Hayward, California

Dear Miss Fujii:

We were simply delighted to read in the papers that you were named Hayward's Distinguished Citizen of 1972.

Being bestowed this high honor is certainly a true recognition of your fine character, leadership and outstanding contribution to the community. At this time when you and your family have such good reason to be extremely proud and happy, may we add our sincere congratulations.

Warmest personal regards.

Sincerely,

Minoru Ueda

Honored For Community Work

HAYWARD—The Hayward Lions Club today named Miss Kimiko Fujii Hayward's Distinguished Citizen of 1972.

Selected because of "her tireless effort to make our community a better place, and her willingness to serve mankind by involvement," Miss Fujii was born in Hayward and majored in botany and art history at the University of Wisconsin. She and her brother operate the wholesale nursery started by their father in 1920.

Miss Fujii was the first woman director on the AC Transit District Board. She is a past president of the District Agricultural Association, a board member of the Oakland-Southern Alameda County Branch of the American Red Cross; a 16-year member of the American of University Women, a member of the Alameda County Commission for the Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency, a charter member of the Hayward Historical Society and a past president of the Hayward Human Relations Commission.

She is also a 26-year member of the Japanese-American Citizens League of Eden Township, a member of the East Bay Chapter of the San Francisco Ballet Guild, the St. Rose Hospital Advisory Board, the American Carnation Society, the Northern California Carnation Growers Society and the executive board of the Democratic State Central Committee.
