Dear Mr. Stone:

Enclosed are:

A. Series of correspondence among my father, the U. S. Offices in Japan, and the Department of Justice.

B. Copies of the Claimant's Claims my father filed----First and Second claims indicated on those papers. Those two copies are for your reference.

My own comments on A. are:

1. Numbers on those letters in order and some remarks in them for your convenience.
2. My father seems to have been tormented by the charge of the deportation from the U. S. officer. Reference to Nos. 6, 11, 12, 13, and 15, etc.,
3. In seems in the ordinary meaning of the deportation, he would have been in a very disadvantageous position.
4. However, as he claims that he was not deported from the U. S., the U. S. had lied to him and ordered him to return to Japan. In other words, he had been deceived by the U. S. immigration officer and forced to return under fraud, menace or whatever one may call it. Accordingly, he should have had the compensation from the U. S. after the War.
5. But I do not know why the Immigration Act of March 4, 1929 as amended was applied to my father, for which I am afraid there might have been some reasons on the part of the U. S. immigration officer to do so. It seems he was very indignant at this whole procedure with which he stated he was not concerned absolutely.
6. Comment on no. 17. According to my brother's opinion, this card was sent to my father after the War from the U. S. My father upon the repatriation from the U. S. had been forced to submit all the papers in his possession at that time to the U. S. officer. Therefore, my brother thinks, this card might have been issued and used by my father in place of a passport. There is no passport of my father as a temporary visitor in Japan. If you are interested in this card, I would have my brother send it to me for your reference.

Sincerely yours,

L. F. Miwa
