You better let Sayuri have the birthday Party for her, not awaiting for my return.

I hope all of you not to catch cold as the weather slips very chilly by degree.

Don't take things to worry all concerning to me. If the food is getting better by our being here it is rather good news for which I and we like to sacrifice our small, trifle enjoyment.

Write you soon: Tatsuo Inoue
