"Damn these radio commercials!" growled Jimmie

Patrolman Murphy hastening to the scene of the disaster was attempting to explain to the young rookie, Jimmy Butler, who was serving his first night of duty, why the accident had happened.

"~~When they were~~ I flagged 'em to slow down, ~~and~~ ^{but} they ^{must have} ~~guess they got~~ ^{seen} excited and pushed on the gas instead of the brake. Probably recovered enough to slam on the brakes later, but it was too late 'cause the lining was

"Here they are," said the rookie, "looks like they're dead."

Investigating the bodies, officer Murphy confirmed the youth's discovery. "Yep, they're dead okay; poor guys."
