The Vows of Ordination - - - The Rev. Cyrus A. Osborne

The Moderator: Ai Chi Sai, presenting yourself for ordination to the Christian Ministry, and trusting God to help you, do you accept as your own the ideals and principles of Jesus; and do you promise, through reading, prayer, and study, to seek the continued guidance of the Holy Spirit into an ever larger knowledge of the truth?

The Candidate: I do, God helping me.

The Moderator: Do you accept the government and fellowship of the Congregational Churches, and promise to be a faithful minister in the work of these Churches for the service of mankind and the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God throughout the world?

The Candidate: I do, God helping me.

The Moderator: And do you here dedicate your life to teach and preach the Christian Gospel, to exalt righteousness, to rebuke evil, to reclaim the erring, to help the poor, to uplift the fallen, to minister to the sick, to comfort those in trouble, to guide and inspire youth, and to serve your fellow men in the spirit of the Master?

The Candidate: I do, God helping me.

The Congregation: We, then, the people of this Church and the members of this Council, in testimony of this high purpose, do now solemnly set you apart for the work of the Christian Ministry, pledging you our love, our prayers, and our steadfast cooperation, that we may walk together in all the ways of the Lord made known, or to be made known, unto us, and recognize you as the pastor of this Church. Amen.
